NAVY BOATS REQUISITIONED

All commercial and passenger traffic in New York Harbor depending upon the use of ferries and lighters was demoralized yesterday when 16,000 marine workers tied up more than 1,000 boats at their piers at 6 o'clock in the morning and went on strike to enforce their demands upon the United States Railroad Administration and the New York Boat Owners' Association for an increase in pay and an eight-hour day.

Following a conference last night in the office of Regional Director A. H. Smith in the Grand Central terminal, it was predicted that there would be a break in the strike today. The conference was attended by the delegates of unions representing, it was said, 25 per cent. of the men now out. The meeting lasted for an hour and a half, following which announcement was made that the delegates would report back to their men at 10:30 this morning. They agreed to inform Mr. Smith as to the attitude of their members on proposals made to them.

While Mr. Smith and the delegates declined to discuss the details of the conference it is understood he told them that by making a settlement with the railroads the strike could be confined to the parties responsible from his point of view. One delegate described the talk at the Regional Director as "earnest and to the point." President T. L. Delahunty of the Marine Workers' Affiliation, who was present, said that they had "hopes of making progress today."

From the attitude and remarks of the delegates following the conference, the inference was drawn that they would advise the members of their respective unions to make a settlement with the railroads at once. A settlement with the railroads would re-establish ferryboat transportation.

Those present at the meeting, in addition to those already mentioned, were: Captain William A. Maher of the Masters' and Pilots' Union, William Fink of the Harbor Boatmen's Union, John Breen of the Tidewater Boatmen's Union, Alfred Sarrell of the International Hoisting Engineers' Union; John Stanton, business agent of the Railroad, Port, and Terminal Workers' Union; G. H. Sines, member of the Board of Railroads, Wages and Working Conditions; Walter B. Pollard of the marine section of the railroad administration, and John G. Walver, Secretary of the Bureau of Information of Eastern Railroads.

Mayor Frank Hague and Governor Edge of New Jersey yesterday sent protests to Joseph P. Tumulty, Secretary to the President, complaining that thousands of citizens of New Jersey had been hampered in their business and prevented from reaching their homes by the harbor traffic tieup, and begging him to set up some Government arbitration board to settle the strike and enforce the awards. Secretary Tumulty replied:

"Telegram received. I appreciate the importance of the matter you mention, and I have taken it up with the President at 6:05 P. M.

Employers "in the Fight to Stay."

A statement was issued by the officers of the New York Boat Owners' Association and the New York Tow Boat Exchange, asserting that the employers under no consideration would undertake a settlement of the strike with the leading officials of the six unions or with Basil M. Manly, Joint Chairman of the National War Labor Board, who, in his statement on Wednesday, had accused the boat owners of "contemptuously refusing" to accept the settlement of the Federal board. Through their counsel, Paul Bonynge of 11 Broadway, they asserted they were "in the fight to stay."

A statement by Joseph J. Glatzmayer, President of the Boat Owners' Association, suggested to the marine workers that a New York Harbor Board of Conciliation be established to fix wages and rule on working conditions. It was proposed that this board could comprise ten representatives of the workers and ten of the employers. The statement said the object of this board would be to prepare a new scale of wages. Mr. Bonynge, counsel for the association, said that the workers would have a voice in deciding upon this scale. Officials of the union issued a countertsatement last night saying they, too, would fight, and that they would not accept the conciliation board plan set forth by the association.

Officials of the Marine Workers' Affiliation, speaking for the six unions involved, said they would be willing to submit their case to fair arbitration if they had assurance that the boat owners would accept a decision reached by the board selected. They reiterated their charges that the boat owners had defied the settlement proposed by the National War Labor Board and con-

Government May Step In to End Harbor Strike

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The strike situation in New York Harbor was taken up today at a conference attended by officials of the War and Navy Departments, the Shipping Board, and the Railroad Administration, but no official announcement was made. Stanley King, confidential secretary to Secretary of War Baker, will be in New York tomorrow to make a personal inspection, and will report to the conferees.

It was reported here today that the Government officials had let the employers and strikers know that the Government would step in if a situation should arise which hampered the movement of transports and shipments of supplies for the army over seas. There seemed to be a feeling here, however, that some solution of the difficulties would be found before such drastic action was necessary.

HERS TO WILL AT DEATH

Capt. Roosevelt Corrects Report That His Father's Death Had Been Anticipated.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Jan. 9.—The will of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt has been opened and read to members of the family now in this country, W. Emlen Roosevelt, a cousin, said today. The text of the document, which is understood to be short, will not be made public until it has been filed for probate at Mineola, probably early next week.

The personal affairs of Colonel Roosevelt are in the hands of George C. Kobbe of the law firm of Roosevelt & Kobbe, 64 Wall Street, New York City. The executors and trustees are the widow, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., who is now with the American Army of Occupation, and of visiting the grave of Quentin Roosevelt and completing plans for the erection there of the headstone which she and Colonel Roosevelt often discussed. She will probably sail within three or four months.

Early this morning an aviator from one of the Long Island stations circled several times over the grave of Colonel Roosevelt in Youngs Memorial Cemetery and then dropped almost to the tops of neighboring trees a wreath which he let fall lighted squarely on the grave, which has been guarded throughout the night by C. T. Reynolds of Oyster Bay, who was a friend of Colonel Roosevelt.

It was announced this afternoon that the Roosevelt family had requested the continuance of the guard for an indefinite time only because persons hunting souvenirs have appeared in the cemetery. More than one hundred young men of the village have volunteered to take part in the guard duty.

In a statement made tonight Captain Archibald Roosevelt said the family had nothing to say at this time concerning the proposal in Congress to give Mrs. Roosevelt a pension of $5,000 a year for life. "No statement will be made until

EMERGENCY RELIEF BEGUN

Serbia and Rumania Already Aided and Some Supplies Reach Vienna

WORK TO BE CO-ORDINATED

Food, Finance, and Shipping Resources to be Handled by New Council.

BLOCKADE MAY BE RELAXED

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The associated Governments have decided to establish a Supreme War Council, consisting of two representatives each of France, Italy, the United States, and Great Britain, according to official announcement tonight, to deal with the question of food, finance, and shipping resources with relation to revictualing and supplying liberated and enemy territory and to co-ordinate such supplies with supplies for allied and neutral countries.

At the request of the War Cabinet, the Earl of Reading and Sir John Beale will for the time being represent Great Britain. They will start for Paris immediately. Herbert C. Hoover and Norman Davis will represent the United States, and Etienne Clémentel, the French Minister of Commerce, and M. Vilgrain France.

"Certain emergency measures, the outcome of informal discussions, are already affording relief to Serbia and Rumania," the statement says. "Concerning Austria and Germany, the Interallied Commission has been working for some time, and has already visited Vienna and Prague. The food situation in these territories is serious, and is rendered more serious by transport and financial difficulties.

"In the interim arrangements are being made for the supply of a certain quantity of foodstuffs, and some supplies have already been sent to Vienna. But further action doubtless will be required when the commission is able to report to the Supreme Council.

"The associated Governments are fully alive to the importance of the problems, and there is every reason to hope that the council will shortly be able to establish a comprehensive scheme to deal with the whole situation."

PARIS, Jan. 9.—A subject which is receiving attention as demanding immediate action on the part of the Entente and the United States is the revictualing of Poland and Finland, and also those parts of Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia which can be reached only through the territory of the Central Powers.

Experts have arrived in Paris, having been summoned from Sweden and other portions of Scandinavia, who are familiar with conditions in Poland and Finland. They report the situation very serious. Relief work can be extended only through some relaxation of the blockade regulations still in force under the terms of the armistice. As these regulations are mainly in the hands of the British Navy, it will be necessary to obtain the assent of the British Government to any relief measure Herbert C. Hoover and the Food Commission which he heads have prepared.

One of the greatest immediate needs of the population of regions evacuated by the German armies is for fats, virtually all of which must come from America. Sufficient quantities of pork products are not available elsewhere. It is expected that the German ships required to send food to the people to be supplied will be available shortly after the opening session of the Peace Congress.

WILSON RELIEF BILL HALTED TEMPORARILY

But Democratic Leaders Expect to Get Formal Approval by Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Although efforts to have the House Rules Committee report a rule for immediate consideration of the bill appropriating $100,000,000 for famine relief in Europe failed today, Administration leaders announced tonight that they had not given up hope of early consideration of the measure.

Another attempt to get the committee to report out a rule will be made soon, it was said, and if this fails the bill will be offered as an amendment to some other measure before the House. In the meantime the famine bill, passage of which has been requested by President Wilson, remains on the House calendar, and its opponents said it would stay there until the Administration explained more definitely where and how the money is to be used.

The vote against the rule today in committee was 8 to 3, but favorable action when a new effort is made to get a rule was indicated tonight when Representative Kelly of Pennsylvania, Independent, announced that he favored the bill. His vote in committee, with the six Democratic members leaders hope to have present, would give a majority over the four Republicans and one Progressive who today kept the bill on the calendar.

Republicans on the committee opposed the rule today, on the ground that Congress was without sufficient information for action, and a similar view was expressed by other members of the House and by Democratic Senators, who today continued their conferences on the measure.

Bolshevist Army Captures Vilna from Poles; Starts Massacre of People as Militia Flees

WARSAW, Jan. 8, (Associated Press.)—Vilna has fallen into the hands of the Bolshevist army, several thousand strong, which drove out the Polish militia.

A massacre of civilians began at once, partly because the Poles had offered resistance and had arrested or shot the members of the local Bolshevist committees.

The Polish troops, who had no cannon and only a few cartridges per rifle and were under command of General Veitko, retreated to Lanovarova, where they were disarmed by the Germans and sent to Bialystok. There they were robbed by the Germans and were started off for Polish territory.

Lemberg, where the Poles are defending themselves against the Ruthenians, appears safe for the time being.

CHURCHILL PICKED FOR WAR MINISTER

MILNER FOR THE COLONIES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 10.—The Daily Chronicle Parliamentary correspondent says that he understands that the following appointments to the new Ministry have been defenitely made:

Chancellor of the Exchequer—AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN.
Secretary for Home Affairs—EDWARD SHORTT.
Minister of Transport—Sir ERIC GEDDES.
Chief Secretary for Ireland—IAN MACPHERSON.
Under-Secretary to the Home Office—Sir HAMAR GREENWOOD.
Under-Secretary to the Board of Agriculture—Sir A. GRIFFITHS BOSCAWEN.
Chief Whip—Captain GUEST.

LONDON, Jan. 9, (Associated Press.)—Premier Lloyd George is expected to announce his reconstructed Ministry tomorrow. It is understood there will be few changes in the personnel, but a redistribution of the offices.

The Premier will follow precedent by taking the post of First Lord of the Treasury. Andrew Bonar Law will be Minister without portfolio, and thus will be free in his duties as Government leader in the House of Commons.

Cabinet Two Years in Office.

The principal members of the present Government were assembled by David Lloyd George between Dec. 7 and Dec. 11, 1916, in personnel as well as in distribution of work, it has since undergone several changes, so that now the Government consists of a War Cabinet of six members, three of them being without portfolios, and thirty-five other Ministers and heads of departments.

Since December, 1916, Earl Curzon, a member of the War Cabinet and Lord President of the Council, has been the Government leader in the House of Lords, while the same office in the Commons has been performed by Andrew Bonar Law, also a member of the War Cabinet, with the portfolio of Chancellor of the Exchequer. Mr. Bonar Law is one of the most prominent Unionist members of the Government, having led his party in the Commons since 1911, and, in and out of it, since 1916.

Winston Spencer Churchill, who is now said to be slated for the War portfolio in place of Lord Milner, who succeeded the Earl of Derby last April, has been Minister of Munitions since 1917. He was First Lord of the Admiralty in the Asquith Government from 1911 till 1915. The failure of the Gallipoli expedition lessened his prestige for a time until it was proved that it would have probably been successful had the army been sent in time.

Leaving the Admiralty in the Autumn of 1915, he was made Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, and then went to the front as a Major in his old regiment, the 4th Queen's Own Hussars. He retired as Colonel in 1916, and at once returned to his seat in the House of Commons, having continually represented Dundee since 1908. He had been known, until he was appointed to the Ministry of Munitions over a year ago, as the "unofficial" leader of the Government in the House; for as a Liberal he represented the majority Liberal elements, while on questions of party policies Bonar Law naturally turned to the Unionists, although the official leader of the Government. Recently Mr. Churchill has been advocating Great Britain's sea supremacy on traditional lines.

Walter Long, who, it is said, will replace Sir Eric Geddes at the Admiralty, has been Secretary for the Colonies since 1916. He has all along been opposed to the return of the German Colonies to Germany, and of late has been emphatic in advocating the retention of the major part by Great Britain.

WILSON PRESSING PEACE DISCUSSION

Refuses to Interrupt Paris Conferences by a Visit to Belgium Now.

BRITISH PREMIER DELAYED

But American Understanding with Him Is Clear and Absence Does No Harm.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 9.—Despite the urgent requests of Ambassador Jusserand and others that he visit Belgium and the devastated regions of France, the President is adhering to his decision reached in Rome, of which I cabled thence, to complete the real business that brought him to France—establishing the foundations of a permanent peace based on a League of Nations. He is full of enthusiasm to proceed with his work.

Mr. Wilson is credited with sharing the disappointment felt among the American delegates over the non-arrival of Premier Lloyd George, who had expected to be in Paris today, but is detained in England for reasons not officially known here, supposedly connected with the adjustment of British demobilization problems.

Such an excellent working basis was reached by the President, Mr. Lloyd George, and Mr. Balfour during the visit to London that it is obvious that progress will be made toward the peace settlements when Lloyd George and the President again get together. The cordial relations established by Mr. Wilson's stay in England are topped by the good feeling and better understanding created by the receptions given him in Italy.

For this reason considerable importance is attached to the conference today between Mr. Wilson and Signor Orlando, at which there is reason to believe that Italy's territorial aspirations were discussed.

Another phase of the good feeling which the President is creating is found in the notification which he is understood to have given Premier Clemenceau that he will not appear at the interallied councils as a Chief of State whose rank would entitle him to preside, but as his own Prime Minister—a position which he is able to assume, it is asserted, through the provisions of the American Constitution making the President the sole responsible executive authority. By waiving the right of precedence, the President enables the conferences to proceed as originally planned, with M. Clemenceau at the head of the table.

League Chief Subject of Discussion.

PARIS, Jan. 9, (Associated Press.)—While awaiting the arrival of the Entente Premiers and other officials whose presence is necessary to insure a full meeting of the Supreme Peace Council, the American delegates are making every effort to complete the projects they expect to submit or to discuss before the Peace Conference itself. While conferences are proceeding regarding organization of the big congress, today attention was chiefly given to the important subject of a League of Nations.

It seems apparent that the first meeting of the heads of the various Governments will take place Sunday, and will be devoted to an examination of the program worked out by the French Government.

Secretary Lansing and Colonel House were closeted some time today with Lord Robert Cecil, and it is believed that a comparison was being made of the plans prepared separately by the American and British specialists on this subject. The Americans have virtually completed their project, although they are not ready to disclose any of its details. It may be

HEAVY FIGHTING IN BERLIN

Big Guns in Action as Conflicts Take Place in Centre of City.

WILD DISORDER IN STREETS

POTSDAM FORCES ARRIVE

BERLIN, Jan. 8, (via Copenhagen.)—Sanguinary encounters are reported from many quarters of the city, but it seems that the Government is now gaining the upper hand in the second Berlin revolution.

Nobody who has not witnessed it can possibly form the slightest picture of the awful confusion existing here. The antagonizing parties are clashing at almost every street corner in the central part of the city, and violence and wild shooting prevail everywhere.

Thus the third day of the new revolution finds the city in a state of utter disorganization and lawlessness.

Conflict for Strongholds.

There are what might be called fortresses in various parts of Berlin, with guns thundering and machine guns sputtering deadly missiles night and day, with now and then an interruption of minutes or half hours at best.

Some of these fortresses are held by the Government and some by the Spartacides. Some have changed hands twice and oftener within the last twenty-four hours.

There have been sanguinary battles all night long in the newspaper district, which ended with many losses for the Government side, and with the Spartacides remaining in possession of most of the buildings until noon today. THE TIMES correspondent is informed, however, that the Government's attack will be renewed this afternoon with field guns, as machine guns avail little against the heavy walls of these buildings, behind which the Spartacides are almost secure, while the Government forces have found little cover in the streets.

The Government yesterday told the Independent Socialist Committee, which sought a compromise, that it would only consent to listen to any propositions if the newspaper offices and public buildings held by the Spartacides were at once evacuated. The Spartacides refused point blank and so did the Independent Socialists. At once the Government prepared to eject them forcibly.

Battle Rages at Night.

There had been desultory shooting all day long in the newspaper district, and the inhabitants of that densely populated section got so used to it that they even went to bed at the usual early hour prescribed by the necessity of saving gas.

Suddenly, toward 11 o'clock, after comparative quietness, the dreaded noise of battle awoke everybody in the district. Rudolph Mosse's, Ullstein's, and Scherl's, three of the largest publishing houses, and the Wolff Bureau, the official news agency, were attacked simultaneously by the Government forces, seeking to eject the Spartacides.

The inhabitants of the adjacent houses rushed to the windows, but shouts from below warned them to retire and extinguish their lights.

Now began a terrible fusillade, comparing, it seemed, with battles fought in French or Belgian towns. The attacking troops paid dearly for the Government's fatal policy of indulgence, for the Spartacides had stocked every one of the buildings attacked with machine guns, and, with the connivance of the city police, had accumulated enormous masses of hand grenades, that now rained on the unprotected soldiers in the streets.

The Spartacides had no need to expose themselves, for the Government had given them ample time to place their guns in such positions as to cover the whole length of the streets and every approach without becoming visible from below.

Bullets Scar Buildings.

The battle raged fiercest around the Tageblatt Building, on Schützenstrasse, and the Wolff Bureau, on Charlottenstrasse. All the buildings still bore traces of the fight when THE TIMES correspondent visited the district this morning. Windows were battered and walls covered with the marks of bullets.

Some neighboring tenements fared no better. There were a dozen corpses of Government defenders in a neighboring store, while many wounded had been removed to hospitals during the night.

THE TIMES correspondent was unable to approach Mosse's, Ullstein's, and Scherl's buildings. The Spartacide forces being in charge, the streets were closed to all but the inhabitants. Very few of these Spartacides wore uniforms, but they were a most desperate lot, full of fanatical daring.

One youngster of 19 told me that the Government's losses had been heaviest at Mosse's Building, surpassing those at Wolff's. Their own losses, he said, were a very few wounded.

"There was a committee of printers who came to Mosse's under a white flag, wishing to persuade us to evacuate because they lose their wages," he said. "But they have no chance of success."

"What if the Government forces return with field guns?" I asked.

"Well," he replied, "we are prepared even for such treachery."

Then an older man, who seemed to be in charge of the street patrols, expressed suspicion that THE TIMES correspondent might be a Scheidemann spy, and told him to clear out, which he did.

Arming the Extremists.

On the way to the Central Telegraph office the correspondent passed a building near the royal stables, where a whole battalion of newly enlisted Spartacides were being armed with rifles. They looked as if they had been just released from jail. They passed six at a time through the doors on one side of the building, came out with rifles and knapsacks on the other side, and immediatel lined up with men already armed.

This was being done without the slightest attempt at concealment. The question arises naturally why does not the Government kill the evil by striking at the root which is found in the not even secret Spartacide arsenals?

In many cases men have owed death or wounds to silly mistakes caused by the general nervousness.

Only three newspapers appeared this morning, the Deutsche Tageszeitung, the Freiheit, and the Rohte Falme, and their accounts of what actually happened after darkness yesterday are extremely poor. They, for instance, have only vague rumors about the battle on Wilhelmplatz, which was doubtless the most sanguinary and important encounter between the Government and the enemy.

Field Guns Fired Again.

THE TIMES correspondent described in a previous dispatch how a sudden lull induced him to descend to the battlefield, thinking that all was over, as, in fact, the soldiers holding the entrance to the subway on Mauerstrasse assured him. Hardly had this report been sent to the telegraph station when suddenly the furious fire of field guns and rifles again drowned every other noise in the wide square.

The thunder of the guns came from the direction of the Chancellor's palace, but the rifle fire seemed to emanate from the direction of Leipzigerstrasse. "Get out of the way, you civilians!" shouted the soldiers, and I hustled with a few other men down Mauerstrasse toward Unter den Linden.

Then from that direction, too, shots were fired, and to escape being caught between two fires we fled into a dark doorway. Here we remained for a long time. Now and then the fire would calm down a little, when suddenly the boom of that big gun at the Chancellor's Palace gave the sign for a renewal of the hellish concert.

Some time about 8 o'clock we decided to run for our lives and we reached the Jaegerstrasse and safety with an effort perhaps quite unnecessary, because the shooting had now become desultory.

Like all other places in the vicinity, even the dance halls abounding here, my friendly Post Office had closed, and thus the further transmission of news became temporarily impossible.

Foes Deride Each Other.

Earlier in the afternoon three had been a shooting affray on Leipzigerstrasse, between the Herrenhaus and Wertheim's department stores. There was a battalion of Spartacides stopping there preparatory to an attack on the War Office. A procession of Regular Social Democrats en route to Wilhelmplatz exchanged derisive remarks with the Spartacides, whereupon the latter suddenly began to fire.

The street was densely crowded with people, and a fearful panic ensued, women shrieking and fainting and people running heedlessly hither and thither. Fortunately the fire ceased in a few seconds, but there were some twenty dead and wounded lying in the street.

Afterward the Spartacides managed to get inside the War Office, but toward 7 o'clock soldiers began to shoot at the windows where the Spartacides were visible. Soon afterward the latter showed the white flag and surrendered on condition that twenty of their men should occupy the building, together with the soldiers, which was acceded to in order to avoid further bloodshed.

Call Enemies "Scheidemen."

A similar shooting affray occurred at the corner of Unter den Linden and Friedrichstrasse, where the Spartacides met "Scheidemen," the plural of the name of that leader being applied by the Spartacides to all of their antagonists. Both parties were armed, the Spartacides opened fire, and several "Scheidemen" replied.

The result was two dead and five wounded. Stray bullets shattered windows in the neighboring hotels.

The Spartacides also fired on the building of the general railway man-

Government Troops Pour Into Berlin, Gain Control; Bavaria Threatens War on City as Outbreaks Spread

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 9.—Government troops have occupied all the public buildings in Berlin, and thousands of troops are still entering the capital.

The Berlin correspondent of the Berlingske Tidende, who sends this information, says that the Spartacides have been beaten, and that quiet was partly restored today.

Serious Spartacide riotes are going on at Dresden, Brunswick, Düsseldorf, Essen, and Dortmund, the Munich correspondent of the Politiken says. Several towns in the Ruhr district are in the hands of the Spartacides.

BERLIN, Jan. 7, (Associated Press.)—War on Berlin to restore order is threatened by Bavaria, according to a speech made today in the Bevarian Chamber of Deputies in Munich by Herr Auer, the Minister of the Interior. Bavaria, he said, proposed to intervene with arms if conditions in Berlin continued unsettled.

"It is time that the men in Berlin understood that Berlin is not Germany," Minister Auer said, "and there is a limit to the patience of even the most tolerant people. Up to the present time I have opposed the application of armed force, but unless Berlin comes to its senses and order is soon restored we propose to intervene with arms.

"There has never been a political party which reached such a low level as the Bolshevist Spartacides. I deplore the fact that the Independent Socialists are not doing their share to prevent this national calamity."

agement, which was only weakly defended, and took it. An attempt to seize the City Hall of Schoenberg was repulsed by armed citizens. Here, too, a number of casualties were recorded.

Fierce battles were fought at several barracks. At the Pioneers' Barracks the "Scheidemen" came out victorious, the casualties being fifteen dead and many wounded. The terror lasted until about 11 o'clock at night, a heavy rain setting in having terminated it thus early.

Of the shooting in the prominent streets after dark last night, the worst was in Unter den Linden. Walking down that street about 6 P. M. THE TIMES correspondent noticed a large number of people proceeding toward Friedrichstrasse. In the darkness it was impossible to recognize of what sort they were.

There was some shouting, first "Hoch! Hoch!" then "Nieder! Nieder!"

Suddenly a furious fusillade opened on the people, who ran for life in all directions. The correspondent just managed to reach one of the large monuments, behind which he hid with fifty others. Bullets were striking the rain-drenched asphalt pavement on all sides.

People Dash for Safety.

Many persons dropped in trying to reach safety. With the fusillade mingled the boom of large guns. Nobody could say where the fire came from nor what caused it.

After about ten minutes some of us ran for the side streets. Just then firing began near the royal stable.

At the Brandenburg Gate large guns have been put in position by the Government troops for the protection of several regiments en route from Döberitz to Berlin, who may be expected at any minute.

From telephone inquiries, the correspondent gathers that there has been heavy fighting at the Brandenburg Gate and the Siegesallee all the afternoon. Large guns have also been placed in position at the corner of Unter den Linden and Friedrichstrasse.

The Central Telegraph office, where I am writing is filled with soldiers, and there is a terrible noise. They are preparing for a mooted attack by the Spartacides.

FORT AT POLICE BUILDING.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 7, (via Copenhagen.)—As this evening wears on, the situation is getting more complicated than ever. Nobody seems to know who is friend and who is foe.

This much, however, is certain: the multitude of 100,000 assembled in the Wilhelmplatz in front of the Chancellor's Palace is largely pro-Government. They are waiting there to aid in warding off any further attempts by the Spartacides and Independents to seize the Government.

There are, however, many Spartacides among the crowds who will now and then start an argument, and when they get the worst of it will use their fists if arguments have not the desired effect. Handgranaten (hand grenades) are thrown, and revolvers are used, but so dense is the crowd that 100 feet away people do not realize what is going on.

Within one hour, while THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent was watching this crowd, no fewer than seven wounded and one dead man were carried past him through the Mohrenstrasse alone. Perhaps nobody will ever know the exact number of casualties that have occurred here.

The dead man was a sailor who tried to assault people who were answering the Spartacide stump speaker with cries of "Down with Liebknecht!" The sailor got the worst of it, and in the scuffle fell on his own hand grenades, which exploded, killing him.

It is dark now, but the multitude in front of the Chancellor's Palace shows no inclination to disperse. A few minutes ago there was another shooting affray in front of the Kaiserhof. People at first fled, then returned and set upon the offenders. Some half dozen wounded men are being carried off on hand wagons.

THE TIMES correspondent can watch the whole square from a corner room of the Kaiserhof. It is very dark now, but still the crowd remains flooding about, listening to impromptu speeches.

There is a rumor that several regiments are en route from Potsdam. Now and then there is a partial panic, people rushing to the entrance of the subway and trying to force open the doors of houses.

I hear that shortly before I arrived at the Central Telegraph Office the assistant correspondent of the United Press agency, Hans Graudenz, was wounded on the foot by a hand grenade. It seems that when Graudenz left the building the besieging Independents threw a bomb as the door opened, hoping to gain an entrance in the panic thus created. The officials, however, were quick to lock the door, Graudenz being the only victim.

As I hear by telephone, there is also a large crowd in front of Police Headquarters on the Alexanderplatz, where there has been much promiscuous shooting and throwing of hand grenades. The building is crowded with Eichhorn's men, probably 5,000 strong.

Enormous stores of arms and munitions are said to have been accumulated inside. There are constant shouts for Eichhorn, and also shouts, "Nieder mit Eichhorn!" (Down with Eichhorn!")

Earlier in the day THE TIMES correspondent interviewed several orderlies coming from Police Headquarters, who gave the impression that they would not stand a serious attack.

About 5 o'clock it was impossible to get any statement from official sources as to what would be done to terminate the extraordinary situation.

Of all the afternoon papers only Die Freiheit appeared, the compositors and other workmen of all other papers not suppressed by the Spartacides being on strike.

FIGHT AT BRANDENBURG GATE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The Daily Express correspondent, in a dispatch dated at Berlin, Tuesday 4 P. M., says:

"The Spartacides have retained possession of all the buildings they captured yesterday, and in addition have captured the Schlesische Bahnhof, the most important railway station in Berlin. In consequence the underground railway is not running.

"Government troops occupied the top of the Brandenburg Gate this morning and ambushing themselves behind the bronze horses which the Prussians stole from France in 1870, prepared to hold this strategical position, which overlooks four broad roadways.

"There was spasmodic fighting in various parts of the city, but no direct attack was made on the gate until 2 o'clock. Then the Bolsheviki made three attacks, killing and wounding the men on the top of the gate, and they also fired along Unter den Linden, where they killed and wounded many persons.

"After the third attack, the Government soldiers hoisted a white flag and the gate was abandoned. The Spartacus troops made no attempt to occupy it, but transferred the centre of the fighting to Wilhelmstrasse, where heavy fighting is proceeding."

In earlier dispatches describing Monday's fighting, the same correspondent says that the management of the Hotel Adlon hoisted an American flag, permission having been granted by an American General, but that the mob threatened to storm the building unless the flag was taken down.

LOSS 20 TIMES AS BIG AS IN FIRST REVOLT

BERLIN, Jan. 8, (Associated Press.)—Heavy fighting continued throughout last night at various points in Berlin. The civil warfare already is estimated to have cost twenty times as many lives as were sacrificed in the overthrow of the Hohenzollern dynasty sixty days ago.

The correspondent is informed that the Government troops were repulsed yesterday in every attempt they made to recapture public buildings from the Spartacides. The opposition forces now hold the Reichstag building, the approaches to the Brandenburg Gate, and the Silesian railway station.

Since Monday the Spartacides have not repeated the attempt to capture the Government headquarters in the Chancellor's palace, in Wilhelmstrasse, which is strongly guarded by soldiers.

The conference between the Government and the Executive Committee of the Independent Socialists was resumed this morning, but it is believed to be doomed to failure because Dr. Liebknecht and his followers, who comprise the great bulk of the rebels, refuse to deal with the "bloodhounds, Ebert and Scheidemann."

The Tägliche Rundschau says:

"The Spartacide damnation has intrenched itself and Berlin today is under the terror of Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg."

The Rundschau says it learns that the new German Foreign Minister has informed the Cabinet that it is impossible to carry out any policies in the present condition of affairs.

The Berlin Independent Socialist organ Die Freiheit today throws off the pretense of following the Independent leaders like Carl Kautsky, and says:

"We summon the revolutionary workmen and the Socialists of Berlin to demonstrate again today their numbers and their decisions."

The paper calls on the revolutionaries to meet in the Siegesallée, where a great mass already has collected.

Jan. 7.—The curtain is still up on the up on the great tragic comedy, "Bergreat tragic comedy, "Berlin; the Madhouse," as a Majority Socialist editor called it yesterday.

Unter den Linden, Wilhelmstrasse, the Siegesallee, and all the streets in that section have been jammed all day by masses of people who from time to time fled madly into the side streets and sheltering doorways to escape the rain of bullets from both sides.

The shooting reached considerable proportions three times during the afternoon, but the casualties appear to have been few.

The Ebert cabinet has been in session nearly all day with Cautincy (Kautsky?) Herr Breitscheid, Wilhelm Dittmann and Oscar Cohen, Independent Socialist. The conference was resumed late this evening with additional representatives called "revolutionary foremen," composed of foremen in the factories of greater Berlin under the leadership of Georg Ledebour.

The foremen, although nominally Independent Socialists, are virtually Spartacides. Despite their attitude Dr. Liebknecht, the Spartacide leader, has disavowed in advance any intention of dealing with the Government.

The Government tonight authorized The Associated Press to say that it was firmly resolved to maintain its attitude and that the time for compromise was past.

A few newspapers were published today. The Kreuz Zeitung appeared under the Spartacide preventive censorship. White spaces showed where the Spartacides had prohibited the publication of communications from the Ebert Government.

The Tägliche Rundschau appeared, but the copies were taken away from the newsdealers in the streets and burned. The Spartacides entered the office of the Deutsche Zeitung and destroyed the forms. The Norddeutsche Allegemeine Zeitung also is under preventive censorship. The New Berlin Tageblatt was issued from the Tageblatt plant by the Spartacides.

Railway Stations Attacked.

While the Government is devoting nearly all its energies to holding the Government buildings in Wilhelmstrasse, the Spartacides continue to strengthen their grip elsewhere. Officials of the "Stadt Bahn U-5" as the local railway which encircles the city is termed, announced this afternoon that they had been compelled to stop operations because the Spartacides had seized the Silesian railway station and were besieging other stations.

The Government printing plant has been seized by the Liebknecht followers, who are now reported to be surrounding the barracks of the 3d Guard Regiments in Wrangelstrasse with artillery in position to bombard it. In addition to capturing the barracks of the Pioneer Guards, the Spartacides have occupied the adjoining building, which contains foodstuffs and equipment.

It is likely that street car service will be suspended tomorrow.

Troops loyal to the Government are reported on the way to Berlin, but the Spartacides are besieging the principal railway stations and the troops detraining probably will encounter opposition.

Spartacide forces and Government troops clashed this afternoon at the Brandenburg gate. Machine guns were used in the fighting. The correspondent saw three victims of the firing carried across the Pariser Platz, in front of the gate. One was apparently dead.

At 3:35 o'clock the Spartacides entered Wilhelmstrasse, the Government stronghold, from Unter den Linden, crying: "Down with Ebert and Scheidemann!" A mere handful of Government troops, probably not more than twenty, backed up slowly for 100 yards and then fired into the air. The Spartacides turned and fled, and in a few minutes had disappeared.

The streets around the Pariser Platz were blocked by curious crowds. Many bullets whistled through the streets.

Hindenburg Not in Capital.

The report that Field Marshal von Hindenburg is in Berlin is denied in Government circles.

General Ludendorff, former Chief Quartermaster General of the German armies, according to the Nachrichten of Leipsic, has returned to Germany from a recuperating trip to Sweden. The visit to Sweden, the paper adds, was undertaken with the consent of the Government.

The Boerse remained closed today on account of the political situation. The Imperial Bank and the private banks, however, did business as usual. Many of the big shops in the Leipsigerstrasse and Unter den Linden remained closed.

The failure of the newspapers to appear because the act of the Spartacides in suppressing them has stimulated an overproduction of rumors contributing to the general feeling of insecurity. The Berlin population today is depending upon the telephone for news service and the wires are badly overtaxed.

The Spartacide movement is beginning to affect other centres in Germany. In Brunswick the Red Guards and Independent Socialists have adopted a resolution in favor of a Spartacide uprising and seized the newspapers. It is reported that the Spartacides have taken over the Government at Mulheim and Oberhausen, near Essen.

HAD ARRANGED ARMISTICE.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 7.—A deputation of Independent Socialists, consisting of Ledebour, Dittmann, Kautsky, and Breitscheid, entered into negotiations with the Ebert Government, which demanded the immediate return of all weapons, the evacuation of occupied buildings, and the resignation of the deposed Police President Eichhorn. An armistice was arranged for, so that the demands might be considered.

These demands apparently have been refused by the revolutionaries, as the latest report says that their leaders have constituted themselves a Government, consisting of Liebknecht, Ledebour, and Tiek, President of the Spartacus Bund.

The Sailors' Division has declared itself neutral and deposed its revolutionary leaders.

BERLIN REVOLUTIONISTS SET UP A TRIUMVIRATE

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Telegraphic reports from Berlin today received in Berne state that the rebels there have formed a new government under the title of "The Revolutionary Committee."

This committee comprises three members, Herr Liebmann, George Ledebour, and Herr Tiek, the last-named the President of the Spartacus League. The Spartacides thus appear still to be working with the Socialists of the Left or Independents.

A Paris dispatch says that the Ebert Government has been overturned, the extremists having gained the upper hand in Berlin after sanguinary fighting. A part of the Government troops are reported to have gone over to the rebels, and the Spartacides, Paris hears, gained control of the principal points in Berlin at one time. These reports are not confirmed from any other quarter.

State of Siege Proclaimed.

A state of siege has been proclaimed in Berlin. Troops loyal to the Ebert Government have arrived from Potsdam and driven the Spartacides as far as the Tiergarten, and reoccupied the printing works.

Premier Ebert has issued a manifesto to the "workers, bourgeoisie and soldiers," denouncing the Spartacides as being responsible for many persons being killed and wounded. The manifesto continues:

"We must now accept the fight into which we have been forced. We have hesitated too long and must be prepared to intervene without restriction for the defense of revolutionary order.

"We appeal to you in the view of forming a volunteer republican defense guard. We must not stop until order has been re-established in Berlin and the people assured the possibility of enjoying peace and the fruits of the revolution."

Ebert is reported to have told a friend that he had no doubt about the issue of the fighting. Loyal sailors are on their way to Berlin from Kiel. All the officers in Berlin have placed themselves at the disposal of Herr Noske and the Government is forming officers' battalions.

Repulsed Again at Palace.

The Spartacides renewed their attempts to seize the Chancellor's Palace, it is declared in Berlin dispatches to the Handelsblad, but were driven back with the loss of thirty killed and forty-five wounded. These figures, the newspaper's correspondent says, appear to be too small. On Wednesday, the advices add, the Spartacides were driven from the Potsdam and Anhalt railroad stations, the Brandenburg Gate and the Central Railway Office.

Bloody fighting occurred at the Anhalt railroad station Wednesday night when Spartacide groups tried to occupy the building. They were repulsed by Government troops, who inflicted heavy losses on them.

There was lively shooting Wednesday forenoon at many points, including the Brandenburg Gate, which the Government forces had captured during the night. Several persons were killed or wounded there.

The troops of the Government directed an incessant fire from machine guns on the roof of the Chancellor's palace in the direction of Unter den Linden and Wilhelmstrasse. Later the firing increased in intensity, especially in the neighborhood of the Brandenburg gate, and many more persons were killed.

The Prussian War Minister told the correspondent that the power of the Government was increasing because volunteers were offering their services.

A correspondent reports that the Spartacides got 18,000,000 marks in paper money when they captured the Government printing office.

At 6 o'clock Wednesday evening there was little change in the situation in Berlin, although the Government had made some progress in strengthening its position, according to an exchange telegraphic dispatch from Copenhagen. The Government forces are reported to have secured control of the railways and to have occupied the offices of the Red Flag, the Spartacus organ. Large forces were expected to augment the first contingent of Government troops which arrived from Potsdam on Wednesday.

Some parts of Berlin already are without light and water. Provision depots have been stormed by the Spartacides, and the feeding of soldiers and civilians has been interrupted.

The Spartacus group has proclaimed a general strike for Jan. 10. The Spartacides declare they will prevent the elections to the National Assembly by all possible means.

The street fighting in Berlin attained the greatest intensity between 11 o'clock Tuesday night and 5 o'clock Wednesday morning, a Berlin telegram to the Frankfort Nachtrichten states. Heavy artillery firing continued uninterruptedly. The dispatch says the Government was still master of the situation.

Revolt Spreads from Berlin.

Civil war is spreading to other parts of Germany, and parts of the Rhenish provinces and Bavaria are now reported to be involved. Strikes and demonstrations in sympathy with the Liebknecht movement in Berlin have taken place in Brunswick and Munich.

In Munich on Tuesday evening a mob of several thousand persons attempted to storm one of the largest banks, but was repulsed by machine-guns, according to a Munich dispatch to the Politiken. The riots, the dispatch states, were promoted by the Spartacides.

A general strike has been declared in the workshops at Brunswick. The strikers are reported to have plundered the public buildings there.

SIGHTSEERS FLOCK TO SEE THE FIGHTING

Crowds Gather Whenever Conflict Is On—Barrel Organ Plays Near Battle Scene.

ROTTERDAM, Jan. 8.—This morning all the Berlin trams ceased to run, as did also State railways, the employes of which joined the strikers from the factories.

All through the night there was bitter fighting, and that part of the population which went home was kept awake by the almost continuous gun fire.

Up to 10 o'clock this morning the Government was still holding its own in the Chancellor's Palace, all the approaches to which were cut off by cordons, and they had also succeeded in regaining the mastery of the Brandenburger gate, around which raged a battle of several hours' duration.

The Sparticists, however, still remain in occupation of several outlying railway stations, all the newspaper offices, the principal army provisioning depot, the Potsdamer Station, and the state printing works.

The Government scored a valuable victory in reconquering the administrative headquarters of the state railways. This was managed very cleverly. Government soldiers from the Anhal station moved stealthily forward and under cover of darkness succeeded in mounting machine guns at points covering all the roads along which Spartacide reinforcements could be brought up, then another strong body of troops made a frontal attack.

The occupants of the building opened fire with a machine gun, but this was quickly silenced, and then two white flags were hoisted on the roof. The conflict was over in ten minutes and the victors lost only four killed and three wounded.

Two night attacks were also made against the Silezische and Statiner stations, but the Government troops were repulsed. This morning a fresh attempt was being made.

At midday the correspondent of the Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant says:

"That the tram and railway communication has ceased at least brings the favorable circumstance that there are fewer people in the city. The tremendous crowds which have been in the streets have constituted one of the greatest dangers. Wherever firing breaks out or a conflict is expected thousands of sightseers flock to the point.

Cordons of soldiers cut off these districts but they are helpless to prevent the huge crowds from pressing forward.

"Yesterday I saw at the corner of two streets shots being exchanged while simultaneously a few yards away a carivel organ was playing."

The Wolff Bureau asserts today that the revolutionaries are making progress everywhere, but it must be remembered that the agency is now under Spartacus control.

PAYER REBUKES SOCIALISTS.

Says They Are Finding It Is Easier to Criticise Than to Govern.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Jan. 9.—Speaking in Stuttgart, former Vice Chancellor von Payer severely condemned the Berlin Socialistic Government.

He said that perhaps it was well that the Socialists were learning it was easier to criticise than to govern. They were wont, he said, to accuse all Governments of weakness and incompetence, but the present Socialistic Government in Berlin was the weakest and most incompe ent Germany ever had.

The Bolshevist insurrection in Berlin is producing a critical state of unrest in Southern Germany, intensifying the hatred of Prussia in moderate circles, but exciting the extreme elements to imitate Liebknecht's actions. At a meeting of Communists in Munich, the Bolshevist leader Muehsam aroused wild cheers by demanding that the proletarian classes should immediately be armed, that the Archbishop of Munich be hanged from the bell rope of his cathedral, and that Ministers Au.. and Timm be tried by a revolutionary tribunal.

Later 30,000 workingmen organized a demonstration in front of the Foreign Office. A delegation of workers was received by Premier Eisner, who exorted them to remain calm.

The Munich Police President, Steiner, said in an interview that the majority of the soldiers in the capital were so far supporting the Government, but an uprising seemed inevitable if the Clerical Party triumphed at the elections for the National Assembly. The workers of Southern Germany were, he said, intensely irritated by the recent bourgeois successes at the elections in Baden.

The Independent Socialists have nominated Premier Eisner as their candidate for the National Assembly at Regentsburg, which is the political stronghold of the Catholics and the home of the Clerical leader, Dr. Heim. This nomination amounts to an act of defiance, as Eisner's chances of election at Regentsburg are small.

GERMANS DEFEAT POLES.

Negotiations On to End Fighting in Province of Posen.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 9.—German forces have recaptured the important railway junction of Bentschen from the Poles, according to a dispatch from Posen.

Polish troops advancing from Kolmar, north of Posen, were also defeated by German volunteers, who later occupied Kolmar, a report from Berlin today says. The losses on both sides are declared to have been very heavy. The Germans also occupied Weissenhoehe, in the Kolmar district, after a stiff fight.

A dispatch to the Frankfort Gazette from Posen says that negotiations are in progress between the German Government an dthe Polish authorities with a view to avoiding useless bloodshed.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—A stirring call has been issued by the Government for a volunteer army to repress the Polish invasion.

RHINE TELEPHONES OPENED

American Officials Will Listen to the Conversations.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION, Jan. 8, (Associated Press.)—Further facilities for the conduct of ordinary business were given to the inhabitants of the Rhineland today when there were opened between Coblenz and the interior of Germany five trunk telephone lines.

Communication across the line, both by telegraph and mail, had been permitted under the strictest censorship by the Americans, but telegraphic communication was limited to one wire.

Permission to use the telephone will be limited to business conversations. It was given with the understanding that American officials would be "listening in" with instructions to break communication at the slightest indication of improper use of the lines. The arrangement makes possible easy communication with Berlin.

In offering to the public these privileges of communication, the Americans are acting in accordance with their policy of not interfering with the ordinary affairs of the people, as far as that is possible.

The press and the public are not displaying a tendency to take advantage of the comparatively loose rein by which they are held. Political meetings are being held daily, but they have not been of a character to arouse American intervention.

ALLIED THREAT TO TURKEY.

Will Destroy Dardanelles Forts Unless Force at Medina Disarms.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The Allies have notified Turkey that unless the Turkish force at Medina lays down its arms immediately the forts at the Dardanelles will be destroyed.

The Turks have shown an unwillingness to surrender in accordance with the armistice terms, but all the garrisons except that at Medina, which is the largest in Arabia, laid down their arms through peaceful persuasion. Fakhri Pasha, the commander at Medina, offered one excuse after another until the Allies were forced to send an ultimatum to the Turkish Government.

FAIL IN ARMISTICE DELIVERY

Germans Far Behind in Turning Over Guns and Rolling Stock.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Germany has fallen behind in the last month in turning over material required by the terms of the armistice.

A checking to date shows a shortage of 685 heavy guns, 7,000 machine guns, 1,000 trench mortars, 600 airplanes, 4,736 engines, 5,000 motor lorries, and 130,000 railroad cars.

WATCHING GERMAN REVOLT.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—The revolution in Germany and its possible results cause a fear that lies at the heart of every business man today, Frank A. Vanderlip told the members and guests of the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association at their annual dinner tonight in the Bellevue-Stratford.

Mr. Vanderlip dwelt upon the business outlook, and depicted the "blueness" of the situation as he saw it, together with the vast opportunities that were always open for business in a nation as great as the United States. In this latter connection, he said that the banking situation of the country was on a firm foundation, and that the nation was self-supporting, so that if the storms of international troubles broke forth in fury we could still be prosperous and self-supporting, if "there was a Chinese wall about us."

He also said that social reorganization must be taken in hand as one of the vital questions of the period. A closer communion between labor and capital he considered essential to ward off the terrors of Bolshevism that now grip Russia and are attacking Germany.

Mr. Vanderlip stated that he appeared in the rôle of an apostle for that interrelation that would not look upon labor merely as a commodity, but would grant to the workers a large share in the purely administrative ends of the business world.

Greek Officers Killed in Germany.

SALONIKI, Jan. 8.—Three Greek officers detained at the prison camp at Goerlitz, Germany, were killed by the Germans, according to official information received here, because they refused to execute orders issued by the "League of Royalist officrs." Thirty-three other Greek officers are still detained in the prison camp, which, the Greek authorities say, is a violation of the armistice.

A PORT FOR THE VATICAN?

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 9.—From a source closely connected with the Vatican I learn that the question of the Pope's voluntary imprisonment ensuing upon the loss of temporal power when Rome was declared the capital of United Italy will be discussed at the Peace Conference. The solution considered most practical is to give the Holy See a small strip of territory connecting the Vatican with the sea, so that there may be free access to the outer world without crossing Italian territory.

The Pope's confinement to the Vatican has long been a cause of bitter resentment in the "black" or Papal Party in Italy. President Wilson, for example, when in Rome was unable to drive to the Vatican directly from the King's Palace, as the Pope in that case would not have received him, but was obliged to go to the American Embassy and take a carriage from there to the Vatican, owing to the intense feeling between the two parties.

STORIES OF REVOLT REACH RHINELAND

But Belief Is General That the Spartacus Group Cannot Win.

FAITH IN HINDENBURG

He Is Known to Have Large Forces Ready to Aid Ebert When Necessary.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, Jan. 9.—According to messages received here, negotiations between the Berlin Government and the Spartacides have been broken off, and the radicals say they will "fight to a finish." Since Monday morning there have been scattering conflicts between the Government adherents and the radicals.

It is difficult for Germans here to get exact information from Berlin because the wire service has been interrupted by the activities of the Spartacus group, and trains are not running, due partly to a strike for higher wages and partly to the fact that the Spartacus adherents amuse themselves by rushing into the railroad stations from time to time and causing trouble until Ebert's police arrive and drive them away.

One reason why the situation in Berlin is not regarded here as serious in so far as threatening to give the Spartacus crowd control of the capital is that people know that Hindenburg has about eighteen divisions of troops not far away upon which Ebert can call at any time. But it is understood that Ebert wishes to use these only as a last resort, and is depending on the excesses of the Spartacus crowd to arouse indignation among the great majority of the population, which will mean death to the radical cause.

General Groener has also offered to restore order in Berlin should it become necessary.

Bolshevism has not gotten hold of German soldiers, it is said, and there is among American fighting men no doubt that Hindenburg can command a dependable force large enough to crush the Spartacus trouble makers when he acts.

There is, of course, a little difficulty in that many Social Democrats do not entirely trust Hindenburg, regarding him as dangerous to their cause because of his former association with the Kaiser. Groener is still less trusted on this score. However, that detracts nothing from the foundation belief that the existence of a ready force insures that the Spartacus group will not seize and hold Berlin.

General Harries and his men went to Berlin in connection with the task of arranging for the return of American prisoners of war. There are similar missions in Berlin from the French and British armies. These missions are serving as observers.

The allied leaders, both civil and military, wish the National Assembly elections called for Jan. 19 to be held, because it is only after a meeting of that Assembly that Germany can have a stable Government. It is the avowed purpose of the Spartacus group to prevent the holding of this Assembly, which they know they cannot control against the conservatives. It is not thought that they will be able to prevent the elections, and certainly at most they could interrupt them only in Berlin and several other cities.

It is the belief of many that the prospect of the ruination of the elections for the National Assembly will probably take the allied troops to the German capital. If Ebert can hold the reins until after the election and the National Assembly convenes, however, there is a very remote possibility of allied troops going to Berlin.

Those here who know much of the situation warn against attaching too much importance to the disturbances in Berlin, because there exists a strong element in Germany which wants allied troops to come to the capital. This faction dominates some newspapers and sources of information which appear to be exaggerating the results of Spartacus doings.

TO EMPLOY GERMAN SHIPS.

America, Britain, and Italy Have Agreed On Plan for Service.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The United States, Great Britain, and Italy have agreed upon a plan for taking over German passenger tonnage. The plan will be laid before the German and Allied Armistice Commissions next Monday. France is not included in the plan, as she got the bulk of the Austrian passenger tonnage and is willing that the other three nations bid for the German shipping.

Representatives of the three countries will submit their plan to the commissions at Spa.

From the Mercantile's Officers

THE atmosphere of a trust company is a very tangible thing to most people, and influences their whole mental attitude toward financial organizations.

Of all business places, the officers of the Mercantile believe a man's trust company or bank should be the most friendly place he visits.

The relationship is close and in many cases intimate. The more normal and unreserved the attitude between the bank and client the more helpful one can be to the other.

Many things contribute to an attractive atmosphere but so far as the Mercantile is concerned its success in this particular lies in the spirit that is behind all service to clients. The officers of the Mercantile make their clients' interests their own in a very real sense. They welcome discussion of a client's problems. They are glad if given an opportunity to help solve the problems.

The Mercantile invites those seeking trust company service or a banking connection to call and meet its officers personally.

AUGURY OF VICTORY FOR LEAGUE IDEA

French Agree to Use Wilson's Principles as Chart for Peace Parleys.

FIRST PLACE IN DISCUSSION

Other Subjects in Their Order Are Boundaries and Financial and Economic Matters.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—President Wilson has won his first great point in the controversies of the preliminary Peace Conference, and thereby the League of Nations seems to be assured. According to my information this afternoon from a most authentic French source, it is now agreed by France that the formal adoption of the principles of the League will be made the first business of the conference, and that the subsequent proceedings will be according to those principles. In that announcement you can hear the echo of all the cheers and shouts of "Viva Wilson!" with which the streets of cities and towns in England, France, and Italy have resounded for the last three weeks.

The American President first won the peoples of these European nations, and now it would seem he has won the Governments.

This agreement to consider the League of Nations at all, before the terms of a dictated peace to Germany have been fixed, is a great concession on the part of the French Government. As I cabled on Dec. 28, the French plan was to dictate peace to Germany, Hungary, Bulgaria, and Turkey, and fix the boundaries of those countries and arrange indemnities before considering the League of Nations, which was to be a sort of afterthought to be taken up by a subsequent general Congress of Nations. That sequence of events has been opposed by America, and America wins.

Second, determination of boundaries and all other territorial matters.

Third, financial matters.

Fourth, economic matters—and then to conclude with working out the details of the League of Nations.

This shifting of the adoption of the League principles from the end to the beginning of the proceedings by no means indicates that there is an end of the controversy. There is room for the on every detail of every question to be taken up, but it is a great stride ahead in the interests of harmony and away from the reactionary talk and threats that have been so much in evidence ever since the armistice. It probably means the beginning of talk about what the people want.

In addition to the information that France now deems it more advisable to adopt the League principles as the chart for peace negotiations, I have received from the same source a partial intimation as to what sort of League France would like to have. Needless to say, it would not include Germany at the outset. On the contrary, the League, according to the French idea, should begin with America, France, England, and Italy as charter members; others, allied and neutral, to be taken in next; and perhaps, after a long period of probation and giving assurance of good behavior, the present enemy nations would be taken in.

ARMENIANS LODGE PROTEST.

Sevasly Appeals to Washington Against a French Protectorate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Miran Sevasly of Boston, Chairman of the Armenian National Council of America, today called on William Phillips, Assistant Secretary of State, to protest in behalf of the Armenian people against the carrying out of the terms of the declaration by Stephen Pichon, the French Foreign Minister, that France would maintain a protectorate over portions of Asia Minor, formerly a part of the Ottoman Empire.

Mr. Sevasly said that the claim of the French Government to the right of a protectorate over Armenia was based on the secret treaty of February, 1917, between Russia and France, and that the Armenians held that no secret treaties could be binding in view of President Wilson's declarations against them. He also said that political integrity of the Armenian people was guaranteed by the treaties of Paris and Berlin, and that no secret treaty could absolve the signatories of the responsibility of seeing that the provisions of previous treaties were carried out.

The Armenian organization in America, Mr. Sevasly said, had cabled a protest against the attitude of the French Government to Boghos Nubar, Chairman of the Armenia Delegation in Paris. He added that the Paris organization had already proclaimed the independence of Armenia, and proposed that the sovereignty of the country be placed "under the protection of the society or League of Nations that is to emerge from the present Peace Conference."

TELLS OF TROOP TRANSPORT

Mercantile Marine Co. Carried More Than Any Other Concern.

The International Mercantile Marine Company gave out figures yesterday regarding the transport of American troops overseas. The company holds the record, having transported more American troops to Europe than any other steamship organization. The steamship New York took Admiral Sims across in April, 1917, and General Pershing and his staff went over in the Baltic in May, 1917. The Mongolia of the Mercantile Marine was the first American vessel to attack a U-boat. This was in mid-Atlantic on April 19, 1917.

The American Expeditionary Force to the number of 507,636 men was carried across the Atlantic on steamships owned or operated by the Mercantile Marine. These troop movements covered 282 voyages, made during nineteen months of war activity. The first contingent of America's fighting force was transported abroad on the steamship Finland from New York in June, 1917.

CECIL MAY BE ENVOY IN PLACE OF READING

Known to be Under Consideration—Lord Derby Also Has Been Suggested.

PARIS, Jan. 9.—The Earl of Reading will not return to Washington as British High Commissioner and Special Ambassador to the United States, according to a London dispatch to the Echo de Paris.

It is said that Lord Robert Cecil, former Assistant Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, will succeed hm.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Discussion of the matter of a successor to the Earl of Reading as Special Ambassador to the United States has always involved the mention of Lord Robert Cecil as a possibility. This is because of his interest in American affairs and his sympathetic attitude toward the League of Nations policy.

The Earl of Derby has also been mentioned, since it is likely that he will relinquish his post as Ambassador here when the Peace Conference ends. Lord Derby, it is believed, does not wish to continue his diplomatic career, and accepted the Paris post only temporarily because the war alliance made the presence of an unusual personality there desirable. Lord Derby's financial and other home interests naturally stand in the way of his long absence abroad.

The Earl of Reading recently informed The Associated Press that he would return to Washington for farewells and the winding up of the various interests which the position of High Commissioner imposed upon him. It is believed that the Washington appointment has not yet been decided upon.

Members of the regular diplomatic establishment feel that an injustice would be done the service by the appointment of an outsider to one of the highest posts, as was felt when James Bryce was sent to Washington, and it is thought the Government may take this factor into consideration.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9, (Associated Press.)—It has been understood in official circles here that Lord Reading would return to the United States as special British Ambassador, and it was learned today that he was expected to make the trip back with President Wilson. Lord Robert Cecil has been mentioned in diplomatic circles as the probable successor of Lord Reading, but official opinion here is that Lord Robert would not consent to abandon his political career at home.

FRENCH FACE COAL FAMINE.

Three Years Will Be Required to Efface German Devastation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Three years will be required to bring the coal mines of Northern France to full production "France," the report says, "must and to efface the devastation wrought by the retreating Germans, says a report to the Fuel Administration by the special commission which has completed a study of conditions abroad.

The great reserve stocks of coal in France are gone, the stocks of public utilities have reached a dangerous point, and the entire nation is in great need of relief.

look outside of her own borders for at least half of her coal supply for some little time to come. There is every prospect that with the present shortage in England, Great Britain will experience difficulty in meeting anything more than her present demands. In that event, it is not improbable that there will be a demand of very considerable proportions for American coal."

Dynamite and the oxy-acetylene torch were used by the Germans to complete the destruction of the mines in the Lens region after the earth had been blown from the rock strata and the shafts obliterated by exploding shells.

DAMAGE BY WINDSTORM.

Woman Blown Before Auto—Many Signs Down.

During a windstorm which swept the city late last night a woman was rescued by a sailor of the navy as she was being tossed by the gale in the path of an automobile at Broadway and Forty-second Street. The woman, who refused to give her name, was just about to step from the curb when the wind carried her toward an automobile. She was unable to check herself and her screams attracted the sailor's attention. He caught her in time to save her from being run over.

In all parts of the city signs were blown down, windows were shattered, and along the waterfront great damage was done to boats and pier sheds. The gale gained volume after midnight and its velocity was estimated to be 60 miles an hour at times. Early this morning it was hard to make headway against the gale in the crosstown streets.

FRANCE SELECTS PEACE DELEGATES

Clemenceau, Pichon, Klotz, Tardieu, and Cambon Will Represent Her.

FOCH TO SIT FOR ALLIES

Cambon's Appointment Especially Pleasing to Americans—Served Long in Washington.

PARIS, Jan. 9, (Associated Press.)—Official announcement was made today that the Council of Ministers had approved the nominations to be French representatives in the Peace Congress of the following:

Georges Clemenceau, the Premier; Stephen Pichon, Foreign Minister; Louis Lucien Klotz, Finance Minister; André Tardieu, French High Commissioner to the United States; Jules Cambon, former Ambassador at Berlin and Washington.

Paul Dutasta, French Ambassador to Switzerland, will be Secretary of the French delegation.

Marshal Foch, it is announced, will naturally be a member of the Peace Congress as the Commander in Chief of the allied armies. One of the technical representatives of the French Government will probably be Léon Bourgeois, the authority on the subject of a League of Nations.

The announcement of the personnel of the French delegation, in addition to bringing a distinguished array of French statesmen into the arena, has begun to lend definiteness to the delegations of the great powers, of which the American commission has been by itself up to the present time. It is expected that the British, Italian, and Japanese delegations will now be announced officially.

The leading figures, like Premier Lloyd George and Foreign Secretary Balfour for Great Britain, Premier Orlando and Foreign Minister Sonnino for Italy, and Viscount Chinda and Ambassador Matsui for Japan, are already regarded as chosen, although not officially appointed; but the designation of a full list will bring into being the real directing force of the congress, consisting of twenty-five members representing five great powers of the world.

It will be this supreme council of the great powers which will guide and shape the deliberations and results of the entire congress, and, while all the other powers will later have a full hearing and a voice, it will be the great powers which will initiate and direct the general conduct of affairs.

The personnel of the French delegation is recognized as exceptionally strong, combining the political, diplomatic, financial, economic, and military sagacity of France. The appointment of Jules Cambon is particularly gratifying to the American delegation, owing to his intimate knowledge and sympathy with American affairs, resulting from his long service as French Ambassador in Washington.

M. Cambon, with M. Pichon, the Foreign Minister, will represent the diplomatic strength of the delegation. Louis Klotz, besides being Minister of Finance, is recognized as the financial leader of the French Parliament. Captain Tardieu furnishes the economic authority, and is familiar with both French and American economic conditions.

The Premier of Serbia has officially notified the French Foreign Minister that the Jugoslav representatives at Versailles will be Nikola P. Pachitch, former Premier of Serbia; Dr. M. R. Vesnitch, former Serbian Minister of Finance, and M. Trumbitch, President of the Dalmatian Diet.

La Liberté today says it understands that Great Britain will have three special delegates for each of its dominions, including Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa. The newspaper asks why the French protectorates of Morocco, Tunis, and possibly Algeria, have no special representation.

War Council Meeting Is Deferred.

PARIS, Jan. 9.—The meeting of the Supreme War Council which had been set for the end of this week is likely to be deferred a few days because of the absence of some of the principal members.

THE ABERDEENS VINDICATED

District Attorney Strikes All Allegations from the Records.

It was announced at the District Attorney's office yesterday that evidence had been obtained completely vindicating the war charity work of Lord and Lady Aberdeen here and that District Attorney Swann had ordered stricken from the record all allegations against them.

The report was made by Lieut. Col. Norman Thwaitts, British Provost Marshal here who found no bases for questioning the acts of Lord and Lady Aberdeen.

said, however, that, with the general ideas of both the British and the French in their possession, confidence is expressed that a complete agreement may be expected on a plan that will embody practicable working means and regulation of relations between nations that will reduce to a minimum the chances of future wars.

A French protocol, proposing the exact procedure of the Peace Congress, was submitted to the American delegates at about the same time the French delegates were named today. It is now being studied, and it is noted by the American delegates that several of their suggestions have taken form in the French program. The protocol deals with the organization of the congress, the representation of great and small powers, and the general order of procedure. It will not become effective until passed upon by President Wilson and the Premiers of France, Great Britain, and Italy, who constitute a sort of executive council, which later will grow into a supreme council of the great powers when the full delegations are appointed.

The conferences throughout today showed a growing driving power. In addition to the conferences that President Wilson had with Premier Orlando and Foreign Minister Sonnino and others, Premier Clemenceau spent some time at American headquarters, and was followed there by Premier Venizelos of Greece. Premier Venizelos has presented a written memorandum of Greek aspirations, and is supplementing it with vigorous personal efforts.

While the delay in the arrival in Paris of Premier Lloyd George may postpone the meeting of President Wilson and the Entente Premiers and the opening session of the Interallied Conference, yet the conferences going on and the appointment of a delegation of the great powers are giving the Peace Congress the aspect of a going organization.

The question has arisen of how long the Peace Congress will wait for the Central Powers to arrange their Governments. It is pointed out by some of those working on the problem that neither Germany nor Austria can complete its governmental machinery until it is determined what the two peoples desire in this matter. This is, of course, largely dependent on the Peace Congress, but it is not expected that the Congress will wait indefinitely for the Central Empires to prepare themselves for an agreement.

There is always the possibility that if no responsible Governments appear to give assurance that obligations undertaken will be carried out, the nations represented at the Congress may give notice that it has become necessary, at certain points, to assist in the formation of orderly Governments and at the same time begin to collect revenues to apply on the bill of damages.

Such action, if taken at all, would be only a last resort, but, if taken, the question would arise as to how far the United States would participate. No official outline has been made to show what the United States would agree to do in carrying out such an undertaking, if it should become necessary, but some of those best informed as to the lines along which Mr. Wilson and the Peace Commissioners are working believe that it is the purpose of the United States to go no further into the readjustment of European affairs than to obtain general adherence to the principles already laid down by President Wilson, and then expect, of course, the details to square with the principles. The execution of these details, some diplomats believe, may extend into a work of years, developing into a process of "constant improvement and adjustment."

Associations founded in various allied countries to study the problem of a League of Nations will hold a joint meeting in Paris on Jan. 26, the Temps says. Lord Robert Cecil will represent Great Britain at the meeting and Léon Bourgeois will represent France.

ATTACK BANKING PROPOSALS

Senators Against Suggested Changes in Reserve Law.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Opposition of various Senators on the ground that it would permit unsafe banking prevented the Senate taking up for consideration today legislation introduced at the suggestion of the Federal Reserve Board making certain changes in the management of Reserve banks.

One section proposed would permit the banks to use their earnings to increase their surplus until it reached 100 per cent. of the capital stock instead of 40 per cent., as now prescribed, while another would authorize the board to permit reserve banks to discount notes with certain limitations to the extent of 20 per cent. of their capital instead of 10 per cent. as the law now provides.

"This seems to be another step in the progress of inflation," said Senator Borah of Idaho. Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, in charge of the measure, replied that he doubted that.

"From casually reading the bill," interjected Senator Smoot, "I think it would provide for very poor banking business. I belief it would be unwise and unsafe banking to allow a bank to loan 20 per cent. of its capital and surplus to any one individual or corporation."

Senator Swanson of Virginia favored the placing of a time limit on the measure so as to meet the present emergency. Senator Pomerene of Ohio declared certain provisions in the measure would permit "vicious banking."

BRITISH OCEAN FLIGHT PLAN

Daily Mail Says It Contemplates a Group Crossing Next Spring.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The Daily Mail is able to announce that several airplanes are under construction in different parts of Great Britain with the Air Ministry to is planning to attempt a transatlantic flight.

The Daily Mail says the Air Ministry is less anxious to demonstrate that a single machine can fly across the Atlantic than that a group of machines of various types can do so. Consequently machines of more than one type are under construction in anticipation of their flying across next Spring.

SECRETARY LANE IS HOST.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—A number of dinners were given this evening. Vice President and Mrs. Marshall were guests of Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Franklin K. Lane. Swiss Minister and Mme. Sulzer entertained in compliment to the Japanese Ambassador and Viscountess Ishii. Ex-Russian Ambassador M. George Bakhmeteff and Mme. Bakhmeteff were the guests at the home of Mrs. Edson Bradly. Other dinner hosts of the evening included Mr. and Mrs. John Lord O'Brian, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Kimball, and Mr. and Mrs. William McC. Ritter.

Dinner for Secretary Lane.

Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane will be the guest of honor and principal speaker at a dinner to be given tonight in the Astor in connection with the national conference on Americanization. The dinner, which is to be tendered to Secretary Lane by Frank Trumbull, Felix M. Warburg, and George Gordon Battle, will be attended by more than a thousand persons interested in the problem of Americanization of the country's foreign population. Felix Warburg will preside, and the speakers, in addition to Secretary Lane, include Frank Trumbull, Chairman of the National Americanization Committee; F. C. Butler, who is to represent Secretary Lane in dealing with organizations that are to carry out a program he will outline in his address; Arthur S. Somers, President of the Board of Education, and George Gordon Battle.

Lieut. Lowell Mason Weds Dancer.

Lieutenant Lowell Mason of the firm of Theodore L. Bronson & Co., 10 Wall Street, and Mrs. Dorothy J. Martin were married hastily in Ithaca, N. Y., on Wednesday. TRADE SCHOOL AT CAMP DIX

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP DIX, WRIGHTSTOWN, N. J., Jan. 9.—A Government trade school for soldiers crippled in battle was organized today in connection with the overseas convalescent centre at Camp Dix commanded by Major Harry L. Twaddell. At the same time plans were announced at camp headquarters to greatly increase the size of the convalescent centre in the camp to relieve congestion among convalescent patients at the base hospital, where a thousand overseas men, mostly from New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania, are now under treatment.

The school will be an experiment in development work for wounded men. War Department officials will inspect it early in the week and if satisfied with its practicability will extend the system to other convalescent stations. Many of the methods that have proved most successful in the Canadian reconstruction work will be incorporated in the system here.

The aim of the school will be to provide wounded and crippled men with new occupations if war has unfitted them for their old work. The War Department has announced that a soldier may return after he is actually discharged from the service and complete his training course at the school. Lieutenant Carl Lellmaker of Buffalo, N. Y., in charge of the school organization, announced that the initial courses will include stenography, typewriting, auto repairing, shoe repairing, tailoring, printing, telegraphy, and wireless. The army Y. M. C. A. and the Quartermaster's Department will furnish teachers.

Plans for Gen. Bell's Funeral.

It was announced at Governors Island last night that no arrangements had yet been made for the funeral of Major General J. Franklin Bell, commanding the Department of the East, who died on Wednesday in the Presbyterian Hospital of heart disease. It was said that the details probably would be made known today. The General was to have been the guest and principal speaker at a dinner of the Kentucklans, of which he was a member, at the Plaza last night. The dinner has been indefinitely postponed.

CECIL WOULD FORM PEACE LEAGUE FIRST

Indispensable as Initial Step at Versailles Conference, Says British Delegate.

ARMAMENT A BIG PROBLEM

Nations Not Willing to Disarm Until Sure of Peace and Justice Through Co-operation.

PARIS, Jan. 8, (Associated Press.)—Lord Robert Cecil, who has arrived here with the first section of the British peace delegation, expressed the opinion to The Associated Press today that the definite organization of a League of Nations was indispensable as a first step toward the conclusion of an enduring peace and a satisfactory settlement of international problems which had arisen out of the war. He made it clear that his statements were personal views, and not an attempt to give the views of the British Government.

"In my opinion, a League of Nations is necessary as the initial step in the peace negotiations," said Lord Robert. "It is not only necessary to insure peace, but also for the proper treatment of many international questions which must be considered by the Peace Congress. Joint international action in an organized and recognized form is necessary in order to relieve millions of people who are at this moment destitute of food and other necessaries of life, owing to the unsettled condition of the world; to regulate permanently many vital common interests, such as international railways, ports, waterways, telegraph and wireless, the use of the air, public health, and the protection of women and juveniles in industry; and to discharge adequately and justly the responsibilities of the great civilized nations in such a great matter as the protection and guidance of backward peoples.

"It is the sum of all these recognized joint activities, interests, and responsibilities that we call by the name of 'League of Nations.' It is our business to give this league definite form here and now."

Lord Robert made it clear that he had little sympathy with the view that the Peace Congress might drift into a prolonged session which would ultimately become a League of Nations without being definitely and positively organized.

"I agree that this congress must regard itself as the first regular meeting of the nations forming the league," he said, "but I think it would be a dangerous policy to let the Peace Congress drift along aimlessly, without reaching a positive organization of a League of Nations. Leaving things open is hazardous and gets one nowhere. This impresses me as being a time for the creation of a body which will be effectively organized and not allowed to drop into inaction. We are, moreover, anxious not to commit the democratic peoples to responsibilities they are not prepared, deliberately and consciously, to accept. It is, therefore, important to avoid vagueness and to define our policy clearly and openly."

Asked how far armaments can be limited by a League of Nations, Lord Robert replied:

"That, in my opinion, is probably the most difficult problem the Peace Congress will face. Before national governments had effective police organizations it was impossible to prevent individuals from carrying arms to protect themselves against outlawry. Laws against the carrying of firearms could not be enforced until the necessity for carrying them ceased to exist. So it is with the league. Individual nations will hardly be willing to disarm until they are sure of peace and justice through the operation of the league. Moreover, how can any limitation of armaments be actually enforced? What assurance can we have, for instance, that Germany will not create an army more or less secretly?

"The world did not know how extensively Germany was preparing for war. She might develop another force under the guise of militia. These are the difficulties we have to face, but we must endeavor earnestly to secure cooperation between the powers represented at the Peace Congress in a broad policy of demobilization, which will correspond to the yearnings of all peoples to be relieved as soon as possible from the burdens they have borne for these last four and a half years."

When asked if the conditions were the same with naval forces, Lord Robert replied in the affirmative.

"Nations do not build navies for offensive purposes," he said. "They build them for defensive purposes, for police duties. Here again is a great scope for co-operation and arrangement between the powers represented at the Peace Congress."

H. W. Baker's Will Filed.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 9.—The will of Hiram W. Baker of the H. W. Baker Linen Company of New York, who died recently at Scarsdale, was filed here today. The estate is valued at approximately $500,000. Nine-tenths of the estate, with the exception of a sufficient amount to produce an annuity of $125 a month, is bequeathed to the widow, Jessie F. Baker, with the proviso that when their son Arthur becomes of age the property is to be divided equally between mother and son. The executors are instructed to set aside a sufficient amount to pay Ella May Baker $125 a month for her lifetime, "in accordance with an agreement to pay her that sum."

ITALY RECONQUERING HER AFRICAN COLONY

All the Coast Towns of Tripolitana Have Submitted to Her Troops.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Jan. 8.—Although all the other allied nations are now done with fighting, Italy still has a grave task to accomplish the reconquest of her colony in Tripolitana, in Northern Africa. In April, 1915, the Italians, under pressure of an enemy well armed and organized by Turkish officers, were obliged rapidly to abandon all the most important towns with the exception of Tripoli, and only 125 square miles of the country remained in their power.

Although General Ameglio asked for reinforcements, these were denied him, as it was thought best by the Supreme Command that all forces be kept on the Italian front. This had disastrous political results, as the Italians had their prestige imperilled among the natives through their retirement.

The Italians are now rapidly and gallantly reconquering what was lost, as is shown by an official communique that has been published. All the coast towns have fallen, many voluntarily asking for Italian intervention and for a just government.

KADISH, IN RUINS, HELD BY AMERICANS

Our Troops Burn North Russian Village, Retire, Then Occupy It Again.

ARCHANGEL, Jan. 7, (Associated Press.).—Activities were renewed by the American and Allied forces on the Kadish front yesterday.

According to incomplete reports to headquarters here the Americans burned the village of Kadish, retired from it and then went forward and reoccupied the ruins.

OUR MEN IN RUSSIA AT FOCH'S DEMAND

SHOWS LA FOLLETTE WRONG

Reviews Red Policy to Prove Lenine and Trotzky Were Co-operating with Germany.

BORAH IS NOT CONVINCED

Idaho Senator and Others Criticise Intervention—Plea That Czechs Be Not Abandoned.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—For three hours the Senate devoted itself today to a debate on Russia, with Senator Hitchcock, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, defending the Administration for keeping American soldiers there to fight the Bolsheviki, and other Senators sharply attacking its policy.

Senator Hitchcock told the Senate that General Foch was responsible for the allied troops being at Archangel and along the Murman coast. The troops were required there, he said, not only to protect huge stores of allied ammunition, but to keep open a way of escape for American diplomatic representatives in Petrograd. Troops were needed off the Murman coast to prevent the Germans from attempting to carry through their schemes to establish a submarine base there.

Senator Borah of Idaho insisted that the President had switched in his policy toward Russia. He deplored what he characterised as a suppression of information as to the real situation in Russia. The Senator wanted the American troops withdrawn and Russia to be allowed to work out her own problem.

Senator Nelson of Minnesota expressed the view that Germany's influence in Russia was on the wane and that the Trotsky-Lenine Government would soon fall, after which Russia would likely establish a democratic monarchy fashioned after that of Great Britain.

Senator France of Maryland declared that the United States had no more right to invade Russia than had Germany to invade Belgium.

Hitchcock Defends Wilson's Course.

Senator Hitchcock opened the debate by saying that the Administration had been criticised, first, because it did not yield to the urgent desire of Great Britain and France to enter Russia with a large force, to establish or re-establish, an eastern front against Germany, and later because it had sent soldiers into Russia.

"These attacks, coming from directly opposite directions, indicate the embarrassment that confronted President Wilson in deciding what policy to adopt," said the Nebraska Senator.

The Lenine-Trotzky Government, he went on to say, was "far more prominent than any other in Russia because it was in the great centre and held Petrograd, the capital, and Moscow, the ancient city of Russia, and some of the other industrial centres, and because it was recognized by Germany, the only nation which has recognized it as a national Government."

Referring to Senator LaFollette's statement in the Senate a few days ago that the Bolshevist Government was not pro-German, Senator Hitchcock continued:

"I do not see how that can be believed by any one who has read the history of the last year. Lenine and Trotzky got into Russia by the grace of Germany. There is very substantial reason for believing and considerable evidence to prove that Lenine and Trotzky operated with German credit. Certainly in everything that they have done they have carried out the will of Germany.

"They signed with Germany a treaty which practically gave Germany everything she asked for, including a large sum of money which they had already begun to send to Germany, when the nations fighting Germany put a stop to it. They established in Petrograd a German Ambassador, and Russian and other travelers who have come to this country from Russia have told me that he rules virtually as a King in Petrograd.

"Not only that, but this Lenine-Trotzky Government has driven out of Russia every representative of every civilized country on the face of the earth, including our own, and today, except for the German representative in Petrograd, there is not a single representative of any nation in the world except perhaps of Switzerland, and he is in jail.

"To say under those circumstances either that there is a national Government in Russia or that it is not pro-German seems to me to be going entirely too far."

Senator Hitchcock produced a photograph which, he said, he had procured from the State Department, showing Russian soldiers gathered in a group together with German officers in uniform.

The Situation in Siberia.

He related the uprising of the Czechoslovaks against Russia, and said the Lenine-Trotzky Government had released German prisoners in Russia "to annihilate this Czechoslovak army." The 50,000 or 60,000 Czechoslovaks, he said, having abandoned the Austrian Army, were bent on fighting for their own national integrity. They intended, if possible, to go through Russia, reach Vladivostok, cross the Pacific to North America, and from there go to the western front in France, "to continue the war for liberty upon which they had entered."

"This Czechoslovak army stood in Russia as the one organized body to fight Germany as we were fighting Germany," he went on. "Russia, which had ceased to be a nation, and over which anarchy and civil war were spreading, was the battleground upon which Germany must be fought, and here were 50,000 or 60,000 men trying to wage that war.

"Under those circumstances Great Britain and France were urgent that America should do her part in entering by way of Vladivostok on the Pacific Ocean and making safe the long line of communication, 5,000 miles, to the Ural Mountains in Russia. What was to be done? Was the President to ignore that body of Czechoslovaks? Was he to refuse entirely the request of the nations that we were in co-operation with? Was he to permit the Germans absolutely to get control of Russia and use it as an instrument in the war? It seems to me he could do nothing less than he did do.

"He finally consented that a small force of Americans, 10,200, should be landed at Vladivostok in connection with the Japanese, British, and French forces there, and not only take possession of the great stores which had come from America—stores and munitions—but also undertake to perfect this long line of communication so that the Czechoslovaks could either get out and get to France, or, if they remained there to fight, have supplies brought to them.

"We landed 10,000 men and the Japanese landed a much larger force, which they have since been reducing. The effect of that landing was to put a stop to the organisation of German prisoners, of whom there were 58,000 in that part of Siberia. It made it impossible for them to capture Vladivostok. It restored to a more or less perfect extent that long line of communication and today, for over 5,000 miles from Vladivostok to the neighborhood of the Ural Mountains, that line of communication is in more or less constant operation.

"It is idle to say under those circumstances that the 10,000 men we sent in and the small body of Japanese and British sent in could have subjugated that whole country. They went in as allies and friends of all that part of Russia. They did not go in as conquerors and they do not leave there as conquerors today. There is a local government functioning at Vladivostok in entire harmony with the allied troops that are there, and at Omsk, too."

"May we assume from the Senator's argument that if it were not for German influence in the Russian situation there would be no occasion for our remaining in Russia?" asked Senator Borah.

"That is my judgment," replied Mr. Hitchcock. "The German danger is the real cause of our being there."

"Then I assume that we must be there by authority of General Foch?" suggested Mr. Borah.

"Undoubtedly," assented Mr. Hitchcock. "He insists, I understand, on maintaining the statement that is there in fact, he is anxious to have more done. We are there under the authority of the United States, in co-operation with the other forces of which Foch is the Generalissimo."

Senator King of Utah understood, he said, that the United States and allied troops were conducting only a defensive campaign along the Murman coast.

"Does that mean that the Czechoslovaks will be abandoned to their fate?" asked Mr. Thomas of Colorado.

"I am afraid that is the situation, although I would not want to go that far," admitted Mr. King. "I sincerely hope the allied Governments will not abandon the Czechoslovaks. I think it would be cowardice. We cannot find a strong enough term to characterize such cowardice."

"The trouble is, we cannot get the real facts," complained Mr. Borah. "Men who have spent months in Russia come back not permitted to tell what they know. They have a feeling that we do not understand the situation; that all the facts with reference to the Soviet Government have not been given; that the Russian people very largely support the Soviet government, who are not permitted to state the facts to the American people. If the Soviet Government represents the Russian people, if it represents 90 per cent. of the Russian people, I take the position that the Russian people have the same right to establish a socialistic state as we have to establish a republic."

Senator Nelson expressed the belief that Russia would, before long, settle her own affairs by overthrowing the Bolsheviki and casting off the German influence from her Government.

"The Bolshevist Government cannot longer lean upon Germany or receive material support from it," said Senator Nelson. "It will soon be an Ishmaelite among the enlightened nations of the world, and soon the mass of the Russian people will become weary and sigh and labor for something better."

FAVOR BIG ALLIED ARMY OR NONE IN RUSSIA

Opinion in North Said to be Unanimous as to Policy Needed There.

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Tribune Company.

ARCHANGEL, Jan. 7, (via Paris, Jan. 9.)—Every man in Northern Russia, where there are a thousand clashing opinions, is at least clear on one point—there are only two possible courses the allied conference can take regarding the future Russian policy. Either America and the allied armed forces must withdraw from occupied territory or sufficient armies must be sent to give a guarantee of protection and a fighting nucleus for anti-Bolshevist Russians.

Power and brute force still count here, and if the Allies decide to intervene they must make up their minds that only by serious tests of force and power will they succeed. With big visible bodies of troops as guarantees of success, anti-Bolsheviki all over Russia—and that is 99 per cent. of the nation—will flock to the allied colors and hundreds of thousands of tons of food would establish a new Government.

To take Petrograd might not be difficult from a military point of view, but it would mean that Petrograd, with a swollen population of 4,000,000, would have to be fed from the first day of occupation. If the facts are looked squarely in the face, it must be recognized, that intervention would be real war, and that Russia is a country of great distances, tremendous potential power and wealth and made up of strange peoples.

There is needed some clear, definite Russian policy and the determination to carry it through. If we decide to intervene it would be the height of folly not to go in strong; if we decide that Russia shall work out her own internal affairs we must get out and find new ways to help. Certainly, there is nothing to be gained by half-baked policies. The Russians want us to remain because they fear the Bolsheviki, but if they did not feel we held out vague promises of big forces of intervention they would wish us gone. No matter how much tact and diplomacy—and there has been no extraordinary amount of either shown—it cannot possibly prevent constant irritations and small squabbles between the local civilian and the foreign military authorities.

POLES WARNED BY ALLIES.

Will Be Aided Only When Country Is United Internally.

WARSAW, Jan. 8.—As a result of interviews which Ignace Jan Paderewski had had with General Pilsudski, Paderewski has agreed to form a new cabinet, provided the Socialists now holding places in the Ministry withdraw from their predominating position. General Pilsudski expressed himself as not wishing to use his authority to force the withdrawal of these Socialists.

Paderewski is working hard and making appeals to patriotism. He declares that he himself is willing to sacrifice every ambition if only a Cabinet can be formed which the Allies can recognize and extend aid to with safety to themselves, as they fear that a certain sort of cabinet would lead to headlong Bolshevism.

General Pilsudski and other leaders are being told very plainly that the Allies will help only when Poland is internally united.

UNION LEAGUE TO STUDY BOLSHEVIST MOVEMENT

Appoints Committee to Act Promptly—Honors Roosevelt in Resolution.

The Union League Club, at its annual meeting last night, appointed a committee to study the Bolshevist movement, determine on a course of action for the club, and report at the earliest possible moment. The committee consists of Archibald E. Stevenson, Theodore F. Sanxay, Robert C. Morris, William D. Murphy, and the Rev. Charles A. Eaton.

A resolution offered by William D. Murphy on the life of Theodore Roosevelt was adopted at the meeting. The resolution recited the achievements of the ex-President and paid tribute to his many qualities.

"First and last and all the time Theodore Roosevelt was a true American," the resolution read. "His life illustrated that spirit of equality, the essence of that Republicanism which is, in turn, the living principle of true democracy."

In conclusion the resolution said: "Therefore, be it resolved, That we, the members of the Union League Club, in annual meeting assembled, hereby place upon the records of the club this expression of high appreciation of the life and character of our late fellow member, that patriot par excellence, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, ex-President of the United States."

General John J. Pershing was elected an honorary member of the club. Charles E. Hughes was re-elected President, Henry C. Quinby Secretary, and Gates W. McGarrah Treasurer. The newly elected Vice Presidents comprise Henry W. Hayden, Charles A. Fowler, Gilbert G. Thorne, and W. L. Lincoln Adams. The new members elected are James M. Beck, Will H. Hays, Frederick F. Small, Charles L. Baldwin, Robert W. Higbie, J. Walter Spalding, S. Frederick Telleen, Samuel Bird, Jr., and George C. Comstock.

TELLS OF GERMAN INSURANCE SCHEME

SAYS WAR ENDED THE PLOT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The German propaganda investigation being made by the Senate Committee of which Senator Overman of North Carolina is Chairman, today disclosed the efforts made in 1916 by the then Ambassador Bernstorff and Dr. H. F. Albert, on behalf of the German Government, to gain control of the marine war risk insurance business of the United States, the evidence of these activities being supplied by the Department of Justice and read into the record by A. Bruce Bielaski, Chief of the Department's Bureau of Investigation.

Mr. Bielaski said the Germans planned to organise a great American company to handle the German business during the period of the war. The company was to have a directorate of dummies. Some of the best known men of German blood in this country were suggested for the "formal ownership" of the concern. The American company was to be called the Republic Insurance Company. The two German concerns principally concerned were the Mannheimer and Nord Deutsche Insurance Companies.

When the war started in 1914, Mr. Bielaski said, Franz Herrmann, an enemy alien, was the head of Herrmann & Co. of New York, and was the New York representative of the Mannheim and Norddeutsche companies of Germany. Two pools were formed in Germany for aiding friendly shipping in other countries, and early in 1916 Wade Robinson, a member of Herrmann's firm, went to Germany for a conference with the insurance powers there. Previously, Dr. Albert had notified the Department of the Interior in Berlin that he had deposited $500,000 in the Merchants and Metals National Bank and a like sum in the Chase National Bank to the credit of Herrmann & Co. as the representatives of the Mannheim and Norddeutsche interests in this country.

About this time, said Mr. Bielaski, Albert and Bernstorff began to realize that the United States was probably going into the war, and the idea of an American company to secretly look after and hold German business during the war was born. The company was to have a capital of $2,000,000. Bernstorff and Albert circularized confidentially certain interests in South and Central America in behalf of the German companies. They also communicated with some well-known persons in the United States regarding the proposition.

Idea Suggested by Herrmann.

The formation of the American Company, which was to have been known as the Republic Insurance Company, was the original suggestion of Herrmann. In a letter to Albert, Herrmann suggested that the company be "established at a nominal expense by securing dummy directors," men, he said, who could be trusted. Among the names mentioned in the memorandum to Albert, Mr. Bielaski testified, were those of Mr. Reisinger, Mr. Nagel, Mr. McHugh, Mr. Wing, Mr. Pavenstedt, Mr. Edenhorn, Mr. Horwits, and Mr. Chandler.

The Government is also in possession of two Hungary official memorandums of the German Government inquiring as to the proposed formation of an American company. The official who wrote the letter wanted to know if it was possible "through the election of shareholders to keep secret the fact that the deal concerns a German foundation, &c."

In furtherance of a plan to gain the support of prominent Americans, among them some of the best known financiers in New York, a letter was addressed to members of certain banking firms on April 25, 1916. The letter, signed by Dr. Albert, introduced "Dr. Paul Wolf, the representative of the Nortdeutsche and Mannheimer Insurance Companies," and asked preferential support of the German insurance companies. The war with the United States came and the formation of the American company was not realised.

Mr. Bielaski said that on April 10, 1917, four days after Congress declared war, there was formed the corporation of O. G. Orr & Company, Inc., the members of which, he said, were O. G. Orr, C. E. Dean, J. S. Wall, Wade Robinson and F. H. Osborn, all of whom, he added, were former partners in Herrmann & Company. Mr. Herrmann was the only member of the old firm left out of the new one. On July 26, 1917, Mr. Orr, he said, issued a statement that the new firm was neither directly nor indirectly connected with F. Herrmann of F. Herrmann & Company, and that "there are no German interests whatever in the companies represented by O. G. Orr & Company, Inc."

Mr. Bielaski said Mr. Orr had been interviewed by Government officials and had admitted that Herrmann had loaned the new firm $50,000. During the time Orr was with Herrmann & Co. his salary, said Mr. Bielaski, was between $1,000 and $2,000 a year, the other members receiving smaller sums.

"When Orr & Co. was organized," said Mr. Bielaski, "Orr's salary was fixed at $6,000 a month, and the present salaries of the members of the firm are: Orr, $6,000; Osborn, $6,000 monthly; Wall, $4,000 per month, and C. E. Osborn, $4,000 per month. Orr admits that in June, 1918, he personally loaned Herrmann $40,000, which amount he raised by subscribing it himself, and his associates in proportion, to the capital stock each one held in Orr & Co. Again, in September, 1918, Orr admits that he personally delivered to Herrmann $40,000, which he also stated was a loan, but for which he took no note or certificate of indebtedness."

Dr. von Mach Examined.

Dr. Edmund von Mach, formerly of Germany and Boston, but now a farmer in Maine, was on the stand more than three hours. He was subjected to a severe cross-examination by Major Humes and Senator Pelton. The whole room was convulsed when he told Senator Nelson that he found it hard to understand how a man with such a kind face could ask so many embarrassing questions.

Dr. von Mach said he became a citizen in November, 1914, after a residence of more than twenty-three years in the United States, the main reason being his admiration of the American Constitution. He stated that since the United States entered the war he had utilized much of his time in keeping track of public officials who might be inclined to violate their oaths to maintain the Constitution. Among the violations he discovered, according to Dr. von Mach, were alleged ill-treatment of enemy aliens on Ellis Island, the sending of American troops to Russia, and the breaking off of diplomatic relations with Germany by President Wilson without getting the consent of Congress.

When Dr. von Mach, in answer to a question regarding the atrocities committed by the Germans in Belgium, mentioned Herrman's march to the Marne, having also been a very cruel expedition, Senator Nelson flared up.

"Don't you insult this committee," thundered Senator Nelson, "by even intimating that American soldiers ever killed women and children. Whatever they did, they did not do that."

Dr. von Mach described himself as a successfully gagged author who is now a farmer. He pointed out that he was related by marriage to the late Secretary of the Navy, John D. Long, and said that his reason for journeying from Maine to Washington was to defend himself against the attacks which had been made before the committee on his loyalty and honor as an American citizen. He said he came prepared to answer any and all questions.

He declared that he never received one penny of German Government money. He said he had condemned the sinking of the Lusitania, but not the invasion of Belgium, although he thought that invasion "was the greatest mistake Germany made."

"You regret it because it was a military and tactical mistake—is that it?" Senator Nelson asked.

"My point of view is that you must investigate the whole problem. I am certain that none of you Senators believe that these alleged atrocities, if committed, were the acts of individual Germans."

American Troops in Philippines.

"Did you not write an article in which you said the atrocities committed in Belgium could not possibly be as bad as those committed by American troops in the Philippines?" Major Humes asked.

"I suppose you have a paper with something like that in it," the witness answered.

Dr. von Mach defended what he termed proper propaganda, and said President Lincoln maintained a vigorous propaganda machine in England during the civil war.

Asked if he condemned the execution of Miss Edith Cavell by the Germans, Dr. von Mach replied that he had always been opposed to the execution of women.

"Do you think we were wrong when we declared war on Germany?" Senator Nelson asked.

"I accepted the verdict of the sovereign American authorities."

Dr. von Mach remarked that many months ago he denounced the "balance of power" principle so long followed in Europe and advocated what he termed a policy of "in time of peace preparing to maintain peace."

"President Wilson," he added, "is now advocating those very things, and it makes my blood boil to read some of the things that are said about the President."

The witness referred at length to his activities as the head of the German Babies' Milk Fund. The committee collected about $11,000 for expenses, he said, and about $18,000 for the milk fund. The money, with the exception of about $1,000, was turned over to Bernstorff, he said, for transmission to Berlin, to be expended in relief work by the Kaiserin.

The witness, after certifying to the loyalty of German-Americans in the war, made an attack on the British Secret Service, as it was operated before April 6, 1917. He said the British had made a long list of Germans they suspected. When this country entered the war the United States Government was furnished with a copy of the list, and it became, he said, the nucleus of another somewhat similar list compiled by the American authorities. He suggested that the committee investigate the British Secret Service.

Dr. von Mach will be on the stand again tomorrow.

At the close of the afternoon session Roy D. Keehn, now an officer in the army, who formerly was general counsel to the Hearst papers in Chicago, read a statement in which he said that The Chicago Herald was bought by W. R. Hearst for $450,000. He said he wished to clear the record of any intimation that any brewers' money or Washington Times money was used in any connection with the purchase of The Chicago Herald by Hearst.

SOLDIERS GUILTY OF BIGAMY

Two Camp Upton Men Sentenced to Serve Two Years Each.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP UPTON, L. I., Jan. 9.—Convicted by court-martial of having contracted bigamous marriages two soldiers of this camp were today sentenced to serve two years each in prison and to be dishonorably discharged from the service. They are Private William L. McDonald, of Jeffersonville, Ind., who was a member of the Provost Guard, and Private Frank W. Faery of Company A, 42d Infantry, whose home is in Wilson, N. Y.

On Dec. 4 McDonald married a young woman in Patchogue. McDonald was also accused of perjury, because he swore before the Town Clerk in Patchogue that he had never been married before. Both men will be sent to Fort Jay, Governors Island, to serve their sentences.

To Investigate Convicts' Food.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 9.—Because of complaints by Sing Sing convicts of the poor quality of the food at the prison farm at Wingdale, Warden William Moyer of Sing Sing Prison began today an investigation of conditions at the farm. Several weeks ago there was a food strike at Wingdale, and though the strikers were sent back to Sing Sing there have been seven escapes recently and these are laid to dissatisfaction with the food.

Wealthy Merchant's Will Filed.

The will of George Skeffington Yuill, a wealthy merchant of Sydney, N. S. W., who died recently, was filed here yesterday by Herbert N. Lethbridge, one of the executors, who came to this country to claim exemption from the transfer tax on $1,320,000 in British Government bonds and $431,360 in cash deposited with J. P. Morgan & Co. The testator left several annuities to servants. More than $1,000,000 is left to the testator's daughter, Winifreda, Countess of Portarlington, and most of the remainder of the estate goes to her son, George Lionel Seymour Dawson Damer, the Viscount Carlow, who is now 6 years old.

PLAN LAWS TO KEEP OUT THE BOLSHEVIKI

Bills Proposed Would Bar Rush from Europe from Two to Four Years.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Legislation to curb immigration and exclude Bolshevist agitators of Europe from this country is now having serious consideration in Congress. The House Committee on Immigration today considered bills which prohibit immigration, except in a limited sense, for periods of two and four years, respectively, after the war.

The first of these measures is sponsored by Representative Lufkin of Massachusetts, and the other, fixing the period of prohibition at four years, was introduced by Representative John Burnett of Alabama, Chairman of the committee, who fought through Congress after a long struggle, a bill establishing a literacy test for immigrants, which recently became a law over President Wilson's veto.

Two influences are now operating in favor of the proposed legislation. The first is organized labor, which is opposed to the flow of poorly paid labor from Europe. The other influence represents students of sociology and Government officials versed in criminology, who assert that unless immigration is prohibited almost entirely, the United States will be invaded by Bolshevist agitators and that this country will witness conditions similar to those spreading through Europe. The attempt upon the lives of Philadelphia judges and police officials, recently, Mr. Burnett said, was the first appearance of the movement in this country.

All immigration except Government officials, skilled laborers, refugees from religious persecution, and returning soldiers is excluded by the bills now before the committee. There will be a formal hearing next Tuesday on these bills, when Frank Morrison, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor, Secretary of Labor Wilson, and others will be heard.

"There is a demand for some check on immigration, and it is coming from quarters which heretofore have favored the lightest restrictions," said Mr. Burnett. "One thing is sure; we cannot allow an influx of a million of untrained workers a year during our readjustment period. We should allow the people we have now to get settled back into normal life before taking in more.

"The shortness of man power abroad may affect the situation some, but not greatly. Foreign Governments may make things attractive for the people they want and let us take the dregs.

"The only way that this country can keep from its shores the Bolshevism flourishing abroad is to restrict immigration as indicated for a period of two years at least. I regard the passage of such laws as most necessary in this Congress, and I would like to see deported those aliens who withdrew their first naturalization papers in order to avoid military service."

Bolsheviki Denounce Government.

Before the adjournment of the Russian Bolsheviki Convention at Manhattan Lyceum in East Fourth Street, last night the principal business was denunciation of the Government of the United States for interference in Russian affairs, the attitude of this Government toward socialistic newspapers and the weakness of the American Constitution in having no provisions whereby work at high wages might be provided for all peoples, especially Bolsheviki who are not citizens of this country. A collection was taken up to establish newspapers to promote the incoherent plans of the delegates and to conduct schools for education according to their ideas of perfect government.

16,000 GO ON STRIKE AND TIE UP HARBOR

Navy Yard Tugs to Aid Transports.

While these official organizations were protesting that they would refuse to negotiate with each other, the Railroad Administration, the Police Department, the Commissioner of Plant and Structure, the Navy Department and other city and Government agencies were exerting every effort to run ferries and lighters, so that the population would not suffer for lack of food or fuel. Tugs were ordered out of the Navy Yard yesterday to handle all transports and ships coming from overseas with soldiers upon them, and the striking workers agreed to man enough boats to carry all the wounded to the Ellis Island hospitals.

Submarine patrols and other boats also were sent from the Navy Yard to aid in the transmission of the mails to Staten Island, Ellis Island, and other places that would have been cut off from communication by the strike.

Byron R. Newton, Collector of the Port, last night notified Captain Godfrey L. Carden, commander of the Coast Guards in this port, that if the army tugs were found insufficient to carry on the work of the army and navy in the harbor some of the privately-owned tugs would be commandeered and put into operation with sailors from the Pelham Bay naval training station or other sailors.

One of the reasons given by Mr. Newton for this order was that tugs were needed in the harbor to prevent collisions among the transports anchored off Quarantine as they started for their piers at Hoboken. It was said also that ships loaded with explosives in the lower harbor might be endangered if no patrols were in the harbor to see that ships did not drift from their anchorages. Officers of the Army Quartermaster Corps also advanced reasons for using soldiers and sailors in manning ships in the harbor to see that marine traffic was kept safe for incoming and outgoing army transports.

John H. Delaney, the Commissioner of Plant and Structure, was not notified by the workers on the municipal ferry boats plying from the Battery to Staten Island and Thirty-ninth Street, Brooklyn, that they intended to join the strike until midnight on Wednesday. He said yesterday he had been led to believe that these men would not leave their posts because they were working under the Civil Service rules, and the question of debarring these men from their privileges under the Civil Service act is now to be considered.

Police Operate a Ferry Boat.

The tying up of the Staten Island ferries left 20,000 persons with no other means of crossing the Bay to New York than rowboats, motor boats, and two small ferries crossing to Sixty-ninth Street, Brooklyn, and it was estimated that only about 1,000 were able to reach their work in Manhattan in that manner. Upon complaint of residents throughout Richmond that the strike had impeded the movement of milk and other food supplies to Staten Island, Commissioner Delaney early yesterday morning visited the headquarters of the Marine Workers' Affiliation at 26 Park Place to request that the operation of boats to carry food be permitted by the strikers. No action was taken upon this request until late in the afternoon, but Commissioner Delaney had already arranged with the engineers of the Marine Division of the Police Department, through Police Commissioner Enright, to operate a boat to Staten Island beginning at 6 o'clock last night.

Without any opposition, the police continued to operate this boat, carrying passengers and food on a schedule allowing about an hour for the round trip. Their first report to their commanding officers was that they had had difficulty in starting the engines because the men who had left the ferries had tightened up the machinery so that it failed to operate smoothly. Police boats and the police yacht Patrol plied back and forth between the Battery and Staten Island, preparing for the initial trip under police management. The officials of the marine unions agreed last night to operate boats to Staten Island today, carrying food and milk.

Two Lackawanna Boats in Use.

The Boat Owners' Association and the Towboat Exchange admitted that all their craft were tied up at their piers awaiting a settlement of the strike. Captain James M. Emery, of the Marine Department of the Lackawanna Railroad, however, managed to keep two ferryboats, out of a fleet of more than twelve, in operation throughout the day. He said he expected to have more running today. One boat was kept running to the foot of Barclay Street and the other made regular trips to the foot of West Twenty-third Street. Lines of trucks stretching for several blocks waited all day long for a chance to cross the river, and the crowds at all the ferryhouses were so large that the police reserves found work in quieting them.

The Lackawanna ferries continued plying throughout the night carrying newspapers, mail and food to New Jersey and returning with trucks of milk and other perishable food. Both of the ferryboats carried capacity loads every trip and stopped only long enough at intervals to take on fuel and oil. Hundreds of persons rode on them every trip.

Captain Emery denied a report credited to him by the union men that he had asserted that a fund of $1,000,000 had been collected to break the strike without acceding to the demands of the workers in the six unions.

As a result of this sudden stoppage of all ferries across the Hudson River to New Jersey promptly at 6 o'clock yesterday morning it was estimated that more than 20,000 commuters were inconvenienced, and many thousands remained in this city last night rather than brave the immense crowds that fought for accommodation in the tunnels of the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company. Every ferryboat, except the two of the Lackawanna Road, remained tied up, and one accommodating Captain who agreed to take one last load of soldiers across the Hudson from Edgewater to 130th Street for a holiday in the city was frustrated by the refusal of another ferryboat Captain on the New York side to back out of the slip for him. He had to take the disappointed soldiers back to New Jersey.

Officials of the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company said that they carried three times their ordinary daily average of passengers. It was reported also last night that the marine workers were seeking to enlist some of the workers of the company in a sympathy strike to gain quick settlement of demands. President Delahunty of the Marine Workers' Affiliation said that he knew that these men had a grievance. J. J. O'Brien, First Vice President of the Electrical and Street Railway Workers, denied that the men were considering any such action, and at the offices of the general manager of the company it was said that no intimation whatever of any such strike had been heard.

Cross River in Small Boats.

Hundreds of persons living in New Jersey crossed the river in rowboats and other craft last night to reach the street cars on the Jersey side so that they might reach their homes. Small boats that have been carrying visitors to the Atlantic fleet took up the business regularly last night, and although the river was rough no accidents in the passage were reported.

The city received its usual supply of milk and other food yesterday morning before the strike order went into effect at 6 A. M. Quickly realizing the seriousness of the situation, officials of the Railroad Administration began to rearrange their train schedules in order to get supplies into the city this morning. Trains carrying milk coming from Pennsylvania and New Jersey are ferried across the river every morning, and it was necessary to find some other way to bring the trains to the city so that the milk shortage would not become more acute.

As soon as the news of the strike order had been received the New York Central declared an embargo upon all freight except food, fuel, and milk, and cleared all its tracks to prepare to handle extra trafffic. Under orders from the Regional Director the New York, Ontario & Western Railroad and others bringing in trains of milk and other supplies instructed their operating departments to arrange schedules so that all milk and other food arriving at the Jersey shore on the Erie, the Lackawanna, the Jersey Central, and other roads could be run immediately up the West Shore line of the New York Central and thence across either the railroad bridges at Poughkeepsie or Albany to be brought down the New York Central and New Haven lines to the freight depots along the west side of Manhattan Island and in Harlem.

It was said at the offices of the Regional Director that the immediate food needs of the city were not urgent except in perishable foods, and that ample supplies would reach the city under the emergency measures. Neither was there a shortage of fuel, it was said, and officials expressed the opinion that the strike would be settled before much more than inconvenience had been caused. Several trains of supplies, including 171 cars of cattle were ordered back on the Erie lines to Buffalo last night to be brought to the city on the New York Central lines. The Regional Director also has ordered emergency measures to permit the use of the Pennsylvania tunnels by more passenger trains for commuters, and it is possible also that trains of food for Long Island may be transported through the tunnels.

Demands of the Workers.

The demands of all the six unions joining in the strike are for a general increase in pay varying with the grade of work and a recognition of an eight-hour day instead of a twelve-hour day as in effect now. The employers assert that while the working day is twelve hours it is one hour shorter than in Philadelphia and other ports on the Atlantic Coast and is in reality only eight hours of actual work, with the addition of meals free of charge.

In addition to the eight-hour day, time and a half for overtime and one day off a week, the men ask an increase of about 25 per cent. Hoisting engineers who receive now $4.50 for a ten-hour day ask for a general increase to $36 a week for an eight-hour day; pilots ask a raise from $179 a month to $225. Lighter Captains, receiving $3.50 to $3.75 a day, want $5.50 to $6 a day. Tidewater boatmen want a raise from $90 to $125, but are willing to work twelve hours. The marine engineers, who get $170 a month, want $225, and harbor boatmen seek an increase from $90 a month to $145. The unions and their representatives are:

Marine Engineers Benevolent Association, T. L. Delahunty, manager; Masters, Mates, and Pilots, Harbor No. 1, William A. Maher, manager; Harbor Boatmen's Union, Local 827, Paul A. Vacarelli, manager; Lighter Captains' Union, Local 996, Brooklyn, Stephen J. Condon, manager; Tidewater Boatmen's Union, Local 847, John Brennan, President; International Union of Steam and Operating Engineers, Local 379, Brooklyn, Alfred M. Sarrell, agent.

Attitude of the Boat Owners.

In a statement issued through his counsel, Joseph J. Glatzmayer, President of the New York Boat Owners' Association last night, said:

"We are in this fight to stay. It is high time to check Bolshevism, and we are prepared to do our part. We have no quarrel with our men. In the main they are thoroughly good fellows and we like them. But we have determined now and forevermore to have done with their present leaders.

"We do not intend to fight the unions as such. Our men have always been free to join the unions or stay out, and no discrimination has been practiced. The same freedom of choice will be accorded them in the future. But until these unions throw out the bunch that misleads them now they can have no audience with us.

"In the meantime a new Declaration of Independence has been signed by employers and employes. It creates a new agency to be known as the New York Harbor Conciliation Board. This board will be governed by twenty men, ten to be selected by the employers and ten by the employes. It has full power to fix wages and working conditions and to enforce its orders. By meetings to be held monthly or oftener, which will be open to everybody, it will offer a forum where any one with a grievance can be heard, and in this way we shall come to know and understand each other better. We believe it will be a big step in the direction of industrial peace.

"Through this board we plan, among other things, to foster sick benefit and old age pension funds, provide medals or other testimonials for acts of heroism, restore the Captains of our boats to their ancient positions of authority and dignity, and generally to make this Port of New York a model for every other port in the country to follow. In this respect, at least, the present upheaval is a blessing in disguise.

"Within the next twenty-four or forty-eight hours the Board of Conciliation will announce a new wage scale applicable to all marine harbor equipment not under governmental control."

Men's Overcoats

Hundreds of Stylish Coats at Prices That Are Creating Somewhat of a Furore

This event, perhaps the biggest single purchase of overcoats we've ever made, is the kind of opportunity a business man likes. It suits his sense of a good trade and delights his ideas of broad selection and desirable style.

$16.75 A small group, but a good one, made up of double breasted ulsters and ulsterettes. Belted and plain models. Particular attention is called to the way these coats are tailored.

$22.50 This group consists mainly of those much liked, dressy, double breasted skirted models, with velvet collars. Then there are regulation ulsters and a number of ulsterettes.

$27.50 Another group of double breasted skirted models, with either velvet or ulster collars. Also double breasted regulation models and the popular ulsterettes. A very exceptional group.

Gimbels Own Overcoats

$42.50 We have taken from our own coats a group of odds and ends, sample coats used for show purposes and others. Each is a high class coat or ulster, and the man who wants something ultra at a price would do well to look in on these.

RAILROADS ASK RATE GUARANTEE

PROPOSE CABINET OFFICER

STRIKES WOULD BE BANNED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The railroads' own plan for their future control, involving the creation of a Cabinet officer to be known as the Secretary of Transportation, who would take over the executive and administrative functions of the Interstate Commerce Commission, was presented today to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee by T. DeWitt Cuyler, Chairman of the Association of Railway Executives.

This plan, the principles of which were tentatively agreed to at conferences of the standing committee of the Association of Railway Executives in December, calls for private ownership and management of the railroads under strict Federal supervision. It includes compulsory Federal incorporation, Federal supervision of securities issues, Federal control of State as well as interstate rates, statutory guarantee of adequate earnings, and perpetuation in large measure of the unification effected under Government control. Labor troubles would be adjusted by the Government, strikes and lockouts being forbidden.

The program allows the roads to initiate rates, which would be subject to judicial review by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Regional commissions would be created to perform certain rate functions.

Problems to Be Solved.

The statement submitted says that the interests of the whole people demand that provision be made:

"(a) For adequate service and facilities to meet not only the present requirements but the growing and expanding needs of our population and of our domestic and foreign commerce.

"(b) For new and additional construction when justified by public convenience and necessity and for the elimination and prevent of waste in unnecessary and injudicious construction.

"(c) For the proper co-ordination of the carriers' lines, facilities, and organizations, and for the consolidation thereof under proper limitations whenever necessary in the public interest to meet and provide for the reasonable demands of our domestic and foreign commerce.

"(d) For the prompt and orderly co-ordination of the lines, facilities, and organizations of all carriers into a unified and continental system whenever required in the public interest, because of extraordinary national emergency or peril.

"(e) For a rate structure which will provide sufficient revenues and create sufficient credit to accomplish these purposes."

Statement of Principles.

To this end, says the statement, the following principles should be adopted:

"2. The power of regulation of the instrumentalities of interstate commerce as to all things substantially affecting them, including all rates, State and interstate, should be exclusively in the hands of the national Government; but these national functions should be administered through Governmental machinery or agencies responsive to the needs of and convenient to the people of the several States to the extent and the manner hereinafter suggested. State commissions should not be interfered with by the Federal act except so far as necessary to carry out the purposes herein mentioned.

"3. The Interstate Commerce Commission, which has heretofore been the sole Federal agency provided by law to deal with such matters, should be relieved from its executive and administrative duties except as to Federal valuation and as to accounting, and should act as a quasi-judicial body clothed with authority to pass upon all questions concerning the reasonableness and adequacy of rates and concerning discrimination coming before it on complaint of any party interested, or referred to it as hereinafter provided.

"4. A Department of Transportation should be created, the head of which should be known as the Secretary of Transportation. He should be a member of the President's Cabinet and should be vested with the following powers and duties:

"(a) To carefully observe the transportation needs and transportation facilities of the country, and, by suggestion and co-operation with the carriers, and, by recommendations from time to time to the Interstate Commerce Commission in respect to the necessity for rates and revenues adequate to provide and maintain the proper service and to create the credit required to meet the needs of the public for facilities, while at the same time protecting the just interests of employes, of owners, of shippers, and of the traveling public, to endeavor to insure the provisions of adequate transportation facilities for the real transportation needs of each situation. He should be charged with the responsibility of recommending from time to time to the President such measures and policies as in his opinion would promote the interests of the public and the adequacy of the transportation service:

"(b) If he finds that a carrier is at any time so congested or otherwise unable to properly handle its traffic, he should have power to distribute such traffic over other lines and routes on such terms as between the several carriers as he may find to be just and reasonable under the circumstances, subject in respect to such terms to appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission;

"(c) If he find it to be practicable and in the public interest, he should have power, in the event of the failure of the interested carriers to agree, to require the use of the terminals of any carrier by another or other carriers on such terms as he may fix as reasonable and just, subject to the right of appeal of any interested carrier to the Interstate Commerce Commission;

"(d) In case of serious national emergency, he should have power to direct that, during the continuance of such emergency, the carriers should co-ordinate their facilities and operations and operate their properties as a unified national system on such terms as he may find to be just and reasonable in the public interest. Proper provision should be made for just compensation to any carrier injured thereby.

"(e) If he find it necessary in order to provide adequately for the movement of traffic, he should have power to require any carrier to distribute its cars to other lines on such terms as he may deem just, subject as to such terms to an appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"(f) He should have power to require any carrier to distribute its cars among its patrons in accordance with their needs and the public interest in the same manner and to the same extent as the Interstate Commerce Commission is now by law authorized to do.

"5.—No new or branch lines of railroad or large and expensive terminals should be constructed unless a certificate of public convenience and necessity is first obtained from the Secretary of Transportation.

"6.—The executive and administrative functions of the Interstate Commerce Commission, except as to accounting and as to Federal valuation of railroad properties, should be transferred to the Secretary of Transportation.

The Matter of Rates.

"7.—The carriers should have the power to initiate rates, schedules of which should be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, with the Secretary of Transportation, and with the State commissions of the States in which the rates are applicable and through which the carrier operates; and, if not suspended as hereinafter provided, such rates should become effective thirty days after the same have been so filed, unless a shorter period is in special cases authorized by the Secretary of Transportation.

"It should be made the duty of the Secretary of Transportation to promptly consider the new rates so brought to his attention, and he shall either:

"(a) Approve the same, giving his reasons for such approval or

"(b) Permit the rates to go into effect without his specific approval or disapproval, or

"(c) Disapprove the same, giving his reasons therefor.

"In case he disapproves any rate or fails to specifically approve or disapprove it, he may suspend it for a period not exceeding sixty days and refer the same to the Interstate Commerce Commission for consideration and determination.

"8. The statute itself should provide the rule of rate-making, and should require that rates be not only what has been called reasonable, but adequate and sufficient to enable the carriers to provide safe, adequate and sufficient service, to protect existing investment and to attract the new capital necessary in the public interest, and, to that end, the statute should, among other things, specifically provide that the level of rates must properly reflect the cost of wages and all other expenses incident to the furnishing of transportation.

"9. Rates, whether approved or disapproved by the Secretary of Transportation, may by complaint be brought before the Interstate Commerce Commission for consideration, which should have power to pass upon the reasonableness and adequacy thereof, subject to the statutory rule in regard to rate-making, and, in any proceeding before it in respect to rates, the commission should give due consideration to any recommendations in respect thereto made to it by the Secretary of Transportation. Rates approved by the Secretary of Transportation should be presumed to be reasonable and proper until found otherwise by the commission.

"10. In any proceedings before it in respect to rates the Interstate Commerce Commission should have the power to prescribe minimum as well as maximum rates and to determine the relation of rates and differentials whenever necessary or appropriate to establish or maintain a rate structure or a relation or differential found by it to be just and proper.

"11. The statute should provide that existing rates, put into effect by the Director General of Railroads, should be continued in effect until changed by the Interstate Commerce Commission as provided by law or as provided in Paragraph 7 hereof.

"12. Any carrier should be given the right to complain of rates of another carrier in the same manner and to the same extent as a shipper might do.

Regional Commissions.

"13. The Interstate Commerce Commission, in order that matters within its jurisdiction may be dealt with more promptly and satisfactorily and with a fuller appreciation of all the circumstances and local conditions, should be directed to divide the United States into such number of regions as it may deem wise, and certify the number of regions and their boundaries to the President, who should appoint for each region a Regional Commission, which should be a board of primary jurisdiction, consisting of one member for each of the States embraced therein. The Regional Commissions should have authority to hear and determine all complaints in respect of matters within the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission arising in their respective regions, and to make reports thereon to the Interstate Commerce Commission, such reports during a fixed period to be subject to exceptions by an of the parties, as in the case of reports by Masters in Chancery. If no exception is filed within the time limited and it is not otherwise ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the orders and findings of the Regional Commissions should automatically go into effect. If there are exceptions, or the Interstate Commerce Commission considers the issues involved of sufficient importance to so order, a hearing should be had before it on such exceptions, or on the matters made subject to reconsideration by order of the commission, and the order of the commission should have the same effect as now provided by law in respect to its orders.

"14. Express rates should be dealt with in the same manner as freight rates. Contracts between express companies and railroad companies for division of express earnings should not become effective until approved by the Secretary of Transportation.

"15. Section 10 of the Clayton act should be so modified as not to unduly hamper the proper transaction of business.

"16. Existing laws should be so far modified as to authorize upon approval by the Secretary of Transportation as being in the public interest:

"(a) Acquisition by a carrier engaged in interstate commerce of the properties, stocks, or securities of another or other carriers; or consolidations and mergers of such carriers;

"(b) Agreements between carriers engaged in interstate commerce in respect to rates and practices;

"(c) The pooling of cars and other transportation facilities;

"(d) The division of earnings in connection with the elimination of unnecessary train service.

"All such agreements and arrangements should be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission and with the commissions of the several States whose traffic is affected as well as with the Secretary of Transportation and be open to public inspection.

Wages and Working Conditions.

"17. Continuity and regularity of transportation are absolutely essential to the public. Both the capital invested and the labor employed in transportation are therefore engaged in a business vitally affecting the public interest, and by engaging therein assume the implied obligation not unreasonably to impair or interrupt the movement of trains. Questions of wages and working conditions affecting individual railroads should be settled, if possible, by officers of the railroads and representatives of the employes. A board should be constituted, under the Secretary of Transportation, on which the employes, the employers and the public should have equal representation, with the duty and authority to investigate and report to the Secretary of Transportation on the merits of any controversy which the parties are unable to adjust arising in the railroad or other transportation service, either in regard to wages or in regard to conditions of service; and, pending such investigation and report and for a reasonable time thereafter, there should be no lockout by the carriers and no concerted action on the part of employes which would have the effect of interfering with or interrupting the orderly movement of the United States mail or interstate or foreign commerce. The scale of wages and the expense incident to any change in the conditions of service recommended in the report of such board, if put into effect, should be accepted and recognized in the making of rates as a legitimate expense of transportation.

"18. Provision should be made for the funding by the United States of indebtedness of carriers to it growing out of Federal control.

"19. There should be in the Federal Government the exclusive governmental power to supervise and authorize the issue of securities by railroad carriers engaged in interstate or foreign commerce or by holding companies controlling any such carrier.

"20. A system of Federal incorporation should be adopted into which should be brought all railroad corporations engaged in interstate or foreign commerce. Such system should be compulsory and not elective. It should preserve to corporations reincorporating under it, not only all of their contract rights and other assets of all sorts, but also (except as to any feature contrary to an act of Congress) their existing charter powers, and they should also possess the general powers conferred upon all corporations organized under the Federal act. The system of incorporation should provide a means of consolidation and merger for existing corporations engaged in interstate or foreign commerce, with the necessary power of condemnation; provided the Secretary of Transportation finds that such consolidation or merger is not contrary to the public interest and approves the same."

Questioned by Senators.

After Mr. Cuyler had read the statement he was examined at length. Hurried return of the roads to private management without intervening legislation would be disastrous financially, he said. He read a message sent on Dec. 21 to Walker D. Hines, Assistant Director General, opposing extension of the period of Federal Control, yet contending that before the roads were turned back time should be given for consideration of future plans.

Senator Cummins of Iowa asked: "If the Government guarantees a return on the invested capital, why cannot the people get the capital needed at the rate the Government pays for money?"

"I am familiar with the novel proposition you have in mind," replied Mr. Cuyler, alluding to the Cummins Government ownership scheme, "but I do not believe the people would be willing to purchase the roads and then surrender their operation."

Senator Smith of South Carolina, Chairman of the committee, asked Mr. Cuyler why the plan of control submitted by the railway executives was preferable to control by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Mr. Cuyler replied: "The Interstate Commerce Commission is already overburdened with work. The Secretary of Transportation would have the ear of the President at all times and could quickly convey the needs of the railroads."

Political Influence.

"Do you not fear he would be somewhat open to political influence?" asked Senator Smith.

"Not as much as might be supposed. A man taking a Cabinet position and given this task would undoubtedly rise to the occasion," was the answer.

Insistence was made by Mr. Cuyler that if the Interstate Commerce Commission were to be vested with the power of rate making delay must be eliminated. He remarked that a "time limit" would have to be placed on the commission.

"That might relieve us of the necessity of creating this new Cabinet office," Senator Smith commented. "I am rather of the opinion that, with such an officer changing every four years, we would create a condition under which we should never know a settled policy of regulation and control, especially as it now seems to be the custom to have decisions made more or less arbitrarily."

Mergers of railroads within the several regional divisions was something the American people would never "stand for," Mr. Cuyler declared. Senator Gore said this would be a "step backward."

"What effect do you think an immediate return of the roads without the passage of suitable legislation would have upon the properties?" asked Senator Smith.

"The effect would be disastrous," said Mr. Cuyler. "The roads owe the Government vast sums of money which were loaned on demand. I can't conceive of the Government exercising the right to call these loans on demand, but nevertheless the right exists. Then, again, the Government has taken over large quantities of the railroad securities, making it difficult for the roads to raise capital. And right here I want to take issue with the statement of Mr. McAdoo, the other day, that the railroads were not disposed to go along with the Government and co-operate during the twenty-one months' period of continued Federal control.

Asked to Take Unusable Cars.

"The Pennsylvania Railroad has appropriated $200,000,000 toward various projects proposed by the Government, out of which $80,000,000 has been spent," said Mr. Cuyler, who is a Director of the Pennsylvania. "The Government, last March, ordered large numbers of cars without even consulting the roads. The roads were asked to take these over, although they couldn't be used. For example, the Atchison was asked to take a type of gondola car which it could not use. The Pennsylvania was asked to take 1,000 fifty-five-ton cars, although our whole business has been built on the basis of seventy-ton cars. With this huge car order, involving $880,000,000—more than all the car trusts hitherto outstanding—the railroads find themselves everywhere with idle cars on their hands. That is a bad situation.

"If the roads were returned, could you manage some of the present rates?" asked Senator Townsend.

"No, not with wages and charges as at present. The Government must shortly raise rates."

"The Director General says he could lower them."

"So I read. I think he's mistaken. Even with increased rates for 1919, I think the roads will show a deficit."

The railroads were never in better condition than when taken over by the Government, said the witness, who said if the systems had possessed power of unification, &c., they could have "met the problem" better than the Government. He asserted: "If the Government had not had its large powers, including power to merge, I think it would have broken down."

Senator Townsend declared: "It seems to me you have devised a scheme that would protect the railroads and the employes, but have overlooked to some extent service to the public, which I regard as the chief object. This plan largely places the public at a disadvantage."

FOR EARLY RETURN OF ROADS.

Railway Business Association Asks Congress to Act Promptyl.

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—Prompt Congressional action to return the railroads to a modifield private control or the calling of a special session of Congress to enact such legislation if not done at the present session, is sought in resolutions adopted today at the annual meeting of the Railway Business Association.

The organization also favored the creation of a Secretary of Transportation, who shall exercise exclusive Federal rate regulation and operation by means of as numerous Federal corporations as the financial position and the stability of the various lines permit.

The resolutions ask that all roads co-operate with one another "so as to eliminate duplication of service and facilities and to secure the most efficient and economical use of routes, terminals and vehicles." Regulation by the Government only of maximum and minimum rates of carriers engaged in interstate commerce is favored.

CALDER ASSAILS SHIPPING BOARD

Insists That the Emergency Fleet Corporation Also Has Been a Failure.

WANTS REFORMS AT ONCE

Great Need Is Men in Authority Who Have Practical Experience in Shipbuilding.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Senator Calder, Republican, of New York, speaking today in the Senate, charged that the Shipping Board and the Emergency Fleet Corporation had operated in an unbusinesslike manner, with "apparent disregard for expense," and urged that Congress determine the board's general policies and limit the scope of its activities. Senator Calder is a member of the Senate Commerce Committee, which has been investigating shipbuilding for many months.

"The Shipping Board," declared Senator Calder, "has at no time been made up of men with a knowledge of shipping or shipbuilding problems. A very large part of the time and the energies of the Fleet Corporation have been given over to building up a great and cumbersome system of supervision, with reports and statistics on every conceivable subject connected with the work, rather than to the building of ships as an emergency measure.

Senator Calder said that he believed that much of the confusion and extravagance was due to the fact that shipping experts had not been in control of the vast enterprise. The situation, he asserted, "presents a problem to Congress which warrants their beginning at once an intimate study of our whole maritime problem."

Senator Calder opposed the purchase by the United States of the ships of the International Mercantile Marine merely because Great Britain also was bidding for them, and held that this country with the big shipbuilding plants constructed during the war should be able to build new vessels at lower cost.

He stated that he would fight the reported program of the Shipping Board for permanent control and operation of a Government-owned merchant marine. That plan, he said, would be expensive and inefficient. He was unalterably in favor of selling the ships to private interests who were capable of operating them in competition with maritime rivals.

"The figures I have quoted," said Senator Calder, after reviewing the situation in the yards of the United States, "indicate that, including the requisitioned contract steel ships and wooden cargo ships, when completed, the United States will have a net tonnage of 16,000,000 tons. This is exclusive of privately owned American ships, which will total about 4,000,000 deadweight tons.

Mr. Calder said that although the ships built by the Government had cost three times the peace-time price, he felt that a plan could be evolved to save the country great loss and obtain effective utilization by selling to private capital.

He went on:

"In the policy toward labor there has been practically no effort made to enforce ordinary discipline or to indicate to the workingmen generally that they were expected to render a fair return of work for the high wages paid. The records indicate that in many instances men being paid by the piece, with the possibility of making from $20 to $30 a day, did three times the quantity of similar work performed by men on a per diem basis.

"This condition is due in large measure to the apparent disregard for expense, the grossly excessive office and supervisory forces employed and the knowledge among the workingmen of the very high salaries being paid. It is an interesting fact that the Hog Island shipyards overhead expenses are averaging today the sum of $1,700,000 a month and since the start of the work in this yard, the overhead charges up to Dec. 1 have exceeded $16,800,000."

Statistics showed, the New York Senator said, that the shipping program was "progressing at approximately 40 per cent of scheduled speed," and that the final completion of the work under contract would probably take nearly a year longer than the time allowed in the contracts.

Modifications of the existing conditions should be made at once, Mr. Calder said. He made these recommendations:

(1) The general policies of the Shipping Board and the scope of its activity should be determined by Congress.

(2) The Board should be composed of men whose business experience qualifies them to work out the details under these policies and within the limits set.

(3) The Emergency Fleet Corporation should be organized on a strictly business basis as the construction branch of the Shipping Board. The executive head of the Fleet Corporation should have sufficient authority to enable him to make decisions promptly and to carry on the work as private business is carried on.

(4) The activities of the Fleet Corporation in connection with the work of privately owned yards having contracts for ships should be limited to the proper inspection of the work and to rendering assistance in the supplying of materials and facilities.

Mr. Calder urged that the Government should take over the fabricating yards constructed with Government money.

Chairman Fletcher of the Senate Commerce Committee took exceptions to figures given by Senator Calder as to the cost of ship construction.

"It is impossible," said Senator Fletcher, referring to Hog Island, "to tell what the cost of these ships are when only two or three have been completed."

Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, criticised ex-Admiral Bowles of the Emergency Fleet Corporation for his "indecent, improper, and scurrilous telegram" to Senator Fletcher, in which Admiral Bowles branded as untrue statements made by Senator Vardaman relative to construction of the Hog Island yard. The Utah Senator said Senator Vardaman was right in making his criticisms, and added that reports showed that conditions at the yards "are worse than described."

Extraordinary!

Yes, even in an age of cleverly constructed luggage this wardrobe trunk stands supreme.

STRONG—it's made of 3-ply veneer. All sections are basswood. All strain points heavily reinforced. Brassed corners. Covered with heaviest grade army duck and interlined with same quality.

CONVENIENT! — The new system of locking eliminates bending over—no more broken finger nails from stiff clasps, for the closing and locking are done in one easy operation. No key necessary to lock it.

A strapless retainer eliminates wrinkling of garments. There are twelve combination hangers and an appreciable innovation in space saving is the adjustable shoe and laundry bag.

When opened as a bureau this trunk has seven drawers, divided for neckwear, lingerie and hats. These sections can be locked without closing the trunk.

PRIDE—well it's justifiable in arriving with such aristocratic looking baggage. We know of no trunk more pleasing in appearance.

CITIZENS CALL FOR HIGHER CARFARES

ASSAILS ESTIMATE BOARD

F. H. Sisson Says People Must Be Heard at City Hall If Crash Is to be Avoided.

At a meeting of the representatives of civic and commercial organizations of the various boroughs held yesterday afternoon in the rooms of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, 203 Broadway, to discuss the traction situation, Francis H. Sisson, a Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company, said that, judging by the attitude of the Board of Estimate on the question of raising fares on lines of the Interborough system, there was either a deliberate plan on the part of the Hylan administration to force municipal ownership, or to escape political liability for taking definite action in authorizing a raise in fares.

"The economics of the situation is perfectly clear," he said. "A dollar will purchase now only half as much as it purchased in pre-war times. There is no question of law involved, because a contract has been entered into by the city and the Interborough, and the contract is in force. The alleged high salaries of officials has nothing to do with the question. I don't know whether Mr. Shonts is worth $100,000 a year to the Interborough or not, and I don't know whether Colonel Williams is worth what he is drawing in salary, and I don't care. If no salaries at all were paid to the general officers of the interborough, it would not affect the situation in which it finds itself. The fact is that the New York Railways Company, which operates the surface lines, and the Interborough Consolidated, the holding company, face receivership. The Interborough may or may not escape it.

"Whether the people pay higher fares depends entirely on the Board of Estimate. What we, as property owners, can do, I do not know. But I do feel that, unless we can make a strong and representative protest against the board's action, or, rather, inaction, we ought not to make any at all. If there isn't to be some sort of a dislocation of rapid transit facilities, some sort of a rapid transit crash in this town, then the people must be heard at the City Hall, and heard in no uncertain terms."

The meeting was called at the invitation of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation and was presided over by the President of the board, Lee Kohns, who was elected Chairman. Frank S. Gardner acted as Secretary. Invitations were sent to eighteen of the city's civic and commercial organizations. The following sent representatives to the meeting: New York Board of Trade and Transportation, Lee Kohns, William McCarroll, Frank Brainard, J. Frederick Talcott, and Clinton L. Rossiter; Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, Samuel W. Fairchild and Francis H. Sisson; Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens, Walter J. Willis and John Adikes; Harlem Board of Commerce, C. H. Fuller; Bronx Board of Trade, Olin J. Stephens, B. R. Harris, Vincent A. Clinton, Professor Alexander Harring, and Charles E. Reid; Fifth Avenue Association, Robert Grier Cooke; Real Estate Board of New York, David A. Clarkson and Thomas P. Graham; Rotary Club, H. V. Swart, A. M. Silvey, Charles A. Maurice, and Joseph V. Copeland; New York Mercantile Exchange, F. G. Henry. The Merchants' Association and some other organizations had already called meetings for the same hour.

Says Board Is Powerful.

"We have two bodies," said Mr. McCarroll, "one the Public Service Commission, which is powerless to act because the matter of fares is a matter of contractual relations between the city and the Interborough. Then we have the Board of Estimate, which is powerful, but which refuses to take action which is necessary. We must let the Board of Estimate know that the people demand action. If these companies, or any one of them, should go into the hands of a receiver, there would be peril not only to the city, but to the nation. For does any one suppose that, if faith in the securities of the New York traction companies should be lost, the people of the whole country would care to put their money into similar securities elsewhere?"

The following resolution, offered by Walter I. Willis, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of the Borough of Queens, was adopted:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this meeting that efficient service by the numerous rapid transit and surface lines throughout New York City is a vital public necessity, and we believe that this service cannot be furnished unless the revenues derived from passenger fares are sufficient to pay operating expenses, provide new equipment, and afford a fair return on the capital used in the public service."

Another meeting will be held at the same place at 3 o'clock next Thursday afternoon. It was also decided to invite ex-Borough President George McAneny, Public Service Commissioner Travis H. Whitney, Theodore P. Shonts, and Controller Craig to address that meeting.

During the hearing yesterday before the Public Service Commission on the application of the New York Railways Company for the privilege of increasing fares Assistant Corporation Counsel Edgar J. Kohler asked Frank Samuelson, auditor of the company, who was in the witness chair, what had become of a large reserve fund that ought to be listed somewhere among the company's assets, but which could not be located. James L. Quackenbush, the company's counsel, replied with some heat that the company had no money and that it was not paying its rentals.

"I have heard," retorted Mr. Kohler, "that a very large sum of money was paid to the New York Railways Company."

"Do you know of a single dollar that is available?" interrupted Mr. Quackenbush.

"I have seen figures showing a settlement," Mr. Kohler replied, "and it showed that large sums of money went to the company."

Mr. Quackenbush said the talk was nonsense and only intended for newspaper consumption. Mr. Kohler insisted by implication that the company had a great deal of money that was either being concealed or that had been spent without anybody knowing anything about it save those intimately interested.

Recovered Nearly $4,200,000.

Later in the day Corporation Counsel Burr explained that the sum referred to was $2,600,000, and that the information came from the annual report of the Interborough Consolidated Corporation, the holding concern, for 1916. It was part of a handsomely printed volume, which Mr. Burr said was issued for the information of prospective investors. The part which lead to the belief of a secret fund and which was the basis of Mr. Kohler's inquiry reads:

"During the Fall and Winter of 1915 a favorable opportunity seemed to be presented to bring to a conclusion the very protracted and complex litigation arising over the funds in the hands of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company and the New York Railways Company receivers. After six months' negotiations matters were brought to such a state that on Feb. 15, 1916, an order was entered in the pending action providing for the discharge of the receivers, and the receivers were actually discharged on March 24, 1916.

"As a result of this settlement the New York Railways Company and its affiliated companies become entitled to recover approximately $4,200,000, nearly all of which was immediately turned over—a result more favorable than was anticipated at any time during the course of litigation. Of the fund thus acquired $950,000 was employed in paying off a real estate mortgage upon the fee property of the New York Railways Company, and $450,000 in paying a general obligation contracted by the Metropolitan Bondholders' Reorganization Committee. The remainder has been set aside for corporate purposes as a part of the unmortgaged property of the New York Railways Company, and part of it has been reinvested on terms yielding better than 5 per cent. interest."

Mr. Burr said that he had not been able to trace this money and that so far as he knows it does not figure in any of the company's later reports. During the colloquy before the commission Mr. Kohler asked if a large sum of money had not been turned over to the company by an order of Federal Judge Lacombe. Mr. Quackenbush replied in the affirmative and stated it had been spent "months and months" ago.

Public Service Commissioner Whitney said yesterday he had just heard that Controller Craig had settled a claim of the Degnon Contracting Company for $325,000 on Jan. 2. The settlement provided that $125,000 of the amount was to be paid at once and the remainder in six monthly instalments. Mr. Whitney did not know what the amount of the claim was, but that it was based on the alleged failure of the commission to furnish plans on time for work on the sections in Fifty-ninth and Sixtieth Streets for the extension of the Broadway subway and for some work in Brooklyn.

He also said that one the claims was for $90,000 for delay in Brooklyn, which was mainly caused by the city, which was building a sewer near the subway route. There was also some delay, he stated, because the city failed to approve some of the work on time.

"It is difficult for the commission to carry on its work," said Mr. Whitney, "unless it is told what arrangements are being made with contractors. Payments to contractors are based on monthly estimates and we cannot make estimates promptly because the Board of Estimate has cut off so many of our engineers."

"BE POLITE," SAYS GARRISON.

Tells B. R. T. Employes How to Improve the Service.

Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the B. R. T., in his first communication to the company's employes, said:

"I have continued, as employes of the receiver, all present operating officials and employes, with their present duties. We should each realize that, owing to the nature of our work and its close relationship to the daily life of the community, we are practically public servants. Our duty is to the public and to those who own the properties. We can only properly discharge such duty by close attention to it. One great thing is politeness. It tends to smooth operation. Friction tends to produce heat and disturbance. I therefore request every one connected with the companies named carefully to do his part and extend polite and attentive consideration to the patrons of the road."

The Public Service Commission of the Second District began yesterday to take testimony in the application of the Yonkers Railroad Company for permission to cease operating 70 per cent. of its lines. The application of the company followed its failure to obtain authority to increase its rate of fare from 5 cents to 7. The commission reported that the 5-cent rate appeared to be fair and that it yielded a sufficient return on the investment, after the company had heard the city authorities, which will oppose the application, will present testimony.

WOULD CURB MEAT PACKERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—An era of extreme profiteering in meat prices after the Food Administration ceases to function, unless control of private cars, stock yards and terminal refrigerator plants is taken from the packers, was predicted today by Walter L. Fisher, counsel for the Marketing Committee of the American National Live Stock Association, and former Secretary of the Interior. Mr. Fisher was testifying before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee at hearings on the pending bill providing for regulation of the meat packing industry.

The witness declared that "prices would bump the ceiling," and at the same time there would be danger of diminution of production if the Government took no action to curb what he described as a practical monopoly maintained by the five leading packers. Stock raisers, he said, would hasten to sell even breeding animals to get a share of the temporary high prices which the packers would force, and thereby production of new aminals would decrease.

The House Commerce Committee today heard Edward Burke, representative of the American National Live Stock Association, on behalf of a similar bill before the House.

RED CROSS ROLL RESULTS.

Christmas Call in New York Brought In 527,647 New Members.

The New York County Chapter of the Red Cross, 44 East Twenty-third Street, announced yesterday that it had gained 527,647 new members in the national Christmas roll call campaign conducted between Dec. 16 and 23. These figures indicated that New York had maintained a higher percentage of increased membership than any locality along the Atlantic seaboard.

Among the things which De Wolf Hopper will auction at 5 o'clock this afternoon at the Red Cross Shop, 587 Fifth Avenue, will be a trunk which once belonged to Jesse James, the Western bandit. A number of war relics will also be on the list, including a double cross of Lorraine, made by a French soldier with a penknife out of the cases of shells. Expensive gowns and paintings, too, will go under the Hopper hammer, and all of the proceeds will be devoted to the benefit of wounded soldiers and sailors.

FIGHT TO MAKE STATE DRY.

ALBANY, Jan. 9.—Prohibitionists today renewed their fight to make New York State "dry" through ratification of the Federal Prohibition Amendment, and the "drys," through Senator George F. Thompson of Niagara and Assemblyman Walter S. McNab of Schenectady, had introduced in both branches of the Legislature concurrent resolutions calling for ratification.

Carrying out Governor Smith's recommendation that the whole question should be put to a referendum, Senator John J. Boylan, Democrat, of New York, introduced a referendum bill.

There is every likelihood that the lawmakers will make an early test of strength. In the Senate it appears that the prohibitionists will strike a snag similar to the one which last session sidetracked effectually all prohibition legislation.

In the Assembly there is little doubt that the ratification proposal will receive more than sufficient votes to insure putting its fate up to the Senate.

Both Houses got down to work today and a flood of bills were introduced in each House. Senator Boylan of New York would have the State decorate with a bronze medal and service ribbon every man who fought against Germany. His bill would appropriate $5,000 for this purpose. The measure was referred to the Finance Committee.

The two women members, Mrs. Ida B. Sammis, Republican of Suffolk, and Mrs. Mary M. Lilly, Democrat, of New York City, were assigned to the Committees on Education and Social Welfare. Mrs. Sammis will also serve on the Public Health Committee.

West Virginia for "Dry" Amendment.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 9.—The Legislature today completed its ratification of the Federal prohibition amendment. The measure adopted by the Senate yesterday was passed unanimously by the House today.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 9.—The Legislature has not yet ratified the prohibition amendment. Announcement Tuesday that the Senate had acted favorably, and the House had acted previously was an error. The Senate has now approved the resolution on final reading, and the House of Representatives today passed it on second reading.

ATTACKS CONGRESS AT LEAGUE HEARING

ASSAILS LACK OF SYSTEM

Declares Public's Money Is Wasted Without Congress Giving Heed to Army and Navy Experts.

The Congressional inquiry into allegations that $1,200,000 was expended by the National Security League in the last Congressional elections was shifted yesterday from Washington to the Bar Association, 42 West Forty-fourth Street, in this city, with S. Stanwood Menken, formerly President of the league, as the day's only witness. Although all of the members of the House Investigating Committee alternated as cross-examiner, the chief questioner was Representative Ben Johnson of Kentucky, Chairman of the inquiry.

The complete personnel of the committee, which is acting under authority of a resolution introduced by Representative James A. Frear of Wisconsin, is: Joseph Walsh, Massachusetts; C. Frank Reavis, Nebraska; Edward E. Browne, Wisconsin; Thaddeus C. Caraway, Arkansas; Patrick Harrison, Mississippi, and Edward H. Saunders, Virginia.

The morning session opened with Mr. Menken reiterating his belief that Congressmen wasted money for their own personal purposes.

"What do you mean by that statement?" asked Mr. Johnson sharply.

"I mean," returned Mr. Menken, "that Congress has repeatedly ignored the advice of our Naval Board and our army and navy heads, and has wasted money by logrolling and misappropriation of public funds."

"I mean that Congress for generations, regardless of the complexion of the Administration, has been spending the public money where the votes are thickest," replied the witness.

At this point Mr. Menken referred to an article in a current magazine as having some bearing on the matter discussed, but Congressman Johnson bade him not to bother about that; the committee was after his personal views, and not the opinion of some one else.

Witness Says Money Is Wasted.

"I speak of the money wasted on navy yards and army posts improperly placed," Mr. Menken then continued, "as this has always been done to the detriment of the United States to the extent of about $100,000,000 a year. I consider the waste in the Post Office Department another waste for personal purposes. In this Post Office matter, take the Post Office at Bar Harbor, Me., a town of a few thousand, which has a building that would do credit to a city of a million."

"Well," interjected Mr. Johnson, what Congressman do you think was wasting public money for his own personal purposes there?"

"I would say, whatever Congressman or Congressmen were instrumental in having it put through," was the answer.

Turning back to the naval appropriations, Mr. Menken declared the record of that phase of our war work was "scandalous," in his opinion.

"Navy yards were built that were useless," the witness said. "Dry docks were built where there was not enough water to bring the ships up to the docks. Congressmen refused to consider the recommendation of General Wood, than whom no man had any bigger part in our great victory. Congress would not accept the recommendation of General Scott, or of the Naval Board, but went ahead with the plans as it suited the members of Congress. They would not accept the advice of those who knew—that's why Secretary of War Garrison resigned.

"I agree entirely with what the late Representative Augustus P. Gardner said in effect, that the Congress of the United States has never paid proper attention to the health of body and mind and to the economic conditions of the people, and that the nation has never had a scientific government. At the present time, when we need in Congress those who are supermen, we have some members who are super-common."

He Defends Security League.

"Then you mean," said Chairman Johnson, "that the entire safety of the country lies in the National Security League?"

"Decidedly not, but I do mean that the future safety of the Government will be assured only through the principles held by the National Security League and other patriotic societies. We have got to have a Government by all the people."

At the beginning of the investigation Mr. Menken was questioned rather closely regarding his business and his business associates. In addition to being a lawyer at 52 William Street, he said that he is a director in several corporations and President of another. In reply to questions he said that his firm had acted as counsel for corporations, one of them the largest in its line. He then told, in response to questions, of the founding of the league.

Attacks Congress and Hearst.

The afternoon session found Representative Harrison conducting the inquiry, and he elicited from Mr. Menken this statement on New York City's Congressional representation: "I think they are the finest mis-Representatives in Congress of any city in the country." Congressman Reavis, taking a hand later, questioned Mr. Menken about his statement to a reporter for The New York American, which later was misinterpreted as an indorsement of W. R. Hearst. Mr. Menken's views in this matter were:

"I am totally opposed to pacifism, pro-Germanism and all that Mr. Hearst has striven for. I am also opposed to weakening and causing dissension in the progress of the war either in our own country or among our allies. I am unalterably opposed to many of his internal and international policies."

When asked about his attitude toward Mr. Hearst, Mr. Menken replied: "Mr. Hearst, I think, really believes he is loyal, but he has Bolshevist ideas and is creating dissension."

When Mr. Menken was asked about his family, he said that his wife's father had been born in Prussia, but had come here when 9 years old and had later fought in the civil war.

"I do not, but they did not leave soon enough," said Mr. Menken.

"Most assuredly no. My family would have nothing to do with that kind of a crew," answered the witness, and then Congressman Johnson said that he had been asked in writing to put these questions to Mr. Menken.

INDEPENDENCE AIMED AT

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The first publication of what purports to be a Sinn Fein Constitution for Ireland was made today by The Globe. This has a particular interest, in view of the Sinn Fein proposal to hold an Irish congress in the near future. The preamble of the Constitution runs as follows:

"Whereas, the people of Ireland never have relinquished their claim to separate nationhood, and,

"Whereas, the Provisional Government of the Irish Republic at Easter, 1916, in the name of the Irish people, and continuing the right made by previous generations, reasserted the inalienable right of the Irish Nation to sovereign independence and reaffirmed the determination of the Irish people to achieve it, and,

"Whereas, the proclamation of an Irish republic at Easter, 1916, and the supreme courage and the glorious sacrifices of the men who gave their lives to maintain it, have united the people of Ireland under the flag of the Irish Republic, we, the delegated representatives of the Irish people, in congress assembled declare the following to be the Constitution of the Sinn Fein."

The article then sets forth the Sinn Fein aims at securing international recognition of Ireland as an independent republic, and, having achieved that status, that the Irish people, by a referendum, may freely choose their own form of government. It says that the Sinn Fein organization shall, "In the name of the sovereign Irish people, deny the right and oppose the will of the British Parliament and the British Crown of any foreign Government to legislate for Ireland."

It also says that the organization will "make use of any and every means available to render impotent the power of England to hold Ireland in subjection by military force or otherwise."

The purported Constitution declares that a constituent assembly shall be convoked to formulate measures for the welfare of the people. The measures specified are the introduction of a protective system for industries and commerce by the combined action of the county and urban councils, the Poor Law Boards, the harbor boards and other bodies directly responsible to the Irish people; the establishment of a consular service and of a mercantile marine for direct trading with foreign countries; the development of mineral resources; the establishment of a national stock exchange, a national civil service, and Sinn Fein courts of arbitration; the development of transit facilities, of waste lands, and of sea fisheries; the reform of education on a national and industrial basis; the abolition of the poor law system, with relief for the infirm and aged and the employment of idle able-bodied persons on public works.

ENERGY

Some energy is like a skyrocket—all force and no direction.

The success of this organization on its many building operations is due to the efficient co-ordination of all its labors and the elimination of waste motion and minutes.

RUDOLPH GANZ—MASTER PIANIST
PERPETUATES HIS ART THROUGH

The* DUO-ART PIANO

Rudolph Ganz

Rudolph Ganz is to play at the Metropolitan Opera House on Sunday Evening, January Twelfth. Hear him in person and then hear his beautiful Duo-Art Recordings. You will recognize at once his characteristics of touch and phrasing.

Ganz says: "If anyone criticizes the Duo-Art, he criticizes my playing."

RUDOLPH GANZ is universally recognized as one of the greatest present-day pianists. In the field of modern piano music his interpretations are as intelligent, as brilliant and poetical as in the great classics. The pianism of Rudolph Ganz is beautifully and worthily recorded and perpetuated by the Duo-Art Piano.

In tone and in form the Duo-Art is a pianoforte of the highest modern development. But unlike the piano the Duo-Art is not merely a passive instrument whose voice is lifted only at command of the gifted artist's agile hands. The sensitive action, guided by Duo-Art Records of the finest interpretations by the world's greatest pianists, reproduces these performances with such perfect fidelity that even the most discriminating musicians are not able to distinguish between the actual playing of the pianist and the Duo-Art recordings.

The Duo-Art immortalizes the fine art of pianism—makes its rarest and highest examples available in the home. And it is yet an instrument for self-expression, a piano or a player-piano, a new and perfected player-piano far in advance of any other instrument of the type. The Duo-Art is made in Steinway, Steck, Stroud and renowned Weber pianos.

DUO-ART RECITALS

There will be informal musicales in our Duo-Art Salon, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons of this week at three o'clock. An unusually interesting program will be given in which the Duo-Art will reproduce the actual playing of Bauer, Ganz, Grainger, Hofmann, Paderewski and other celebrated pianists. The program will be arranged to show the striking manner in which the Duo-Art Piano reveals the individual characteristics of these great artists. Admission without charge.

REPUBLICANS TALK OF A MAN FOR 1920

PARTY TO HAVE LOVE FEAST

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—Party leaders from nearly every State arrived here today to attend the meeting of the Republican National Committee tomorrow. The session will be in the nature of a political love feast at which the Republican victory at the Congressional elections last November will be canvassed and plans for the 1920 Presidential campaign discussed.

Although Chairman Will H. Hays declared that any discussion of candidates for President was premature, the party leaders tonight talked about probable candidates and issues among themselves. Among the men mentioned were General Pershing, General Wood, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, Senator Cummings of Iowa, Senator Knox of Pennsylvania, Senator Harding of Ohio, William H. Taft, Senator Watson of Indiana, Governor Lowden of Illinois, former Governor Whitman of New York, and Senator Weeks of Massachusetts. Governor-elect Henry J. Allen of Kansas was mentioned as a possible candidate for Vice President.

Chairman Hays said he had no information on the politics of General Pershing, except that he understood he is a Republican.

The two issues most frequently mentioned in the gossip were an attack on the alleged extravagance of the National Democratic Administration and a strong declaration against Bolshevism and Socialistic doctrines, including Government ownership or operation of the railroads and other public utilities.

The committee has but little business to transact at its meeting tomorrow. The program is for an executive session in the morning, at which resolutions on the death of Colonel Roosevelt will be adopted and National Committeemen will be elected to fill vacancies in several States. In the afternoon the committee will listen to addresses by Governor Beeckman of Rhode Island, Governor Burnquist of Minnesota, Governor McKelvie of Nebraska, and Mrs. Medill McCormick of Illinois. The latter will report on plans of the women to take an active part in the national affairs of the party in the future.

Committeeman Fred Stanley of Kansas and Committeeman Hubert Work of Colorado predicted that all the former Republican States in the West would be back in line in 1920. Committeeman A. T. Hert of Kentucky said the indications pointed to that State going Republican in the next Presidential election.

Chairman Hays, in speaking of Colonel Roosevelt today, said: "The strongest character in the world has died. No one can take Roosevelt's place. In the days of difficulty ahead, in all the readjustment at hand in this country, the loss of the brain, the heart, and the hand of this man is incalculable. The lesson of his patriotism, which will live forever, is his monument."

The committee of Republican women named several months ago by Chairman Hays to devise ways and means of securing the fullest co-operation of women in the affairs of the party met here today and later was in conference with members of the National Committee. The members of the committee are Mrs. Medill McCormick, Illinois; Miss Mary Garrett Hay, New York; Mrs. Margaret McGerter, Kansas; Mrs. Josephine Corliss Preston, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Raymond Robbins, Illinois, and Mrs. Florence Collins, California.

SAW MAN WITH DEAD BROKER

Mrs. Chris Says They Entered House Where Knapp Was Killed.

Investigation of the murder of Charles H. Knapp, a broker, who was attacked when he entered the unoccupied store he owned at 80 Bedford Street, on Wednesday afternoon, brought information to the police yesterday that a man was seen accompanying him after he had sent a telephone message for workmen to remove fixtures in the place. Mrs. Florence Chris of 56 Barrow Street told the police that she was sitting at the window of her rooms with her invalid son and saw the broker and an unidentified man go to the side entrance of the Knapp building. The man with Knapp held a parcel for him while he unlocked the door, and then both entered.

It was an hour or more later when workmen whom Knapp had sent for arrived and began moving the fixtures, during which they found the man dead and his body partly concealed under refuse in a rear room of the store. Knapp owned several pieces of property in the Greenwich Village section, and it was rumored he had quarrels with one or more of his tenants. Captain Carey of the Homicide Bureau believes robbery was the motive, but he ordered detectives to look into the report that the shooting may have been due to revenge, especially in view of the fact that cash and a gold watch were not taken by the murderer.

DEFEND "LIBERTY" FIRES.

Mrs. Brannan and Mrs. Rogers Say White House Patrol Will Stay.

Mrs. John Winters Brannan and Mrs. John Rogers, Jr., members of the National Advisory Council of the National Woman's Party, yesterday issued a statement explaining why the Washington suffragists continued demonstrations in front of the White House, notwithstanding the President's espousal of the suffrage amendment. Referring to the imprisonment of Miss Alice Paul, Mrs. Lawrence Lewis, and six others, the statement said:

"Our Liberty bonfires are a symbol of our contempt for words unsupported by deeds. We will not sit in silence while the President presents himself to the people of Europe as the representative of a free people, when the American people are not free, and he is chiefly responsible for it."

The statement also set forth that, although the President had been converted, considerable agitation was necessary in order to spur Congress to passage of the amendment. Pointing out that the President "controls a Democratic majority in the Senate," the statement declares that "it is very clear that he has not exercised his leadership."

JAIL BERNSTORFF'S NEPHEW

Muench and Accomplice Tried to Enter America on Forged Passports.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 9.—Baron Allardt von Dem B. Muench, nephew of the former Ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, was sentenced to three months in jail for perpetrating a fraud on the Government by attempting to enter the country with a forged passport.

Baron Muench pleaded guilty, with Edward Michael Zacoho, a Dane, alleged to be a diplomatic agent of the German Foreign Office, to indictments charging them with conspiracy. Zacoho was sentenced to a term of one year.

Clemency for Baron Muench was asked because of his youth, 21 years, and as he had been in close confinement for more than four years following his capture by Russian troops at the battle of Riga in 1914. He was a Lieutenant of the Royal German Hussars.

According to the indictment, Zacoho had been delegated when the news of Baron Muench's capture reached Berlin to obtain his release. Plentifully supplied with money and passports, Zacoho effected the release of Muench from a Siberian camp prison and attempted to bring him into the United States on the steamer Equador, April 2, 1917, under a Swiss passport in the name of Kurt Brunner.

Important military papers, the property of the former German Consul at Shanghai, which they were trying to smuggle to Germany, were found in the lining of overcoats worn by both men.

BERGER WANTS HIS SEAT.

Says He Will Run Again if Congress Decides Against Him.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—Victor L. Berger, convicted with four other Socialist leaders of disloyalty and conspiracy against the Government in wartime, said today that he will attempt to obtain the seat in Congress to which he was elected last November. If he fails, he says, he will run again in the Milwaukee district.

The Berger cohorts were not optimistic regarding their leader's chances of taking his seat in Congress. After Berger's election, J. P. Carney, the Democratic candidate, filed a contest alleging that Berger's war acts and statements had put him outside the pale of the law and made him ineligible. Last Saturday was the final day on which Berger could have filed an answer, it is said, and his failure to do so may deprive him of the right to contest, regardless of his conviction.

"I intend to take my seat, and if I fail I intend to go back to my district and run again," Berger said. "There is to be a mass meeting in Milwaukee on Sunday, at which, I suppose, there will be a protest against the verdict."

The convicted men believe their fate largely rests on action to be taken within a few days by the United States Supreme Court in the cases of Eugene V. Debs, Rose Pastor Stokes, and other radicals under conviction for violating the Esplonage act and conspiracy against the Government.

REPORTS PROBATION WORK.

$1,885,643 Collected in Three Years for Support of Families.

The first detailed survey of the probation service since the inception of this work in the courts of the City Magistrates, was presented to Chief City Magistrate McAdoo yesterday. In the report Edwin J. Cooley, Chief Probation Officer, submits these conclusions concerning two of the most important activities of the service:

"Probation is not only the best method for the supervision of delinquents, but the most economical way. During the past three years the probation workers, men and women, have supervised the payment of $1,885,643 from probationers for the support of their families and dependents. In addition it is difficult to compute the amounts saved on prison maintenance, public charity to families, and the value of the probationers as productive factors in the community. The City of New York could well afford to grant more probation officers, for probation service, instead of being an increased expense to the city, is in reality a great tax saver.

Mr. Cooley recommends an amendment to the law to authorize the transfer of the work now done by the Bureau of Domestic Relations of the Department of Charities to the exclusive jurisdiction of the courts. Under the present law on this subject a deserted mother seeking support for herself and children must first apply to the Department of Charities, on the ground that she is entitled to relief in the courts unless she is liable to become a public charge. He also advises amending the law relating to husbands who default in financial responsibilities to their families. Mr. Cooley suggests the establishment of a probation court for improving the work by close and centralized supervision. The probation service, he says, has been aided by the establishment of better cooperation with all the churches, hospitals, and large social agencies.

SOLDIERS OUST OFFICIALS.

Force County Board Out and Patriotic Attorney In.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 9. — Two Democratic County Commissioners and Henry Buente, whom the Commissioners had elected County Attorney, were forced to resign their offices today when 500 soldiers marched on the Court House of this county and demanded the reinstatement of Albert J. Veneman, Democrat, as County Attorney. It was asserted that the County Board's refusal to re-elect Veneman was due to patriotic utterances he made during the war.

Veneman, who is a former Speaker of the State House of Representatives, was re-elected, after Buente resigned.

Britain to Revive Jamaica Trade.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Jan. 9.—The Trade Commissioner for the West Indies, appointed by the British Government last year to promote trade between the West Indies and the rest of the empire, has published a statement to the colonies to the effect that British manufacturers will soon be able to meet practically all demands.

LORILLARD SPENCER CITED FOR BRAVERY

OTHER NEW YORKERS IN LIST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The War Department issued two more lists today containing the names of American soldiers who have received the Distinguished Service War Cross from General Pershing for extraordinary action in France. The latest citations include the names of several high ranking officers, one of them being Major Lorillard Spencer, the former aid to Governor Whitman. Among the others mentioned are:

Major W. M. Hoge of Lexington, Mo., Major J. H. Muncaster of Omaha, Neb., Private J. D. Larson of Chaseburg, Wis., Major W. R. Swan of Rockport, Ind., Lieutenant J. H. Murphy of Detroit, Mich., Corporal August Martinez of Turley, N. Mex., Captain L. S. Eads of Lexington, Ky., Captain R. S. Fisher of Chicago, Ill., Captain J. G. Gholston of Woodland, Miss., Sergeant L. B. McDaniel of Columbus, Kan., Private E. A. Hofman of Des Moines, Ia., Major B. A. Smead of Denver, Col., Private R. A. Bess of Glen Allen, Mo., Corporal Charles Lemasters of St. Paul, Neb., Corporal T. B. Mansfield of Bay City, Mich., Sergeant R. M. Sauers of Fremont, Neb., Sergeant E. J. Moore of Oshkosh, Neb., Lieutenant Elliert Heikem of Ottawa, Kan., Sergeant R. M. Shimmeall of Norton Kan., Lieutenant F. M. Morgan of Ravenswood, Va., Lieutenant G. C. McCelvy of Carmel, S. C., Private Malley Stewart of Fort Mott, S. C., Private C. L. Yaeger of Atherton, Ind., Sergeant L. J. Nachtman of Dillsburg, Penn., Lieutenant F. J. Mendenhall of Lakeland, Fla., Lieutenant G. G. Clarke of Waukon, Ia., Lieutenant J. G. Martell of Somerville, Mass., Lieutenant W. A. Pickering of Manchester, Penn., Lieut. Col. L. A. McClure of Carson City, Nev., Lieutenant R. S. Mullen of Chicago, Ill., Lieut. Col. C. H. Hodges of Perry, Ga., Sergeant William Butler of Salisbury, Md., Sergeant I. C. Rayner of Durant, Miss., Corporal W. B. Stripling of Oliver Springs, Tenn., Corporal George Wilmer of Manchester, Penn., and Corporal D. G. Arnold of Roebuck, S. C.

The men from this and neighboring cities whose specified acts of bravery are described below, are nearly all members of the 369th infantry. They are:

Private Frederick A. Woodward, Battery E, 42d Artillery, Coast Artillery Corps.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Suippes, between July 14 and 15. Private Woodward, acting as runner during an engagement kept up his work throughout the bombardment. On the trip he was wounded by a bursting shell, but succeeded in carrying a very important message to his battery commander. Home address, Mrs. William Woodward, mother, 1,015 Olive Street, Elizabeth, N. J.

Corporal Charles D. Rounds, Co. M, 60th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near San De Laveline and Clory Legrande, on June 29, and Oct. 29. On June 29 he was driven out of his post by hand grenades and machine-gun fire. After the grenades had exploded he re-entered his post under machine-gun fire and drove the Germans gunners away with his automatic rifle. On Oct. 28 he located several machine-gun nests and a battery of field artillery and returned with information which made it possible to destroy them. Home address, Fred Rounds, father, Witherbee, N. Y.

Capt. Samuel Shethar, 369th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action in the Champagne sector between Sept. 26 and Oct. 1. Acting as operations officer, on several occasions he voluntarily collected small units which had become separated from their organizations, organized them, and led them to their positions through intense machine-gun and shell fire. At another time he spent several hours searching for a wounded battalion commander until he found him and carried him through heavy fire to the rear. Home address, Mrs. Samuel Shethar, wife, 350 West Seventh Street, New York City.

First Lieut. Harold M. Landon, 369th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Sechault on Sept. 29. Lieutenant Landon, on duty as assistant liaison officer, personally carried an order to the assault battalion in order to insure its delivery, passing through heavy fire. The battalion commander being killed just as he arrived, Lieutenant Landon gave the order to the next senior, and then waited to see its execution. When the assaulting line wavered, under a terrific enemy barrage, this officer jumped ahead of the line and led the first wave 1,000 meters to the objective, assisting in consolidating the new position before he returned to regimental headquarters. Home address, E. H. Landon, father, 60 Broadway, New York City.

Major Lorillard Spencer, 369th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action in the Champagne sector, on Sept. 26. Commanding a battalion which was in action for the first time, Major Spencer inspired his men by his own coolness and courage under intense machine-gun fire. He continually exposed himself without regard for personal safety until he was wounded six times. Home address, Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, wife, 71 East Eighty-second Street, New York City.

Private Elmer McCowin, Co. K, 369th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action at Ripont Swamp, on Sept. 26. While passing through a swamp where most of the platoon was wounded, he dressed the wounds of several of his comrades, and after reaching the shelter of a hill beyond returned repeatedly and assisted many of his comrades to a place of safety. He also carried messages through shell and machine-gun fire after being severely gassed. Home address, Mrs. Mattie Johnson, friend, 268 West 131st Street, New York City.

Corporal Elmer Earl, Co. K, 369th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action at Ripont Swamp, on Sept. 26. While passing through a swamp where most of the platoon was wounded, he dressed the wounds of several of his comrades, and after reaching the shelter of a hill beyond returned repeatedly and assisted many of his comrades to a place of safety. Home address, Mrs. Joseph Earl, Goshen, N. Y.

Sergt. Francis W. Wagner, Co. C, 309th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Badonvilliers, on June 24. He was found badly wounded in the neck and legs, crawling back to bring up support to his position. Home address, Mrs. F. Wagner, mother, 1,821 Prospect Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Corporal Robert F. Warren, (deceased.) Co. E, 60th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Clery-le-Petit, on Nov. 4. He voluntarily left a place of comparative safety and went over open and bullet-swept ground to the assistance of a comrade who had been wounded in the advance. While administering first aid he was a continual prey for enemy snipers, but he bravely continued with his mission until killed. Next of kin, Mrs. Rose Warren, mother, 303 Lakeview Avenue, Syracuse, N. Y.

Corporal Thomas F. Mareney, Co. C, 308th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Badonvillers, on June 24. Although wounded while bringing up ammunition for his automatic rifle team, he stayed with his men, encouraging and directing them. Home address, John Maroney, brother, 140 Eleventh Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Private Patrick Henrichs, Co. C, 308th Infantry. After being wounded he continued to work his automatic rifle until it was destroyed. He then secured a rifle and continued to fight and later assisted other wounded before having his own wound dressed. Home address, Harry Henrichs, father, care E. McClain, 1 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

The 316th Infantry of the 79th Division, which is composed of many New Yorkers, has been commended by Major Gen. Joseph E. Kuhn, commander of the division, for its work in successfully capturing and holding an important point in the final offensive around Verdun during the early part of November. A copy of the citation, which has just been received in the United States, reads as follows:

"In the final offensive on the heights east of the Meuse and north of Verdun the task of breaking the enemy's resistance at the Borne du Cornouiller (Hill 378) devolved upon the 316th Regiment of Infantry. Stubbornly defended by the enemy, this tactically strong point presented an obstacle of the most serious character. In spite of all difficulties the regiment succeeded after three days' heavy fighting, Nov. 4 to 6, in capturing and finally holding the Borne du Cornouiller, in breaking the enemy's resistance and contributing materially to driving the enemy from the heights east of the Meuse a few days later.

"Numerous authenticated instances of gallantry, tenacity, and endurance have come to the Commanding General's notice, proving beyond question that the regiment acquitted itself with the greatest credit and in a manner worthy of the best American traditions.

"The Commanding General takes great pride in the achievements of the regiment and directs that you bring this letter to the attention of your command."

HONORS FOR U. S. OFFICERS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—General Peyton C. March, Chief of Staff, was informed today by the French Embassy that the French Government had conferred upon him the decoration of Grand Officer of the Legion of Honor, in appreciation of the distinguished service he had rendered during the war for the common cause of the United States and the Allies. This is the second highest military honor in the gift of France.

It also was announced that Major Gens. Frank McIntyre, Henry Jervey, George W. Goethals, and William C. Gorgas had been named commanders of the Legion of Honor, and Major Gen. C. C. Williams, Brigadier Gens. Marlborough Churchill, Lytle Brown, and Frank T. Hines, and Colonel Constant Cordier had been named officers of the Legion of Honor.

WOULD SELL CITY PROPERTY

Controller Craig presented proposals at the meeting of the Sinking Fund Commissioners yesterday for the disposal of certain city property within the area of the downtown Seventh Avenue subway development that may establish a precedent for some similar action in relation to the large municipal realty holdings known as the proposed Court House site, the sale of which has been recommended by ex-Secretary A. T. Briggs of the Court House Board. The property under consideration yesterday is situated on Downing Street, near Bleecker Street. It was the site of P. S. 113 until the beginning of the subway improvement.

The Controller announced that he had received a cash offer of $65,000 for the property, which is the amount of the assessed valuation, and also that he had been offered an annual rental for it of $3,900 for a term of ten years, with privilege of renewal. This would net the city a yearly return of 6 per cent. However, at the suggestion of the Controller, the Commissioners ordered the property to be advertised and disposed of at public auction.

MUTUAL WELFARE IN PRISON

Lieut. Commander Thomas Mott Osborne spoke yesterday on prison reform at the Birdcage Tearoom of the Red Cross, 587 Fifth Avenue, basing his talk on his experiences at the Portsmouth Naval Prison. The introduction of the mutual welfare idea had been so successful, he said, that more than 1,700 boys had been returned to the navy.

Commander Osborne scored what he termed the archaic method of punishment now used in many prisons. It seemed, he declared, that correctional institutions had been built for the benefit of every one but the man who had broken the laws.

Peene Will Leaves $1,000,000.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 9.—The will of Joseph J. Peene, Jr., disposing of an estate valued at $1,000,000, was filed for probate here today. Mr. Peene, who was the head of the Ben Franklin Transportation Company, running a line of steamers and barges between Yonkers and New York, was struck by an automobile in Yonkers on Dec. 6, and died about three weeks later. The bulk of the estate is left to the widow and their three sons and three daughters, the widow to receive one-half and the remainder to be divided equally among the children.

The Truth is sometimes painful. For instance when the doctor says one must give up the dearly loved cup of coffee.

Lawrence F. Abbott, President of The Outlook Company, yesterday made public the letter he wrote on Dec. 11 to Grover Whalen, Secretary to Mayor Hylan, declining to accept the invitation to become a member of the Mayor's official committee to welcome the returning troops, because of the appointment of William Randolph Hearst as a subcommittee Chairman. His letter said:

I have your letter of Dec. 7 telling me that the Mayor has appointed me a member of the Committee of Welcome to Homecoming Troops. May I say that I appreciate the honor thus conferred and desire in every appropriate way I can to aid in this matter? But before I accept, will you let me frankly and respectfully ask what Mr. Hearst's relation to this committee is?

Mr. Hearst's course during the war has been so mischievous regarding some of our most important allies that it has amounted in effect to disloyalty to the United States. In The New York American of June 6, 1915, he said: "Whether the Lusitania was armed or not, it was properly a spoil of war subject to attack and destruction under the accepted rules of so-called civilized warfare."

This sentiment alone would make me unwilling to serve on any war committee of which Mr. Hearst was Chairman, or in which he exercised any personal authority or influence.

Elliman's Letter Unacknowledged.

Lawrence Elliman of 340 Madison Avenue, who also resigned several days ago from the Mayor's Committee, announced his intention of joining the Citizens' Independent Committee of Welcome.

"I shall be glad to serve on the Citizens' Committee of Welcome," Mr. Elliman said. "I originally accepted the Mayor's invitation, but when I found Mr. Hearst was serving on it I sent a letter of resignation, which has not even been acknowledged by the Mayor's Secretary."

This was Mr. Elliman's letter:

When I first heard that Mr. William Randolph Hearst was a member of the Mayor's Committee of Welcome to Homecoming Troops, I felt that his appointment was probably in payment for favors which the Mayor had received at his hands. In view of the Mayor's extraordinary attitude in denouncing men who have refused to serve on the committee with William Randolph Hearst, and his making an issue of Mr. Hearst's character in the community, I do not feel that I can conscientiously serve on any committee which the Mayor might appoint, and I therefore herewith request that my resignation be immediately accepted and my name withdrawn from this committee.

From the time of the murder of McKinley, till the present, Mr. Hearst's papers have been opposed and they have bitterly assailed many of the men who, I consider, are the best citizens of this country, and the recent position of his papers on the question of Americanism, and his bitter attack on our allies, would seem to preclude any one with ordinary judgment from appointing him to an important committee.

Four-Minute Men Join Protest.

The Four-Minute Men of Jamaica, at a dinner held last night for the purpose of forming a permanent organization to fight Bolshevist propaganda, adopted the following resolution of protest against the presence of Hearst on the official welcoming committee:

To the Hon. John F. Hylan, Mayor of the City of New York:

The undersigned, recently honorably discharged by the Government of the United States—Four-Minute Men, engaged in spreading the Government's messages in Jamaica, L. I., and vicinity—at a meeting held today solemnly and earnestly protest to your Honor against the appointment of W. R. Hearst on the Committee of Welcome to our returning soldiers, and respectfully, but in the name of patriotism, request his removal from such committee.

We call your attention to the fact that, had Mr. Hearst's advice been followed by President Wilson and Congress, there would have been no soldiers to welcome, for all would have been kept at home. And this happened, the Imperial German Government might have won the war, and the American nation been judged false to all the ideals for which it went to war, and for which President Wilson has so often and so nobly spoken.

We suggest that it is unfair to our soldiers and sailors, unable to protest themselves, that there be imposed upon them the presence of one whose confessed use of the American flag, to make his papers look American and help sell them, has disgusted decent citizens.

Women Voters Pass Resolution.

A similar resolution was passed yesterday at a meeting of the Women Voters' Anti-Suffrage Party, at which Julia L. D. Longfellow presided. The resolution in part read:

Resolved, That His Honor, the Mayor of the City of New York, be, and hereby is, respectfully and earnestly petitioned to request of William Randolph Hearst his resignation as such Chairman, and to appoint in his place a citizen of distinction in hearty sympathy with the great purposes for which the United States went to war, to the end that our returning soldiers and sailors may feel assured that the welcome tendered them on behalf of the city springs from a genuine sympathy for the cause for which they have made such great sacrifices, as well as deep gratitude for their services to the country.

F. W. Barker, President of the Aeronautical Society of America; Dr. Josephine Walter of 61 West Seventy-fourth Street, and George Kenneth of 315 West Eighty-fifth Street are among those who have joined the Citizens' Committee, according to announcement made yesterday.

Mass Meeting Plans Announced.

The Executive Committee of the Citizens' Committee announced last night that the distribution of tickets of admission to the mass meeting to be held in Madison Square Garden on Jan. 17 would commence today.

Tickets may be obtained at the offices of the American Defense Society, 44 East Twenty-third Street, and 415 Madison Avenue, or at the National Security League, 19 West Forty-fourth Street, or Putnams' book store, 2 West Forty-fifth Street.

Three thousand of the best seats in the auditorium are being reserved for men in uniform.

Don't Want Troops Landed Here.

PIERRE, S. D., Jan. 9.—The House of Representatives today unanimously adopted a resolution which memoralizes Congress to land troops returning from Europe at some other port than New York. Representative Balthorp, in introducing the resolution, said that it was desirable to use some other port because the Mayor of New York had placed William Randolph Hearst at the head of the committee to receive returning soldiers.

To the Hosiery Trade

Price Revision Downward on Notaseme Hosiery

ON all orders on our files, taken for delivery between January 1 and April 30, whether the merchandise be delivered or undelivered, prices will be revised downward and billed accordingly.

We desire to call the attention of merchants to the fact that several times the Notaseme Hosiery Company has protected the Trade in pursuance of its liberal policy, by billing goods at prices lower than those appearing on the orders.

When the Notaseme Representatives took orders for Spring delivery, they stated we would protect the dealer—and this Announcement is public evidence of the fact that we are gladly and willingly keeping our promise.

War and Peace have done something for retailer and user of hosiery alike.

The increased manufacturing facilities made necessary by Government orders have given us greater production for regular business. Efficiency has been tremendously increased by our experiences of the last few years.

Now labor and material conditions are approaching the normal and stable. We can figure on future prices pretty closely, while heretofore elements beyond our control necessarily entered into it.

We are as glad as you, the retailer or the consumer, that we can plan a definite selling policy and fix definite prices to your benefit.

The appearance of Notaseme Hosiery and its enduring strength are the result of the Notaseme policy of conscientious manufacture.

Retailers who are not handling Notaseme may have a revised price list on request. This price list is being mailed to all our customers; their bills will be figured accordingly.

ROAD DRIVERS HOPE TO HAVE TRACK IN PARK TO TAKE PLACE OF HARLEM SPEEDWAY

PARK SITE SOUGHT FOR RACE COURSE

BRONX PARK IS FAVORED

Drivers' Association Would Build Half-Mile Track in Time for Season of 1920.

A half-mile track for harness racing in one of the city's parks, and the surrender of the Harlem River Speedway by the horsemen to automobile traffic, are possibilities which are just now commanding the attention of the Road Drivers' Association of New York.

This was disclosed yesterday following the annual meeting of the Road Drivers' Association, at the Hotel McAlpin. Members of the association who have been active in its affairs for the last eighteen years, while the sidewheelers have been an institution on the uptown course, are enthusiastic over the proposed change. The discussion over the project made this year's meeting one of the most important in the history of the organization. When the session ended there was an almost unanimous expression of favorable opinion on the proposed transfer of the year's trotting and pacing activities, providing the change can be effected without interfering with the progress of the sport.

It developed that negotations are now progressing for a park site and that the outlook is decidedly bright for the acquisition of a spot which will prove the equal of, if not an improvement over, the Harlem Speedway. These negotiations, it is expected, will be completed during the present year in time for a removal of the association's activities for the Spring matinées of 1920.

Bronx Park is one of the sites under consideration. There are a number of members of the association favorable to a transfer to this park. Others, however, are hopeful that permission can be gained for laying out a half-mile track on the site of the drained reservoir in Central Park. Only meagre hope of a realization of this latter proposition is held out, however, for a majority of the members are of the opinion that a public protest would be aroused even if the city or State officials consented to the use of Central Park.

Eugene Carpeter, retiring Secretary-Treasurer of the association, who has been actively identified with trotting and pacing on the Harlem Speedway for the last twelve years, is one of the advocates of a removal to Bronx Park. Mr. Carpenter declared yesterday that this site had been tendered the association last year when there were indications that the association would be deprived of the Harlem Speedway through legislative action. The dangerous situation was relieved on that occasion, when the Legislature refused to take action permitting automobiles to use the Speedway. This enabled the association to complete its year's racing without hindrance.

The opposition to the use of the Harlem Speedway exclusively for horses and light horse-drawn vehicles is directly responsible for the proposed change. The opposition has become more pronounced in recent years, until last year there was for a time indications of success for the movement to open the Speedway to automobiles.

The meeting was attended by about fifty members. R. O. Currie was elected President for his third term, while J. J. Morris was chosen for Vice President. Mr. Morris will replace Charles J. Fendt. Because of the press of business Mr. Carpenter declined re-election as Secretary-Treasurer, and L. S. Tomans was selected to replace him. The members of the Board of Directors and the Executive Board were re-elected. There are forty members on the Board of Directors and twenty on the Executive Board. A. H. Cosden and E. O. Benzen are the respective Chairmen.

No decision was reached on the question of holding a dinner for the annual celebration and distribution of championship cups. This matter was submitted to a committee. The winners of the cups which will be awarded for the 1918 racing are:

Fall Meeting—Trotters—American Girl, first; Kitty Justo, second; John Gayton, Jr., third; Bessie Baron, fourth. Pacers—Lustrous McKinney, first; Silent Sister, second; Countess Kohl, third.

Stewart Maiden May Take Position in Metropolitan District.

It is just possible that before the opening of another competitive season in the North, Stewart Maiden, for years professional at the Atlanta Athletic Club, will be found in the metropolitan district. Maiden recently severed his connection with the club at Atlanta, the berth at present being filled by James Ferguson, of Spring Lake. Ferguson, however, is only there for three months, as he will return to the Jersey green about the first of April.

Few professionals are better known than Maiden, who long ago gained an enviable reputation as a teacher. It was he who brought out Perry Adair, and the boy wonder, Bobby Jones, and he also had much to do in the fashioning of Miss Alexa Stirling's game. In fact, those who have seen the national woman's champion on the links can see Maiden's style in her play, especially when she uses her irons. Stewart Maiden is a brother of James Maiden, the professional at the Nassau Country Club.

James Crabbe, formerly connected with a club at New Canaan, Conn., has been engaged as professional at the Union County Country Club, near Cranford. Crabbe will succeed Walter Gourlay, who had charge there since the club severed its connection with Joe Anson last fall.

Tom Boyd, the Fox Hills professional, will leave for the South today. He intends to go direct to Pinehurst and tarry there about a week before going on to Florida. Unless they change their plans, Boyd and Pat Doyle will hook up as an Irish combination in a few exhibition matches.

N. Y. A. C. MAKES REPORT.

Club Had Big Year, Despite Decreased Athletic Activity.

One of the most successful years in the history of the New York A. C. was the fiscal year ending Nov. 30, 1918, according to the annual report, given out yesterday, which will be submitted to the annual meeting of the organization Jan. 14. Despite the war and its resultant depression; the high cost of all nature of supplies; the high cost of labor; increases in taxes and fuel; the club's unequalled generosity in the matter of providing athletic entertainment and paraphernalia of all sorts to the nation's soldiers and sailors, and a depression in revenue from Travers Island, caused by the gasless Sunday request, a handsome profit is shown in the annual review.

A surplus of $1,415,381.87 is shown for the year, as against a surplus of $1,356,186.16 for the year ending Nov. 30, 1917. In addition to this, it is stated in the report of the Board of Governors, the membership is the largest in the history of the club, the total at Nov. 30, 1918 being 5,602, while the total for the previous year was 5,403.

The club's athletic activities were curtailed to such an extent that Captain Arthur McAleenan had no report to make. This was caused by the fact that approximately 90 per cent. of the athletic members had entered the service, and the club's decision not to be represented in the championships. Added to a total absence of any championships won, there was such an insignificant number of points gathered by Mercury Foot athletes that Captain McAleenan did not think it worth while to publish them. There was a return from athletics of $1,552.59, against expenditures of $19,443.74, trap shooting and indoor golf showing the only profit.

With the war over, a complete program for the resumption of its athletic activities has been arranged for the coming year. The ban against championship competitions will be lifted, and the organization will endeavor to be as fully represented in championships and other meets as in the past.

KYRONEN TO RETURN.

Distance Runner to Again Wear Colors of Millrose A. A.

Villar Kyronen, former distance running and cross-country champion, will soon renew his allegiance to the Millrose A. A., it was announced yesterday. The sturdy little Finn, who severed his connections with the organization six months ago, is understood to be contemplating a return to the Millrose A. A. in time to compete for the club in the national A. A. U. indoor championships. Charles Pores, national five and ten-mile running champion, will return to the club today or tomorrow.

The return of these two prominent athletes will be followed shortly, it is expected, by the return of a number of leading track and field stars who are now reported homeward bound with part of the Twenty-seventh Division. Among the soldier-athletes who are expected home soon are Mat Geis, half-miler; T. Ellertsen, and Nick Giannakopolus, the sturdy Greek runner. Giannakopolus, the cording to latest advices from him, is seeking permission to visit his mother in Greece. Fred Safarowic, whose forte is the furlong, and Mike Devaney, the miler, are others who will be seen in indoor competition for the Millrose club.

FIRST GAME AT COLUMBIA.

Basket Ball Team Opens Season Tonight Against Poly Five.

Columbia will play the opening game of its basket ball season tonight, when it faces the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute five on the Morningside Heights floor. It is probable that not more than one veteran player will be in the Columbia lineup because Fred Dawson has been forced to draw on green material to get together his 'Varsity combination.

Coleman Beats Conway.

Hall Coleman defeated Charles Conway yesterday at Daly's in the Class A tournament of the A. A. B. A. by a score of 300 to 212. Coleman made a high run of 65 and averaged 8 28-34. Conway's highest run was 38, and he averaged 6 17-33.

Erasmus H. S. Five Wins.

TURF BODIES HOLD ANNUAL ELECTIONS

Major August Belmont Is Again Chosen as Chairman of the Jockey Club.

Three local turf governing bodies held their annual meetings yesterday, as the first step in what is expected to result in the greatest season of racing in the history of the sport. The meetings brought together officials of The Jockey Club, its stewards, the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association, the Saratoga Association, and the United Hunts Association.

In addition to the elections of The Jockey Club, other business disposed of included a denial of an application for a trainer's license to E. C. Durnell, who several years ago was prominently known as a trainer and a campaigner of horses in the East and West, and the election of F. Ambrose Clark to membership. Francis R. Hitchcock, H. K. Knapp, and Andrew Miller were re-elected stewards, each to serve for a period of two years.

Those present at the meeting were F. K. Sturgis, H. K. Knapp, Andrew Miller, Archibald Barklie, John E. Cowdin, Robert L. Gerry, F. Gray Griswold, John Sanford, George D. Widener, and Richard T. Wilson.

At the meeting of the stewards which followed The Jockey Club meeting Major August Belmont was again elected Chairman of The Jockey Club, with F. K. Sturgis, Vice Chairman, and H. K. Knapp, Secretary and Treasurer. Francis R. Hitchcock, H. K. Knapp, and Andrew Miller were appointed as a License Committee.

The National Steeplechase and Hunt meeting was taken up principally with the election and appointment of various officials to serve during the year. Henry J. Morris, Henry W. Bull, and Joseph E. Widener were elected Stewards, to serve until 1922. Major August Belmont was re-elected President and Harry S. Page to the Vice Presidency. But Mr. Page declined that office, and Henry J. Morris had it added to his manifold duties in the government of steeplechasing. Frederic F. McElhone was elected to membership and the following appointments were made:

Frank J. Bryan, Secretary of the Hunts Committee; George W. Gall, Assistant Secretary of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association; Executive Committee—A. Henry Higginson, Henry W. Bull, Harry S. Page, Henry J. Morris, and F. S. Von Stade; Committee on Licenses—Morris, Higginson, and Bull; Committee on Courses—Morris, Von Stade, and Higginson; Representatives on the Hunts Committee—Von Stade, Page, and Higginson.

At the meeting of the United Hunts Racing Association I. J. R. Murrling was elected President to succeed Captain Perry Belmont, whose war work prevented him from giving the time necessary to the association. Captain F. S. von Stade was elected First Vice President, and F. Ambrose Clark Second Vice President. President Murrling was made Treasurer. Harry A. Buck was re-elected Secretary.

The Board of Directors elected is composed of Captain Perry Belmont, F. Ambrose Clark, I. J. R. Murrling, and Edward F. Whitney. Various other committees were appointed for the conduct of the sport during the season.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Saratoga Association for the improvement of the Breed of Horses the following Board of Directors was re-elected:

HOLMAN LEAVES C. C. N. Y.

YALE TO RACE ON CHARLES.

Princeton May Also Meet Harvard on Cambridge Course.

The Harvard-Yale boat race next Spring will be held on the Charles River, in Cambridge. Last year the Crimson raced the Eli crew over the new course on the Housatonic River, at Derby, Conn. Harvard also went down to Carnegie Lake, Princeton, to row the Tigers last season, and it is very likely that the Orange and Black crew will also row next Spring on the Charles.

While there is a strong desire on the part of college officials to continue the home and home dual races at Derby and on the Charles, it is believed that college sports at New Haven and Cambridge will be back on a normal basis by the spring of 1920 and that then the annual regatta at New London may be resumed.

The Harvard oarsmen have already got down to indoor work on the machines and at New Haven Professor Mather Abbott will have the Eli sweeps at work in a short time. Of last year's Yale crew, which was defeated by both Harvard and Princeton, Captain Mead, Austin, Adams, McHenry, Munson, Vail, Knox, Patterson and Borders have already returned to college and together with members of the 1921 crew plenty of material should be on hand for an excellent season. Yale will follow the policy of a Faculty coach for another season, at least.

The heavy financial burden of the New London regatta makes that event an impossibility for another year, or perhaps two. Rowing is the most costly sport at both universities because neither brings in any revenue. There is no way of collecting admission fees and whatever receipts the boat house gets are payments for lockers or gifts from alumni.

The crew at Harvard in the past has cost about $25,000 a year, and with the present retrenchment policy in operation at Cambridge, this outlay will have to be cut in half, at least this year. For one thing, the three weeks' special training at Red Top, where Harvard has special quarters, its own chef, training table and other privileges, will have to be shelved. The cost for the Yale crew at Gales Ferry, the Elis' crew camp on the banks of the Thames, is just as heavy as Harvard's outlay. The fact that the Harvard crew last season defeated both Yale and Princeton without any special training opened the eyes of the rowing officials at Cambridge to the fact that successful crews can be developed without any special expenditures as in the past. This revelation may, of course, result in a permanent change in the rowing races of the two universities, although there is a strong inclination on the part of the alumni of both universities to revive the picturesque New London classic when conditions warrant.

JORDAN WINS CUE TITLE.

Alfred Jordan defeated William Waldron in the second game of the playoff of the tie resulting in the recent English billiard tournament last night at Doyle's Billiard Academy by a score of 250 to 130. Having won this game, Jordan is declared winner of this English cue title. Jordan in the course of play made a high run of 40, while Waldron's highest was 26. The total score for two days' play was 500 and 339 respectively for winner and loser.

In the amateur championship pocket billiard tournament of the A. A. B. A. Charles Fulton defeated Norman Zibbard by a score of 100 to 77. Fulton made a high run of 16, while his opponent's highest was 12. Tonight Edward Kirby will try conclusions with Max Bache.

MATTY MAY NOT RETURN TO REDS

Duties Apt to Detain Him in France and Groh Is Likely to Succeed Him as Manager.

Captain Christy Mathewson, the former idol of the Giants, and manager of the Cincinnati Club, has notified friends in his home town, Factoryville, Penn., that he probably will not be back from France in time to pilot the Reds next Spring. Matty expects that the unit to which he is attached will be selected as part of the army of occupation in Germany later on, and, in that event, he will not be able to get back to this country for several months.

President Herrmann of the Cincinnati Club, it is expected, will make some definite announcement about a manager for next season at a meeting in this city next week. The player who has been spoken of as Matty's successor is Heinie Groh, the peppery little third baseman of the Rediegs. If he gets the job Groh will be the only playing manager in the major leagues.

Captain Mathewson at the present time is a divisional gas officer in the Twenty-eighth Pennsylvania Division. It was at his request that he was attached to a division from his native State. Since the armistice was signed, Mathewson's duties have been to mass the shells loaded with mustard gas which have been left behind by the Huns and inspect the dugouts for gas and bombs. In one sector alone, Matty has informed his friends in recent letters, he and his assistants came across sufficient mustard gas to kill an army.

While some major league club owners favored a rule curtailing Southern trips to places no further South than the Carolinas, this scheme has been abandoned in view of the bright outlook for the game next Summer. At the meeting next week, an effort will be made to put through a ruling limiting the Southern trips to three weeks. The Chicago Cubs, however, have gone ahead and made arrangements to train in California, so it is doubtful if the rule will go through.

DARTMOUTH SIGNS SPEARS.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 9.—C. W. Spears, coach of the Dartmouth 'Varsity eleven in 1917 and of the Hanover S. A. T. C. team last Fall, has signed a contract to continue as coach of the Green team next season.

Spears has been connected with Dartmouth football since 1914. When he won a place at guard on the 'Varsity in 1915 he was picked by Walter Camp for his all-American eleven.

SPEAR RETAINS TITLE.

George Spear retained his metropolitan Class C, 18.2 balk line billiard championship title last night when he defeated the veteran Louis A. Servatius in the final game of the title tournament at the Broadway Academy by a score of 150 to 65. Spear's best display of form came in the thirtieth inning, when he gathered a cluster of fifty-one points, a record run for the tournament. His playing at other times, however, fell off, so that he required thirty-eight innings to complete his string. This gave him an average of 3 36-38. Servatius played in wretched form from the start and never really threatened Spear's lead. The veteran had a high run of eight and an average of 1 27-38.

This victory gives Spear permanent possession of the championship cup.

Will Hold Dog Show in June.

The annual dog show of the Ladies' Kennel Club of America will be held June 3 and 4, it was announced yesterday, following the ratification of these dates at the club's annual meeting. The committee has not yet decided where the fixture will be held, although a number of favorable places are under consideration. This detail will be announced within the next few days.

LAW OF THE WORLD A GREAT NEW STUDY

HAILS RETURN OF DISCIPLINE

Tells of Columbia's Part in the War and Advocates System for Reducing the Faculties.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, in his annual report made public yesterday, said that, unless all signs failed, among the most important subjects of university study in the immediate future would be international relations, including international law and public law, both constitutional and administrative.

"The new international movement," he said, "so far as it is healthy and sound, is founded upon a common respect for law and justice, a common interest in the steady improvement of the lot of human beings and the promotion of their satisfaction and happiness and upon an earnest purpose to unite the force of reason and righteousness for the removal of international war, and for the suppression of international war itself.

"The danger to be guarded against is lest a shallow and superficial sentimentalism shall usurp the place which belongs to reasonableness and to straight thinking. The world will not be made either wise or happy in a single day, nor will its wisdom and happiness be assured by judicial decree, legislative enactment or international agreement, however judicious and well-supported these may seem to be."

The war, President Butler pointed out, has brought back to the schools and colleges the spirit of discipline which had been almost lost, and the casual and easy-going methods of university life have been swept away. "When to the long experience of Summer sessions," he declared, "is now added the experience of instruction reorganized in response to national needs, it would seem to be nothing short of a calamity even to permit a return to the old and unhappy conditions of diffusion and discursiveness."

Of the effect of the war, Dr. Butler said:

"Columbia University, as a great public service institution with an unbroken record of patriotic devotion to the highest public interest, could have no end or purpose of its own to serve that would for a moment compare with its duty to assist the Government in the prosecution of the war to a victorious conclusion. Students by the hundred and prospective students by the thousand entered the military, naval, or civil service of the United States; teachers and administrative officers to the number of nearly 400 sought and obtained leaves of absence or resigned their posts in order to enter the service of the Government; courses of instruction were modified or abandoned; habitual modes of procedure were altered; the whole university went upon a war footing.

"It would not be easy to find anywhere in the world an institution of higher learning whose spirit is finer, more devoted, more self-sacrificing, more truly liberal, more progressive, and more in touch with actual facts and problems of life than Columbia University. This modern spirit has been forty years in the making, and it is the result of a continuing wisdom, open-mindedness, and breadth of view which have been shared and contributed to by thousands of men and women, including trustees, teachers, administrators, alumni, and students.

"At no seat of learning will there be found more diverse and more diversified views strongly held and energetically supported and all maintaining themselves as best they can in the face of constant criticism, discussion, and experimentation. Nowhere is the scholar more free to choose his own tasks and to adjust his burdens to his own capacity to bear them. Nowhere is he more eagerly encouraged to produce, to inspire production in others, and to publish and record the results of his independent and original scholarship. Where Columbia University fails to achieve its ideals in any one of these regards, it is not because the spirit is wanting, but only because adequate means are not at hand for their accomplishment. He who cannot feel comfortable and at home in so free and diversified a society of scholars as this will find it difficult to choose a permanent resting place in any world inhabited by real men and women."

Dr. Butler asserted that there was every reason to believe that during 1918-1919 and following the normal income of the university from students' fees would be markedly reduced and that the financial problem which the trustees have to face will be of the utmost gravity. He pointed out that of the university's total income 42.4 per cent. was received from students' fees and 75.4 per cent. of the university's total disbursement was made for educational administration and instruction. For the year ending June 30, 1918, there was a deficiency as shown by the Treasurer's report of $215,703.59. Dr. Butler appeals to friends of the university everywhere and to the organized alumni of all its schools to raise funds at least sufficient to meet the deficit. He declared that this is the most pressing question of the moment.

Asserting that the graduate faculties at Columbia had too many professors, assistant professors, and associate professors, Dr. Butler, in advocating the establishment of the German docent system, said:

"The American universities are pretty generally engaged in unlearning some of the lessons taught them by the German universities, but there is one German university institution which is worthy of adaptation under American conditions. The ranks of the German university professors have long been recruited from what are called privat-docenten, a specially selected and licensed body of university graduates who, having taken the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, wish to devote themselves to higher teaching and research in a chosen field. Privat-docenten are permitted to offer courses of instruction which university students may take, if they will, in preference to those offered in the same or similar subjects by the university professors or in supplement to such. As the only income which a privat-docenten receives from the university is a share in the fees paid by those students who follow his particular courses, each privat-docenten is dependent upon his own efforts for his university income and for establishing himself in such a fashion as to make his advancement to a professorship likely.

"In our graduate faculties at Columbia University there have been too many professors, associate professors, and assistant professors, and too many formal courses of instruction offered. Some departments have felt that it was a cause of reproach if they did not cover in announced courses every portion of some great field of knowledge. Ambitions like these have had unhappy and very costly effects. It is time closely to restrict appointments to professorships, greatly to reduce the number of formal courses of lectures offered to graduate students, and to multiply the opportunities for such students to carry on independent study and research under guidance and stimulus while making provision for a body of younger teachers with the status of docents."

MUSIC

By James Gibbons Huneker

Two Orchestral Concerts.

New York enjoyed two orchestral concerts of artistic magnitude yesterday afternoon and evening at Carnegie Hall. Our own Symphony Society repeated the splendid program it presented last Saturday evening at the matinée: Tschaikovsky's ripest symphony, his fifth, the Euryanthe overture, Weber, some subtle harmonic trifles by Maurice of the Ravel tribe, and the E flat concerto of Liszt, with giant Josef Hofmann at the keyboard. With his accustomed sense of the fitness of things, Mr. Walter Damrosch played the sublime funeral march from the Heroic Symphony of Beethoven in memory of Theodore Roosevelt, a fitting tribute to the manes of a heroic man. The musical taste of Mr. Roosevelt was cultivated and he also loved a good old-fashioned tune, whether hymn or reel. He once told us that the last act full of fireworks of the Valkyrs always affected him as the most grandiose vision in all opera; he also entertained a profound reverence for Beethoven, but for latter-day composers he had little patience.

"I am not a man of the pavements," he wrote us in 1915, and his simple open-air soul couldn't abide the tortured tonalities and tortuous weavings of the new men in music. Some day a book should be written about Theodore Roosevelt as lover of the seven arts, and it would open the eyes of those who knew him only as a statesman, soldier, and naturalist. His versatility was astounding and his judgments not always rash. I consider his introduction to the poetical works of George Cabot Lodge, a young man of genius, gone before he had matured, a son of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. We heartily commend Mr. Damrosch's pious and artistic commemoration of a truly great American and one of the few whose greatness was not political pinchbeck. We hope other orchestral conductors will do likewise.

The Boston Symphony.

In the evening Mr. Henri Rabaud played an interesting program, which consisted of Vincent d'Indy's "Wallenstein's Trilogy," Opus 12, (after the dramatic poem of Schiller); "The Mystic Trumpeter," orchestral fantasy by Frederick Shepherd Converse, (after the poem by Walt Whitman); a Suite of the sixteenth century, by Farnaby and anonymous English composers, arranged by Henri Rabaud, and the overture to "King Lear," by Berlioz; altogether an unusual collocation, yet none the less diverting. The D'Indy music is beginning to date. It was "modern" years ago. It is no longer. The composer's "Istar" is of finer fibre and fabric; it is also a later work than the Trilogy, which was begun in 1873, and first heard here in 1888 at Steinway Hall, under the baton of Anton Seidl, who probably produced it because of its Wagnerisms. There are many.

In his program notes Philip Hale tells us Mr. Rabaud arranged three orchestral suites for the incidental music to "The Merchant of Venice," (at the Theatre Antoine, Paris, 1916-17, Lucien Népoly's version). The stage music was found in Fitzwilliam's Virginal Book of Queen Elizabeth, (who always harped on her Virginal;) "one of several MS. collections of clavier and arrangements for the clavier which were brought together in Elizabethan times. Mr. Rabaud has orchestrated the Suites for concert use, using instruments that are not anachronistic." It was the third Suite that was given on this occasion; it is in five movements.

"The Mystic Trumpeter" was first heard here at Carnegie Hall on April 2, 1916. The composer is a Massachusetts man, and despite his New England blood there is not ink ice-water in his score. Indeed, as music it is artistically superior to the music of the Camden poet, whose centenary we are to celebrate next May. However, the Whitmaniacs will demur at this assertion, so we withdraw it—temporarily; but what will the Wagnerites say? The mixture of Whitman and Wagner is about half and half, not forgetting a dash of the other Richard—Strauss is his last name. Mr. Converse is a master of his material. His orchestral hues are gorgeous. But the hands are the hands of Converse and the voice is the voice of Richard I. of Baireuth.

The old English Suite was charming as Mr. Rabaud knows the secret of orchestral coloring. The tunes were jolly and sweet and melancholy, and they did not suggest in the least their archaic origin, owing to the rich, even exotic, scoring; the Andante was a possible exception, yet the strings were too luscious, even lascivious, in quality for the quaint message they conveyed. And then came a blast from Berlioz, and all these Jerry-built musical walls of Jericho crumbled. The master spoke!

ARTHUR LOESSER PLAYS.

Arthur Loesser, pianist, who gave his first recital as a mature artist in Aeolian Hall last night—he once was heard as a 10-year-old boy at the Waldorf—was born in New York, and at 17 won the Morris Loeb prize in music here. He has since studied abroad, and during the war was associated with a tour of Maud Powell to California and Hawaii.

Mr. Loesser is a player of instinctive technique and sensitive appreciation, shown in his opening pieces from Chopin, and one from John Field, to whom the Pole frankly owed inspiration. Besides Beethoven's sonata, op. 31, No. 3, the later program had bits by Scarlatti, Loeliby, Liszt, Liadow, and of the living Saint-Saëns, Paderewski, and Gödowsky.

Weber's Opera 'Oberon' Sung Again

"Oberon," an opera of great and often familiar music to an old English fairy tale in spectacular setting, had its second performance before a fine house at the Metropolitan last evening. Weber's only opera in English has set the native language on a new plane of popularity on Broadway's premier stage by this revival out of the forgotten past, for already the work is redemanded and reannounced next week. In last evening's cast, led by Mr. Bodanzky, who adapted the score, there were heard Mmes. Ponselle and Gentle, Messrs. Martinelli, Althouse, Reiss and Rothier. The elaborate scenes, reduced to a third of the original bewildering transformations, were again heartily applauded.

Smith Makes Nash County Judge.

John H. McCooey, Democratic leader in Brooklyn, received word from Albany last night announcing the appointment by Governor Smith of ex-City Magistrate Howard Nash for the unexpired term of County Judge Robert H. Roy, who has been elected a Supreme Court Justice. Judge Nash was appointed City Magistrate by Mayor McClellan and was reappointed eight years ago by Mayor Gaynor. Judge Nash is the author of several law text-books and an active member of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce and the Brooklyn, Civic, and University Clubs.

150 SHOT IN RIOT IN BUENOS AIRES

STREET CARS OVERTURNED

Violence Reported Throughout City More Than 100,000 Men Said to be Involved.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 9.—It is reported that there were 150 casualities here this afternoon as a result of a clash between troops and strikers at the Vasena steel works. The troops opened fire on the strikers, who responded with rifles.

In the fight 20,000 strikers surrounded the plant in an atempt to force strike-breakers to leave it. The Government rushed up a squadron of National Mounted Police to escort the workers to safety.

During the afternoon street cars and taxicabs were overturned or destroyed. As night approached the situation admittedly was assuming grave proportions. There was violence in all parts of the city, as the strikers forced all workers to join them. They unhitched horses and turned them loose in the streets and attempted to burn the police station near the scene of Tuesday's fighting. Three policemen and several laborers were wounded.

In another section, an automobile carrying a Police Chief was fired upon after the chief refused to get out and walk. The street car employes, according to the officials, refused to leave their cars until they were forced to do so.

Police armed with rifles are patrolling the city tonight, assisted by armed firemen. The only motor cars which are allowed to operate undisturbed are those flying the red flag, which indicates that they are carrying strike agitators. More than fifty unions are said to have joined the strike movement.

Nearly all the industries of the city, including the transportation lines, have been paralyzed by the one-day strike called in protest against the "use of force by the State," in the fight Tuesday in which five metal workers were killed and thirty wounded. The strike was declared by the Regional Labor Federation, which was formed a few years ago by trades unions expelled from the Fifth Labor Congress because of alleged anarchistic tendencies.

Since noon no street cars, taxicabs, horse cabs, or delivery vehicles have been moving. The strike includes more than fifty branches of trade and affects more than 100,000 laborers.

All transatlantic shipping has been suspended until the strike is ended, it was announced after a meeting of shipping agents.

Alton Cleveland Put to Death.

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 9.—Alton Cleveland of Brooklyn was put to death in the electric chair in Sing Sing Prison at 11 o'clock tonight. As he went to his death he shouted "So long, boys;" to the other men in the death house. Cleveland requested the prison authorities to keep the news of his execution from his two daughters, one of whom was recently married. They have never written to him or come to see him since he has been here. Cleveland shot and killed May Lewis in a Brooklyn street on Feb. 18. He was 40 years old.

HENRY FORD SALUTATION.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Jan. 9.—Although the initial number of The Dearborne Independent, Henry Ford's new weekly paper, will not be published until Friday or Saturday, advance copies of Mr. Ford's salutary were released for publication today. Under the caption, "Mr. Ford's Own Pace," the former automobile manufacturer hands out wholesale advice to young men, depicting opportunities that await them everywhere in the industrial world, criticises alleged shortcomings in our industrial system, and declares that the World War was the result of "festering selfishness of men of power who regarded working men as factory fodder." Mr. Ford writes in part:

"One of the chief objects of this paper will be to point out to its readers the opportunities that lie everywhere about them, and advise how they may be used to their best advantage. Successful persons often say that opportunities are just as plentiful as they ever were—but they don't tell you what they are, where to find them, or how to use them. Therefore the object of this paper is to go straight to the point, and not deal in glittering generalities that mean nothing.

"We are in great need of new developments in industry today, for many reasons. During the war we found many leaks in our industrial system; we found many, many businesses which the Government described as 'non-essential.' They were wasting good labor and material in producing things we should have been better without. It is a bad thing to 'make business' by making articles that serve no use.

"I would rather hear that a man made a million plows than that he made a million dollars.

"There is a great deal of discussion in the newspapers concerning responsibility for the war. Everybody seems to be asking who started it, and many guesses are made.

"The war began in a bad condition everywhere—a condition which simply had to break because it was so bad. Individuals may have seized the occasion for their own personal ends, but there was a world condition that made it possible for them to do so.

"The world was simply festering with selfishness. Men of power regarded workingmen as factory fodder. We hear about militarists regarding citizens as mere cannon fodder. Well, there are men who exploit their human brothers as factory fodder to make money for themselves.

"We ought to double our guard against any of the old dangerous things creeping back into their former places.

"It is our hope that this paper will do its part in the new work. That is the only motive we have in creating it."

DETROIT, Jan. 9.—Announcement of the sale of the Abend Post, German language newspaper in existence since 1866, is made by John W. Smith, Jr., a local politician. E. G. Pipp, editor of Henry Ford's national weekly, The Dearborn Independent, and formerly editor-in-chief of The Detroit News, admitted late tonight that the Presidency of the company, that will publish a new English language afternoon daily to succeed the Abend Post, had been offered to him.

According to Mr. Smith's statement, the paper has been taken over by him as trustee for certain Detroit men interested in the establishment of another afternoon newspaper here. Their names he would not divulge.

The present positions held by Smith and Pipp on The Dearborn Independent gave color to a belief that the German paper was bought in the interest of Henry Ford. The new daily will be called The Detroit Evening Post.

SPORT-LOVERS!

Do You Know the Other Man's Game?

You have your own pet specialty down to a fine point. But do you know the other fellow's game? Are you at home in discussions of art? The theatre? Dancing? Do you know the points of a good dog? The current craze of society? Can you listen to that other fellow when he holds forth on his specialty as intelligently as you wish he'd listen when you hold forth on yours?

DON'T BE A MENTAL HERMIT CRAB!

It won't listen unless you can hold up your end when the talk veers to Caproni airplanes, or Ming porcelains, or cubist poetry, or the dimple in Ann Pennington's left . . . er . . . cheek!

It doesn't enjoy seeing you sit there—bored and boring. And it doesn't invite you again.

And yet the secret of social success is so easy—so simple—so inexpensive to learn. All you need to do is to tear off that coupon and spend a single dollar for the one magazine that keeps you in touch with every new movement; with every new tendency; with every new sport; with every phase of artistic, social, and intellectual American life; the magazine that makes you a social asset instead of a social liability—Vanity Fair.

Vanity Fair costs $3 a year—35 cents a copy. There is more mental stimulation in one single copy than in fourteen yards of Bergson. Yet if you do not know Vanity Fair, or would like to know it better, you may have five whole copies for an insignificant dollar bill—six, if you mail the coupon at once.

Five Issues of Vanity Fair for $1

Six, if you mail the coupon now

AT WORK.

General Grant's well-remembered adjuration, "Let us have peace," was never more appropriate than at the present moment. The world wants peace, it wants the end of the war irrevocably declared by the signing of the Treaty of Peace. The armistice was signed two months ago. If we allow one month for the nations to recover from the shock of peace—for at least there was a shock of surprise that the tremendous war had so suddenly ended—there is left one month in which the formulation of peace terms should have proceeded rapidly. There has been delay, some avoidable delay. But the treaty-makers have had an opportunity to get acquainted, by this time they should have come to a good understanding of each other's views.

It is encouraging to learn from Paris dispatches that the statesmen and envoys now in that city are constantly in conference. Clemenceau, Lord Robert Cecil, Stephen Pichon, the French Minister of Foreign Affairs; Marshal Foch, Secretary Lansing, Colonel House, and now President Wilson are meeting every day. Mr. Lloyd George, however, has postponed his going to Paris, so the date for the beginning of the formal conferences is still uncertain.

Not till then can the envoys begin the drawing up of protocols or putting documents in shape for final revision. The conditions of actual settlement with the Central Powers are already so well understood that an agreement upon the form in which they are to be presented to the representatives of Germany and her late allies should not be long deferred.

The conclusion of peace, the signing of the treaty, is the immediate business before the Conference. We hope nothing will be permitted to cause postponement. There is danger in delay; evil conditions have already arisen, other ills threaten. The man still in the armies of the Allies are visibly becoming impatient, but they are not more impatient than the whole world for the conclusion of peace. Immense works of reorganization and reconstruction await the signing of the treaty. They cannot be undertaken until it is signed. The nations that have listened to so much antecedent discussion now want action at Paris.

TWO GOOD APPOINTMENTS.

Governor Smith made yesterday two admirable appointments. Mr. Charles F. Rattigan of Auburn, Warden of Auburn State Prison from 1913 to 1916, named as State Superintendent of Prisons, represents in practical administration the humane ideas of Mr. Thomas Mott Osborne, his townsman and associate, in regard to prison discipline and prison reform, ideas which, in their generous general scope, Mr. Smith approved in his message. "The man power of our jails and prisons," he wrote, "* * * is still kept under an iron discipline which degrades and tends to destroy the very manhood it is our intention to restore."

While the punitive intention of our correctional institutions must be maintained more firmly than Mr. Osborne, in his enthusiasm, has always remembered, the moral reconstruction of convicts, the work of human salvage, intelligent discipline without cruelty or arbitrariness or passion, the duty of the State to itself and the interest of the State in repairing, so far as it can, its derelicts, must have a great part in fruitful prison administration. Our prisons have been too harshly and too long a branch of politics. The appointment of Mr. Rattigan gives hope and promise that they are to be restored to their proper use.

Mr. Lewis Nixon, a graduate of Annapolis, a highly competent and experienced administrator and manager of great business enterprises, is made State Superintendent of Public Works. That post has been too much regarded as a counter to peddle spoils from. Mr. Nixon is a man of energy, of strong executive talent. His brief excursions into politics have shown him, to his honor, a poor politician of the school to which he belongs by association, not by instinct. His eminent constructive capacity fits him peculiarly for the place to which he is nominated. The more of himself and the less of politics he puts into it, the better for the State and his fame.

Everybody but spoils-mongering politicians will approve Governor Smith's two appointments.

GETTING TOGETHER.

Judge Gary said the other day that in the future "there will be a disposition on the part of those in authority to assist rather than attack business effort." Hardly had he so expressed himself when the Department of Justice announced its intention of pressing its policy against price fixers, although Judge Gary himself was among those who had agreed that the prices in their trades ought to be reduced. A more cheering sign of Government disposition to co-operate with business is given by Secretary of Commerce Redfield's acceptance of the invitation to address the Council on Foreign Trade Relations in this city next Tuesday. The Secretary is bringing with him several attachés at European and South American commercial centres to support the keynote which he himself may be expected to strike. The Council includes several "dollar a year" men, and the recognition of it by the Secretary indicates a readiness to accept suggestions from such a source as well as to give information.

There is an embarrassment of topics for such a company of business men and administrators. The economic future is as "wide open" as the political. Commercial treaties have been scrapped throughout the world, and nobody can tell what will take their place. Germany's idea was to bind its victims to grant most favored nation tariff treatment to itself, after it had imposed such terms of exceptional treatment as are exemplified in its treaties of peace with Rumania and Russia. The American idea on that subject is that favored nation treatment should be given only for consideration, and after agreement between the nations concerned. Whether or not there shall be an international league, the settlement of the collision between the European and American policies toward favored nations will come up for decision at a time when the world's trade is open for readjustment. In a situation of this scope the address of the Secretary and his "cabinet" to the Council should be fruitful of ideas.

"WASH SALES" OF BONDS AND GOODS.

The establishment of losses by sales of Liberty bonds without losing the bonds, for the sake of evading Federal tax payments, has served the purpose of calling attention to the like practice regarding goods by merchants. The Liberty bond sellers are imitators, not innovators, although they have received the attention which merchants have escaped. The two incidents together emphasize the imperfection of the Federal tax law in this important particular. The Washington dispatch in The Sunday Times calls attention to the Treasury's ruling upon this point a year ago. When the 1917 tax payments were being calculated the Treasury ruled that dealers in securities and in goods might value their property at either cost or market price, but that their accounts must be kept consistently one year with another.

It is clear that if the accounts were kept one way one year and another way another year, the Treasury could be deprived of its dues; the law would be kept, but in a manner little different from evasion. Taxpayers thought the option thus given by the Treasury was no more than just under a law which took too many advantages of them. The authors of the law had this option in mind, among other things, when they stiffened it because it contained too many ways of easing the payment of taxes. Both views were natural. The taxlayers wanted a punitive law. Under conditions of shifting values the taxpayers wanted a law which would enable them to remain solvent. They found the Treasury sympathetic and helpful, for the law annoyed the tax collectors as much as the taxpayers. The point is fundamental; it was taken to the Attorney General, and into the courts, and it is there awaiting decision at the same time that the law itself is undergoing revision.

It would seem that Congress, which has so much time to spare for so many other things, might have time to lay taxes. But personal engagements of the Chairmen of the committees are now delaying the conference upon the 602 amendments which are in disagreement between the two houses. It is planned, even, to vote how the money shall be spent before voting how the Government is to get it. That is to say, the supply bills are to have precedence over the tax bill, which is to be kept in conference until the President returns. The Treasury has declined to take responsibility for collecting taxes under the new bill unless it shall be passed by the middle of this month, and the planners at Washington have thought of deferring the tax bill until the last week of the session, which ends March 4. The worries of business men with their taxes and their inventories are the least of the troubles of the political strategists. The Democrats are trying to forestall the need of an extra session of Congress, and they are manoeuvring about that while the Treasury and the taxpayers are losing sleep over the sums set them to do. They are thinking more of taxes than even of the railroad bill, or the peace negotiations, or which party shall have control of them.

Taxes on excess profits are bad enough, but taxes on paper values are worse, and they run through the commodity markets as well as the bond markets. As the bill stands it proposes readjustments in future years of tax hardships in inventory valuations this year. The entire tax question is to be thrown into suspense account because Congress cannot make up its mind about this year's taxes. The profits from which excess taxes are to be taken are past, and have largely been converted into goods or plant on which values are shrinking. A tax bill which would have been endurable a year ago approaches the unendurable now. The Senate has found 602 faults with the House's work, and the spokesman for the House has said that the Senate's proposals won't do at all. Why persist with so imperfect a measure? The case calls for a half dozen fundamental amendments more than for 602 amendments of details. There would be little trouble if the taxlayers would think of revenue only. The troubles in details spring from the effort to accomplish other ends by the tax route.

BERGER AND THE SOCIALISTS.

That Victor L. Berger should have been astonished at his conviction, as he certainly was, will give the same feeling of astonishment to most people who read about it. All that was necessary for the prosecution was to produce the evidence of his own writings and the anti-war Socialist platform drawn up by him and his colleagues. The prosecution, as it turns out, might as well not have produced any further evidence, for the foreman of the jury says:

> We paid more attention to the documentary evidence than to the testimony. * * * The documentary evidence showed that these men had deliberately, in wartime, set out to hinder the nation and help the enemy and had broken laws well known to them. We could see nothing innocent in their intent.

And yet the Socialists persist in believing, or at least in saying, that Berger and his co-defendants were convicted because they were Socialists, and in talking about the "capitalistic court" that convicted them. Morris Hillquit, for instance, telegraphed this comment:

> The conviction is an act of frank and brutal class justice. It is a deliberate challenge to the Socialist movement. The Socialists will take up the challenge.

Julius Gerber, Executive Secretary of Local New York of the Socialist Party, telegraphed to Berger and his co-defendants, now his fellow-convicts:

> The bourgeoisie is true to its class as you were to yours. Your silence in a jail will do more to awaken the workers to the real causes of the course [curse?] of the capitalistic system.

Evidently the Socialist Party is going to take this tack. If we are to grant them belief in their sincerity, how shall we explain the movement of their minds? To convict of sedition men who broke the sedition law is, they tell us, "frank and brutal class justice." Then violators of the sedition law must be a social class. "It is a deliberate challenge to the Socialist movement." This from Hillquit, a lawyer, who must know that the jury could consider only the question of fact whether these men had broken a specific law as charged in the indictment. And their imprisonment will help "awaken the workers to the real causes of the curse of the capitalistic system." That is, the workers, studying the case and finding that Berger broke the law of sedition, will conclude that to convict men of sedition when they have committed sedition is a mark of "the capitalistic system." The force of folly could no further go.

Singular as must have been Berger's reasoning to expect acquittal on such evidence as his own writings, it is much more understandable than the kind of reasoning that sees in his conviction of a specific crime proof that the Federal Court sitting in Chicago had issued "a challenge to the Socialist movement." That reasoning is so hard to understand that we decline to believe its sincerity, the more so when a man like Hillquit, who so certainly knows better, employs it. Obviously it is fraudulent reasoning.

ANARCHY IN BERLIN.

Whoever shall ultimately get the upper hand in Berlin, it is plain enough that the Ebert Government committed a fatal error when they allowed the Spartacus group of rebels to grow as it did. Bolshevism has to be grappled with at the outset, and seized firmly by the throat before it can spread. Lvoff and afterward Kerensky were afraid to use force against Bolshevism, and their Governments fell. The Ebert Government has followed in their footsteps.

The explanation of their indecision probably is that they did not believe they could rely on their troops. The same thing happened frequently in the French Revolution. But if their Government now falls, it must be plain to them that they could not be any worse off if they had tried their best in the first place. Granted that their troops would have deserted them and that they would have had to surrender or flee for their lives, they would have been in precisely the predicament they will be in now, if their Government is overthrown. There is a difference, however; if they had tried greatly to cope with the infant monster before it began to grow, they would have the heartening consciousness that they had acted the part of men on the world's stage.

GENERAL J. FRANKLIN BELL.

In the passing of Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell the country has lost one of its most accomplished soldiers. Since he had been of late associated intimately with this community, it may be said that New York has lost one of its first citizens. Impaired health denied him an opportunity in France, but he was so good a regular that he improved the one opportunity left him, that of training the 77th Division until it was letter-perfect and infused with his own gallant, loyal, and indomitable spirit. Its fine performance in the Argonne Forest consoled him for what he had missed himself. The material drawn from the city's population was not altogether promising. But Franklin Bell, as he was known in the army, judged human nature shrewdly and kindly. He could sift the born soldiers from the dullards, and his patience was infinite. In a brief time by example as well as by intensive training, by sympathy with the backward as well as by discipline, he molded the crudeness sent him until it satisfied him as a finished product, ready to obey without questioning and eager to show its worth in the field.

He was just as outspoken as Colonel Roosevelt, almost as impulsive, a man of ideals and enthusiasms, like the President who made him Chief of Staff, preferring him to the whole list of Major Generals, including his old chief, General MacArthur. But Bell was never merely a regular, intent only on the round of an army officer's duties. He was a great reader of history and military campaigns, something of a philosopher, in his way a moralist. He saw the defects of the old enlistment system, and the merits of a conscript army loomed large to him. Like Marshal Foch, he believed that the soldier who fought for a principle would be more formidable than the soldier who fought for pay automatically. With all his soul he believed in the Upton Division, and it did not disappoint him. And how he longed to go overseas with his "boys"!

Years before an observant cavalry officer had said of him: "A man like Bell would be worth his weight in gold on the field of battle." As a matter of fact, there was no officer in the army better versed in the theory of war and none with higher qualifications for leadership and great responsibilities. He was skilled in organization, in the command of troops he had proved himself most versatile, as an offensive fighter he had no superior in the American Army; difficulties never dismayed him, and a braver man never drew breath. When General Bell retired from the post of Chief of Staff, Secretary Dickinson wrote of him: "The work which you have done, especially in the discipline and education of the army, will stand as an enduring monument to your worth." This was not long after the General's return from the Philippines, where as Chief of Scouts to General MacArthur and Colonel of the 36th Volunteer Infantry (nicknamed the Suicides' Club) he had been the hero of many exploits and hairbreadth escapes, and had won the Medal of Honor by an exhibition of headlong bravery that he could not be induced to talk about. The subject, he said, was "wearisome" to him.

In the Philippines Bell was sometimes deemed reckless, but there was method in all he did, and he never lost his head. His reputation grew as he went up grade by grade. It was expected that in the event of war he would be called to high command. Fate ordered otherwise, but the services he rendered as an organizer and leader and patriotic American "over here" enhanced his fame. His was an inspiring example, not only to the young soldiers whom he trained but to the people in his audiences who listened to his public addresses, which were remarkable for their martial spirit and breadth of view.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Leisure Had No Attractions.

Few men have ever lived lives that made guesses at the value of his estate an answer more absurd to the question, "What was he worth?" than they are in the case of Theodore Roosevelt. Between himself and money nobody ever saw, or now sees, any distinctly measurable relation, and yet the fact that from the beginning of his career he had enough to make him what in other days would have been called rich doubtless did have something to do with determining the nature and quality of that career. It at least enabled him to devote much of his attention to public service with complete indifference to whether or not he thus could maintain himself and his family in the style that suited his taste and his judgment as to the material things necessary to happiness.

That his inheritance was large enough to relieve him from the necessity to work is a thought that probably never entered his mind. From boyhood up he would have been miserable in idleness, and it is almost certainly true to say that all that wealth did for him was to leave him free to choose the activities that pleased him, instead of engaging in others imposed by the compulsion to earn money.

The nearest to a business venture in which he ever engaged was his experiment with cattle-raising in the West, but as he sought—and got—much more out of that than financial profit would have been, he had no reason to complain—and didn't—of the financial losses he then incurred. They were irrelevant, incompetent, and immaterial, as the lawyers say—an investment that paid big dividends in later days to him both as a politician and a writer.

Tireless as Reader and Writer.

Best known as the holder of public offices, rising in rapid succession to the Presidency, Colonel Roosevelt's fondest ambition seems to have been not exactly to gain fame from his writings, but to deserve it by what he wrote. That was his "profession," if he had any, and, incidentally, his pen brought in no inconsiderable addition to his income. Quite properly, he was not averse from accepting the high prices that publishers and editors were willing to pay for his literary productions. He took their market value, just as does every honest writer who works in fair competition with other writers, and while he hoped and expected that his books would do more than bring money to himself, he had no scorn for that evidence of his own efficiency and the appreciation of other people. He wrote as he read, at astonishing speed; but in his writings there were few or no evidences of haste, just as there was none in what he remembered of the innumerable books of all sorts, heavy and light, that he literally and insatiably devoured in the moments which to other men would be of leisure. He seemed to skim through them at racehorse speed, but he really read them and remembered the essentials of their content.

This Sounds Rather Bolshevikian.

It is with something of apprehension, as well as with much of astonishment, that one saw in yesterday's dispatches the report of an announcement by the British Government that no officer or soldier in France could come home on leave unless he first promised to return if ordered back. That is about as far as possible from being the language supposed to be the only language used in armies—the only language that men under discipline expect to hear or should.

If the British commanders fear, as they must if this report is true, that once in England their men would not obey orders to go anything or go anywhere, why are they not equally afraid that their men will be as indocile in France? The exercise of private judgment is no more and no less insubordinate in the one country than in the other.

The British soldier, too, is about the last who would be expected to recoil from foreign service, no matter how long or how arduous. It is the service to which he has been most accustomed for many generations, and it has not been his wont to decide for himself when it is necessary or when he has had enough of it. India was not won or held, and an empire on which the sun never sets was not created and defended, by men who could not safely be trusted to return to their posts after a leave spent in the land that is always "home" to the Briton, no matter how long he has been away from it or even if he has never seen it.

An army that will not obey orders unquestioningly is not an army at all, but a mob, of no use to itself and dangerous to everybody else. Surely the British Army has not come to that, and it must at least be hoped that the report as to leaves thus conditioned is wholly false or the result of a strange misunderstanding.

Probability Is All Against It.

Such a story as the latest about the Czar leaves the mind torn between faith and incredulity. It is, of course, among the conceivabilities and the possibilities that a devoted officer, long closely associated with the Czar, would have insisted on receiving the bullet intended for his master, and that the latter, thus saved, could be hurried off to some secret hiding place, whence he is to reappear later. History records two or three episodes more or less like that, but it also records a vastly greater number of similar yarns that were the products of pure imagination, devised in the interest of mendacious claimants to titles and thrones.

Russia has had her false Dimitri, and there is hardly a country in Europe which at one time or another has not become more or less excited over the pretended rights of men who come to life after having been supposed definitely and finally out of the way. It is the harder to believe this tale because the Czar—well, he was always credited with possessing at least amiable weaknesses, but nobody ever seriously claimed for him qualities of the sort that inspire the supreme devotion required for a sacrifice of life in his place.

There is a strong implication of bribery in the story. That gives it something of verisimilitude, Russia being Russia, and Bolshevists Bolshevists, but the difficulty of accepting the vicarious death remains, large and solid.

Ruling on Imports Held in Holland.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read in your issue of the 26th inst. a letter from Irving E. Doob, Esq., relating to the position of importers who bought German merchandise before the war. In this letter he states that such merchandise, now owned by American importers, lies "on Dutch piers as inaccessible as if it were still upon soil of the enemy. This is the helpless condition of the importer today. It is plain confiscation."

In this connection, as the address of Mr. Doob does not appear, may I ask that you transmit to him the correct information? Under a ruling of the War Trade Board, effective Dec. 16, 1918, favorable consideration may be given to applications for license to import goods of enemy origin, provided proof is furnished that the commodities were purchased by residents of the United States, and fully paid for by them and shipped from Germany into Holland, all prior to April 6, 1917, and provided, also, that it shall appear as a result of due investigation by the War Trade Board representatives at The Hague that the granting of permission for the importation of said goods into the United States will not in any way, either by the release of funds or the creation of credits, or otherwise, accrue to the benefit of any person defined as an "enemy" under the "Trading with the Enemy act." However, where such investigation has not already been made, either by the State Department or the War Trade Board, it will now be conducted only upon the applicant's undertaking to pay the necessary costs.

From this ruling it is evident that the position of the importer today is not a helpless one, and that the rulings of the War Trade Board do not result in confiscation.

ROOSEVELT'S INFLUENCE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In connection with the many forms of public service which Colonel Roosevelt rendered the country I see no mention of one which many would regard the greatest of all—that is, the change due primarily to him in the moral sense of the nation. It is not always easy to trace causes and assign deserts; in this case it is not difficult, the facts are patent and the tribute is due.

It is not many years since, when occasion arose, it was widely asserted that the private morals of a public man were nobody's affair but his own. Today it may be safely claimed that there are few, if any, constituencies in the length and breadth of the land with which a charge of flagrant immorality would not at once destroy a candidate's chance of election to office. More than to any other man, I believe, this is due to Theodore Roosevelt. From the beginning of his public career, in season and out of season, he insisted on common morality as the prime duty of all, both in public and in private. His own sturdy integrity enforced it, and despite the sneers of his opponents about his "Sunday school politics," he never desisted or modified his demands. He died holding a place in the hearts of the American people, and commanding the respect and admiration of the people of Europe, as no man has since President Lincoln, though in the latter relation President Wilson is now winning similar recognition.

Living always in the limelight of vigorous publicity, constantly holding high office, invariably surrounded with enemies who feared or hated him, and opponents whose ways or interests he attacked, he has this to his undying credit, that he stood, first and last, for a morality in personal life so plain and compelling as to be understood of every man, and he lived to see it adopted by his fellow-citizens as the standard of their judgment of their representatives and at last of themselves.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The following from an article which appeared in the issue of The Chicago Prosveta of Nov. 27, 1918, gives a fair idea of how matters stand between Italy and the Jugoslavs.

H. R. CHUPURDY.

[Inclosure.]

The proposed annexation of the Jugoslav territory by Italy will by no means contribute to such a peace as desired, but, on the contrary, it will leave a new Alsace-Lorraine; it will leave for Italy a "Slava Irredenta," costing her an untold amount of trouble, with no prospect of solution other than as it is proposed now—self-determination.

"Let the people decide! Let the issue be settled in the only just and democratic way, as proposed by President Wilson. Let the plebiscite of the inhabitants of Gorizia, Trieste, Istria, occupied part of Carniola, Dalmatia, and the Dalmatian Islands, upon the basis of universal, secret, and equal suffrage, both sexes eligible, and under the supervision of an American commission, decide whether they want to belong to a free State of Jugoslavia or to be annexed to a foreign nation.

Poles Want German Ships.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some time ago there were articles concerning the division of the Hun and Austrian high seas fleet, with some comments that the Allies cannot use their ships conveniently since the construction does not meet their standard requirements.

Permit me to say a few words. Does it not seem just that Poland shall not be forgotten in the partition of those ships? She does not need warships, I suppose, but she badly needs merchant vessels, and they can be adapted to such use in the extremes she experiences.

Those enemies of humanity, Russia included, have been spoliating Poland for over a century. And is it not a fact that the moneys spent on their construction came to an enormous extent, if not entirely, from Poland?

I have been much interested in the discussion as to what shall be done with the surrendered German war vessels. Notwithstanding the many difficulties the problem presents, it seems a needless and wicked waste to destroy them. A possible solution I have not seen mentioned. Why could not these vessels be sold at auction, either singly or in groups, to the highest bidder among the allied nations, including the United States? The proceeds could be used in caring for the families of allied seamen killed or permanently disabled in the war, distribution being proportionate to such losses sustained.

A GARDEN OF THE BRAVE.

One lovely corner there shall be a grave—

And in my dream I see a quiet nook,
'Neath blue forget-me-not.

The sons of France lie sleeping.

Where stanch Australians rest. And very near,

Old Ireland's sons, her bravest and her best.
And hark! The music of the pipes! They play

Where glowing California poppies nod,

I dream that as the years move on apace,
We'll fare as Pilgrims to this hallowed place,
And pause beside each fragrant, flowering glade,
Or rest beneath the leafy maples' shade,
And hold communion there in love divine,

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—By a vote of 270 to 30 the House today passed substantially unamended the Administration bill legalizing verbal war contracts made prior to the signing of the armistice. These contracts for war materials, according to present estimates, amount to $2,783,130,000, of which $1,383,130,000 are held by British, French, and Italian firms and Governments.

Opposition appeared throughout the day and scores of amendments were offered, chief among them being that sponsored by Representative J. Hampton Moore, which provided for the appointment of a Congressional committee to act with the Secretary of War in deciding the legality of the oral and verbal contracts. It was defeated by 104 votes to 60.

Representative Mann, Republican leader, took the floor and pleaded with his colleagues to "keep faith with the men who had kept faith with the Government when it most needed work performed.

"We went into the war without preparation, without organization, soldiers, guns, ammunition, methods of transportation—without an army or supplies for an army," said Mr. Mann. "Every one understood the tremendous undertaking which the nation confronted. We pledged the resources of the country for winning the war and carried out that pledge. In doing so the Government called upon the people to aid in furnishing supplies and in creating an army.

"To get the army, we enacted the Selective Draft law, which gave us an army but no equipment. To get that equipment the Government appealed to business men, manufacturers, miners, and all others in industry to aid the Government. Further than that, we gave the President autocratic powers to commandeer all agencies of industry in prosecuting the war, and he exercised those powers.

"The great trouble with the Government, any government, is red tape. The commander in chief of an army must cut red tape. If I were to criticise the War Department, I would say they were not too hasty, but too slow, in obtaining supplies. The whole attitude of the public was 'red tape be damned,' for they believed the sooner the red tape was cut the sooner the war would be over, and therefore the better it would be for all.

"It was this spirit of abolishing red tape that inspired patriotic business men to go ahead and furnish supplies without waiting for formal contracts with the Government. Had the war continued, all these informal contracts would have been made formal and this legislation never would have been required. But like a flash the end of the war came.

"I want to say now that I believe the dignity of this House and of this country requires that we should not take advantage of technicalities in regard to these contracts. We cannot afford to repudiate obligations that we were seeking to incur to end the war.

"We asked the people to respond to the needs of the war. They did so, and we ought not now to plead the baby act and say that we had no formal contract for supplies."

This speech clarified the atmosphere and would have led to passage without a roll call but for a point of no quorum made by Representative Wilson of Illinois. Upon a roll call the vote was 270 for and 30 against, with 3 voting present.

The Senate Military Committee also approved a similar bill placing adjustment in the hands of the Secretary of War. It thus reversed its previous action in voting for a special commission to adjust verbal contracts.

151,000 TROOPS RETURNED.

About One-Twelfth of Our Army in France Has Already Sailed.

PARIS, Jan. 9.—Virtually one-twelfth of the total of the American Expeditionary Forces landed in France have already sailed on their return journey to the United States.

American General Headquarters announced today that more than 151,000 soldiers, comprising 10,435 officers and 140,689 noncommissioned officers and privates, had left France.

The figures include all soldiers who have left France since the first American troops set foot on European soil, nearly twenty months ago. They also include officers and men returning to training camps or the sick and wounded who have gone since the armistice. The large proportion of officers is due to the fact that some were sent back as instructors.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Practically all companies of the 37th Engineers and remaining units of the 20th Engineers, not included in previous War Department announcements, have been assigned to early convoy home. These, with other units on today's list, comprise 157 officers and 4,343 men. They are:

Regimental Headquarters, First Battalion Headquarters, and Companies A, B, C, D, E, and F of the 37th Engineers; Headquarters, 1st Battalion, medical detachment, 1st, 2d, 3d, and 36th Companies, 20th Engineers; Base Hospital No. 66; 17th, 148th, 657th, and 636th Aero Squadrons; 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th, 117th, 308th, 314th, and 315th Trench Mortar Batteries; 20th Company, 20th Engineers; 312th Sanitary Train Headquarters; 8th Trench Mortar Battery; Air Service Casual Company No. 1.

COLLEGE OPEN TO SOLDIERS

Soldiers at Camp Funston who are anxious to improve the comparatively idle hours of the months while they are awaiting demobilization are to have an opportunity of doing college work at Kansas State Agricultural College by virtue of an arrangement made with that institution by Major Gen. Leonard Wood, details of which have been received here. Soldier-students are to have a choice of three courses, an eight weeks' intensive course in agriculture, an eight weeks' intensive course in an engineering trade, and regular college courses for qualified men who desire to matriculate at the university and work for credit toward degrees.

In addition to these facilities, General Wood has arranged with the university for a course of lectures on government, government problems, citizenship, agriculture, and other subjects. These lectures will be designed to make the soldiers better Americans as well as to interest them in practical studies. Men who take the intensive courses are to be housed in barracks at the college grounds, but are to be under army officers and to maintain military discipline as well as obey all the rules of the university. Nominal fees are to be paid by the students themselves.

TO PAY FOR SWEDISH SHIPS.

United States Will Hand Over $11,000,000 to Owners on Account.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Edward N. Hurley and R. B. Stevens, of the American Shipping Board, after conferences with representatives of the Norwegian Shipping Association, have agreed that the United States shall pay immediately to the Norwegian shipowners $11,000,000, which is the amount the Norwegians had actually invested in contracts, material and ships when they were requisitioned by the United States when she entered the war.

The matter is left unsettled, however, as the amount is far below what the Norwegians claim. Further claims will be taken up in Washington, where Mr. Stevens will go soon in connection with this and other shipping matters.

The Norwegians said that some concerns faced disaster unless they obtained funds immediately. This brought about today's decision. The two settlement were unable to agree on a final settlement owing to wide differences of opinion as to the present market value of the ships and material taken by the United States.

DR. HODGE ATTACKS HOME PROPAGANDA

SEES DANGER OF AUTOCRACY

Says Americans Are Suffering from "Political Shell Shock"—Must Return to Democratic Habits.

Dr. Richard Morse Hodge, extension lecturer of Columbia University, delivered the first of his series of twelve addresses on "A Democratic Peace" at the Hotel Plaza yesterday morning, when his topic was "The Responsibility of the Civilian." The remaining eleven lectures will be delivered on succeeding Thursdays at 11 A. M., and the topic for the second is "Our Increased Knowledge of Other Peoples." Dr. Hodge spoke yesterday, in part, as follows:

"Political power is by publicity and control. The citizen controls by ballot, and his publicity is by speech, by the press, and by resolutions passed in assembly. When the ballot fails to sober an indifferent public servant he may be shamed by publicity, and if the publicity be unheeded at the time a following election may make an example of him by retiring him to private life. Publicity and control are the two feet upon which a citizen stands, and neither is a good support without the other.

"The more thorough is publicity, the more significant is the ballot; and the more intelligent the ballot becomes, the more open and intelligible become the proceedings of the Government. The more power to either, the more power to the other. The growth of democracy depends upon the constant development by the citizen of his two powers of publicity and control.

Propaganda Active as Ever.

"In an autocracy control is by force, and publicity descends to propaganda. We have struck the sword from Germany's hand, but her alternate power of propaganda is as active as ever, and as free and world-wide. It is as hard at work to divide the Allies as it was during the war and before that. We cannot suppress propaganda, and it is better to expose it. We defeat it by publicity.

"This 'Hun gas' put the whole world to sleep before the war. Now we are sophisticated, for the intellect can neutralize speech gas without donning a mask of cloth. We cannot neutralize United States Government propaganda, however, so easily. It is more subtle than the Hun product, and we are not yet sophisticated enough. We have the ability but not the power. We have the power before the war when we prized a free press above everything.

"Americans at present are suffering from political shell shock. We are bewildered enough to tolerate Government propaganda, as if we had not permitted the suppression of news during the war only to win the war. The same man who trusts Foch thoroughly to disarm Germany trusts the United States Government to regulate news and to seize wires and cables until the war ends with a peace signing.

Must Return to Democratic Habits.

"We always said that even rulers of a republic would abuse power if permitted to wield too much of it, and when we see this opinion demonstrated before our eyes it remains to many persons an unbelievable phenomenon on the magic soil of the United States.

"Either we won the war because democratic countries evolved men of initiative, whom soldiers of autocracy could not match, or else autocracy breeds the better brains and morale. Either we return promptly to our democratic habits of politics and industry, or we become every day more like Germany in habits of thought and action.

"When we do wake up, we shall find two great questions awaiting solution. One is the League of Nations question and the other is the question of Government ownership. To solve them we must think internationally—a new plane upon which we are not practiced thinkers, although the war period has done not a little to shake us out of the provincialism of supposing that Federal or municipal ownership, socialism, Bolshevism, or any other experiment must somehow work out in the United States in a way superior to what would be the case in merely European countries.

Individual Versus Federal Ownership.

"We are ripe for Federal ownership of railroads, telephones, and telegraphs and to have New York City take over its traction lines, or else we are ripe to pursue resolutely the industrial system, with what its evolution demands, which puts a premium upon individual initiative by means of personal responsibility for good workmanship and the mathematical verdict of profits.

"All autocrats are dependents. They are Kings who depend upon a god who appointed them to rule. There are subjects childish enough to want a government to take care of them and to spare them the strain of responsibility, upon which alone any development of individuality depends.

"Struggle is survival law, and socialism, psychologically speaking, is the organized cry of the tired man, who never grew up, but who harks back to the softness of the irresponsible days when he was carried in the protecting arms of a woman, without a care upon his baby mind."

CONDEMNS INSURANCE TAX.

Building Manager Declares Excuse No Longer Exists.

Arthur W. Warner, Chairman of the Insurance Committee, New York Building Managers' Association, said yesterday that the 10 per cent. so-called "war tax" on fire insurance policies was costing the owners of buildings and of their contents in New York alone about $2,000,000 annually in extra premiums, and that the discontinuance of the tax should now be considered.

"The flat extra charge was never justified by loss experience in New York and is not a tax at all," Mr. Warner added, "but a war profit for the insurance companies, which was levied under cover of the Black Tom explosion, while public imagination was aflame with the incendiary threats and doings of spies and other German sympathizers.

"Whatever merit may have existed in the plea that the additional 10 per cent. was needed to strengthen the resources of these companies to meet unknown wartime risks, the occasion for the fear is now happily over. The fire insurance business is unique in that it enjoys the protection virtually of the State against any competition to reduce selling prices and for that reason it is particularly unfair for the fire insurance companies to sit tight and keep on collecting their toll of extra profit masquerading as a war tax, while all other business and building owners are stra

NIXON AND RATTIGAN NAMED FOR OFFICE

SMITH NAMES FOUR OTHERS

ALBANY, Jan. 9.—Governor Smith sent to the Senate today for confirmation the names of five men and one woman selected to fill positions now open. These are the nominations:

The appointments did not cause surprise, as it was understood for some days that the Governor had the men he named under consideration. Mr. Rattigan's selection is thought due to the influence of Thomas Mott Osborne, who wanted the position himself, but suggested Mr. Rattigan, among others, in case the appointment did not go his way. Mr. Rattigan, who is now Collector of the Port of Rochester, was at one time Warden of Auburn Prison.

Nixon's appointment is attributed here to Charles F. Murphy, although the Governor told friends that it was the only personal appointment he made. Mr. Nixon, who lives on Staten Island, is a shipbuilder and business man and was one of the triumvirate of Tammany Hall leaders following the reign of Richard Croker. The construction and maintenance of State canals will be under his jurisdiction.

Member of French Colony.

The new State Superintendent of Elections is described as a prominent member of the French colony of New York City. He is an Assistant District Attorney of New York County and was formerly Deputy Attorney General.

Michael J. Walsh, the new State Tax Commissioner, is the present Postmaster of Yonkers and Democratic leader of Westchester County. He was a former Deputy Controller in charge of tax affairs.

Frances Perkins, who will succeed Louis Wiehagen as a member of the State Industrial Commission, is the wife of Paul E. Wilson, who was executive secretary to Mayor Mitchel. She is a well-known welfare worker and is Chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Consumers' League, Secretary of the Committee on safety and Secretary of the Maternity Centre Association. She will receive $8,000 a year.

Howard P. Nash, the new County Judge of Kings, is a City Magistrate, who was appointed by Mayor McClellan in 1906. He is a graduate of Harvard. His appointment is credited to John H. McCooey, Democratic boss of Brooklyn. He will succeed Robert H. Roy, who was elected to the Supreme Court bench.

The Senate also confirmed the nominations of the Finance Committee, of which Senator Henry M. Sage, Republican, is Chairman. It is believed here that the only fight likely will be on the confirmation of Rattigan because of the Governor's announced intention to remove George W. Benham as member of the State Board of Parole.

Benham is Republican leader of Cayuga, of which county Rattigan is Democratic leader, and up-State Republicans see in the Governor's action an attempt on his part to build up the Democratic organization in the county at the expense of the Republican machine. Should the Governor remove Benham it is likely that the Senate will refuse to confirm Rattigan, in which event the prisons will continue to be governed by Deputy Superintendent George W. Franklin, Republican, of Troy, who became Acting Superintendent upon the resignation of William A. Orr.

McCabe's Powers Shorn.

"I have no objections," said the Governor today, "to any office holder being politically active at night, but he has no right to engage in politics on the State's time. I was told Mr. Benham was neglecting his official duties in order to participate in the campaign."

The political powers of Patrick E. McCabe, Democratic leader of Albany County and recognized leader of the party up-State, were partly shorn today when the trustees of public buildings, which includes Governor Smith, Lieut. Gov. Walker, and Speaker Sweet, met and named Thomas H. Donoghue of Troy as Superintendent of Buildings. This position, entailing large patronage, has previously been in the control of McCabe, and its removal to Troy is considered the first move in the scheme to supplant McCabe as leader and the conferring of that power upon Joseph J. Murphy of Troy.

Murphy, a political enemy of McCabe, is said to have insisted that the Governor take the public building patronage from the hands of the latter and give it to Republican County namesake. McCabe's friends, led by Former Governor Martin H. Glynn, raised such a rumpus when the Murphy design became known that the Governor effected a compromise. He agreed to allow McCabe to name a Deputy Superintendent of Public Buildings, as well as to have a finger in the patronage of other departments. McCabe's selection as deputy will be Patrick H. McDonald or William Kearney, both of Albany. McDonough, the new Superintendent, succeeds William H. Storrs, a Republican.

Governor Smith also announced today that he had designated Justice Abel E. Blackmar as member of the Appellate Division of the Second Judicial District.

THE COMMITTEE ASSIGNMENTS

Many Changes Due to Large Number of New Legislators.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 9.—The Standing Committees of the 1919 Legislature, announced in both Houses today, differ considerably in personnel from those of last year. This condition is due chiefly to the unusually large number of new members this year.

Chief among the changes in the chairmanships of the more important Senate Committees are: Alvah W. Burlingame, Jr., of Kings, becomes Chairman of Judiciary, succeeding J. Henry Walters of Onondaga, now Majority Leader; John B. Mullan of Monroe heads the Committee on Cities, which once more takes its place in the front rank owing to the abolishment of the Committee on the Affairs of the City of New York, and Frederick M. Davenport of Oneida, elected as a "dry" candidate, will preside over the Committee on Taxation and Retrenchment, to which will be referred all prohibition measures.

In the Assembly Louis M. Martin of Oneida, who voted with the "drys" last year, is Chairman of the Committee on Judiciary, which will consider the temperance legislation.

The personnel of the principal Senate committees follows:

Finance—Sage of Albany, Chairman; C. J. Hewitt, G. F. Thompson, G. L. Thompson, Lockwood, Walton, Towner, Marshall, Davenport, Knight, and Law, Republicans; Ramsperger, Boylan, and Carroll, Democrats.

Cities — Mullan of Monroe, Chairman; Gibbs, Graves, Lockwood, Burlingame, Yelverton, Law, Abeles, and Lowman, Republicans; Ramsperger, Walker, and Dunnigan, Democrats.

Taxation and Retrenchment—Davenport of Oneida, Chairman; Marshall, Hewitt, Burlingame, Lowman, Whitley, and Abeles, Republicans; Boylan, Carroll, and Walker, Democrats.

Senator G. F. Thompson of Niagara will head the Committee on Public Service.

Ways and Means—Machold of Jefferson, Chairman; Seaker, Tallett, Kenyon, Bewley, Lord, McGinnies, McWhinney, Bloomfield, Hooper, Thayer, and Brush, Republicans; McElligott, Shannon, and Seesselberg, Democrats.

Judiciary—Martin of Oneida, Chairman; McNab, Pierce, Rowe, Lewis, Jenks, Everett, Pellett, and Wilson, Republicans; Goldberg, Bloch, O'Hare, and Fertig, Democrats.

Cities—Malone of Albany, Chairman; Blakely, M. J. Miller, Fearon, Davis, Dobson, Wells, Whitcomb, and Franchot, Republicans; Steinberg, Burr, McCue, and E. H. Miller, Democrats.

The two women members, Mrs. Ida B. Sammis, Republican, of Suffolk, and Mrs. Mary M. Lilly, Democrat, of New York, were assigned to the committees on Education and Social Welfare. Mrs. Sammis also will serve on the Public Health Committee.

Walter V. Turner Dead.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Jan. 9.—Walter V. Turner, manager of the engineering department of the Westinghouse Air-Brake Company and inventor of note, died in a hospital here today. Mr. Turner had more than 400 patents granted for various inventions. One of these, the "K" triple valve, is said to be valued at $28,000,000.

He was born in Epping Forest, Essex County, England, April 3, 1866, was educated at the Textile Technical School, Wakefield, Yorkshire, England, and came to the United States in 1888. He received the John Scott medal in 1911, the Elliott Cresson medal in 1912 and a testimonial as the leading airbrake expert by the Air Brakes Association in Richmond, Va., in 1912.

BILL FOR ONE-MAN UTILITIES BOARD

MAJORITY WILL FIGHT IT

ALBANY, Jan. 9.—The bill outlined by Governor Smith in his message to provide for the reconstruction of the Public Service Commission in New York City was introduced in the Senate today by James A. Foley, Minority Leader, and in the Assembly by Charles B. Donahue.

The measure follows closely the Governor's recommendation that the present commission be abolished. It provides for the repeal of the present section of the Public Service Commission law fixing the number of commissioners for the First District at five, and substituting a new section which provides that there shall be one commissioner, whose term shall be five years, and a Transit Construction Commissioner to be appointed by the Governor with the consent of the Senate, for a like period.

Under the terms of the bill the single commissioner is to be concerned only with the regulation of public service matters, while the transit commissioner is to confine his entire time to construction work. This commissioner is to receive $15,000 a year and have the appointment of not more than four deputies at $7,500 a year each, one of whom may exercise the powers of the commissioner. The Transit Construction Commissioner must be a resident of New York City, is to receive $15,000 a year, and is to have all the powers given to the old Rapid Transit Commission under Chapter 4 of the Laws of 1891.

Senator Foley said he felt sure the Republicans in the Senate and Assembly would not oppose the measure, or that at least enough members would vote with the Democrats to make its passage certain. While the Republican leaders would not comment upon the possibility of its passage, the feeling exists that the bill will have hard sledding.

"A Republican Legislature is not going to vote to abolish a lot of positions held by Republicans just to give the Democrats a chance to fill them with the offices," commented a Republican member of the Senate. "There is no assurance that two Democratic Commissioners at $15,000 each and four deputies at $7,500 each will do any better than the five Republican Commissioners."

Senator Foley had this to say:

"In his message to the Legislature Governor Smith pointed out that the Federal Government has taught us the lesson that results can best be obtained by one single executive clothed with proper power when any great work is to be carried out successfully. He recommended that the completion of the subways could best be accomplished under the direction of a single Rapid Transit Commissioner. He further recommended that the regulatory functions of the commission in the First District should be entrusted to a single Public Service Commissioner. Those who have studied public service matters are convinced that dissatisfaction and ineffectiveness are caused by division of authority and responsibility in the commission.

"The bill which we have introduced provides for a single Commissioner in the First District who shall have charge of the regulatory matters of the commission. He will not be concerned with construction. The control of construction matters is vested in the office of Transit Construction Commissioner which is created by the bill. Responsibility will thus be placed upon a single individual for the improvement of transit conditions and the making of fair rates for the public. A considerable saving will be effected, as the positions of three Commissioners at $15,000 a year are eliminated. Hearings under the bill are to be conducted by examiners designated by the Commissioner from the regular staff of employes."

It is said to be Governor Smith's intention, if the bill becomes a law, to appoint as Transit Construction Commissioner the highest-class engineer he can find, giving the preference to a man who was connected with engineering work in France during the war, while as Regulatory Commissioner he would appoint a lawyer familiar with all angles of corporation laws.

MEEK'S BODY TAKEN HOME.

Funeral of Times Co. Official to be Held in Nashville.

The body of Samuel W. Meek, Assistant Treasurer of The New York Times Company, who died on Wednesday morning, was taken yesterday from his home at 239 Central Park West to the Pennsylvania Station, where it was placed on a train for Nashville, Tenn. In addition to relatives and friends, the coffin was accompanied to the train by members of the staff of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Upon the arrival of the train at Nashville, services will be held in the First Baptist Church, of which Mr. Meek was at one time a member. The burial will be in Spring Hill Cemetery, in Nashville.

ETIENNE VICTOR LAMY DIES.

Historical Writer Was Permanent Secretary of French Academy.

PARIS, Jan. 9, (Havas.)—Etienne Victor Lamy, member of the French Academy and its permanent Secretary since 1913, is dead.

Etienne Victor Lamy, French savant, was elected a member of the Academy in 1906 in succession to the late Eugene Guillaume. He was the author of many works on historical and other subjects, and was a member of the French delegation which accompanied the champlain memorial to the United States in 1912. M. Lamy was born in 1845.

Lieut. Edwin Westby Dies in London

Relatives in this city have received a cablegram announcing the death of Lieutenant Edwin Westby of the Royal Field rillery, a cousin of the Earl of Dunraven, which occurred in London Jan. 4, from the effects of shell shock and trench fever. He was invalided home in 1917, and was in the hospital for about eight months. He was Secretary and Captain of Comrades of the Great War, a British organization. He had been connected with the investment house of N. B. Stark & Co. and was Secretary of the Boston Opera Company. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Lillian Judge of New York.

Obituary Notes.

Railroad Stocks Await Steps at Washington—General Price Movement Irregular.

The moderate increase in trading as compared with Tuesday's and Monday's turnover in the stock market, brought nothing yesterday in the way of new developments nor in the line of a pronounced price movement. The irregular character of railroad shares seemed to indicate that both investors and speculators were unwilling to take a position until further progress had been made in the hearings before the Senate Committee. Considerable study was devoted to the full text of the plan proposed by the Association of Railway Executives, and particular items threw much more light on the proposal for the railroad future than had preliminary discussions. In respect to rates and ratemaking the association would have the charges for railroad service so adjusted as to not only meet the familiar word "reasonable," but also "to protect existing investments and to attract the new capital necessary in the public interest," and at the same time "properly reflect the cost of wages and all other expenses incident to the furnishing of transportation." This is a sample of the carefulness with which the railway leaders have prepared their ideas for returning the carriers to their owners, and it would seem as though a working basis at least is contained in the proposal for the major deliberations at Washington. Most railroad stocks made only fractional price changes and bonds were steady.

In the industrial department a number of specialties were bid upward rather easily and others moved off while the alterations of prices among the greater number of stocks were without consequence. It has been a matter of comment for some days past that the copper shares have maintained a relatively steady front in the face of much uncertainty about the copper metal market. The decline, which occurred a fortnight ago about the time when the Anaconda Copper Mining Company's dividend was reduced may have marked a particular stage in the readjustment process which is going on in the industry. For the time being it is hard to discern the exact state of the market for copper. Various prices are mentioned as paid for moderate amounts, and yesterday came news that some metal was changing hands with the stipulation that the price should be determined by the current market quotation when delivery was made in the future. Apparently a great deal of irregularity exists in the steel industry, some plants being reported as working at only 65 per cent. of capacity, while others are on a 90 per cent. schedule. An encouraging feature in respect to steel is the constant recurrence of reports of large inquiries, which may be looked upon as the forerunner of considerable actual business when prices have been decided upon.

The Bank of England's weekly statement showed another large increase in gold holdings, the amount being some £2,700,000 which went into the reserve account. The completion of year-end operations was reflected in heavy reductions of loans and deposit liabilities, which resulted in a gain of more than 5¼ per cent. to 17½ per cent. in the reserve ratio. The Bank's gold now amounts to about £402,000,000, compared with £295,000,000 a year ago, an expansion which has been accomplished by a great increase in note circulation.

The local call money rate yesterday started off at 6 per cent. and eased off to 5 per cent. in the afternoon.

Report of Northern Securities Company Sent to Stockholders.

The report of the Northern Securities Company for the year ended Dec. 31, which has just been issued by E. T. Nichols, President, shows a net income for the period amounting to $225,465 after expenses and taxes but before payment of dividends and loss on securities sold had been deducted. In the year the dividend rate was increased from 3¾ to 4 per cent., and the surplus of Dec. 31, 1917, amounting to $2,987,284, was decreased to $2,922,850 in 1918 when the dividend payments were made. In the preceding year $106,179 was added to surplus after payment of the 3¾ per cent. dividends. In his report to stockholders Mr. Nichols said in part:

"As indicated in our last report the labor difficulties which in 1917 had been experienced by the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company were adjusted on a basis that enabled the Coal Company to resume operations. From its earnings since the resumption of operations, the Coal Company has paid in 1918 dividends, aggregating 4½ per cent. on its stock.

The Northern Securities Company is an investment concern and holds, in addition to the Coal Company's stock, a large block of shares of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad.

CUBA SUGAR SHOWS $626,424 SURPLUS

In Preceding Year It Was $3,815,017, but Cost Has Increased.

GREATER CROP IS PROMISED

4,200,000 Bags Is Estimate Fixed for the Next Yield—Cuban Tax Another Burden.

The Cuba Cane Sugar Corporation in its third annual report for the year ending Sept. 30, 1918, which was issued yesterday, shows a surplus, after the payment of all charges, preferred dividends, reserves for depreciation and taxes, of $626,424, which is equivalent to $1.25 a share on the 500,000 shares of common stock. This compares with a surplus of $3,815,017 in the preceding year, which was equivalent to $7.60 a share on the common stock. The operating profit for the year was $7,390,603. Charges amounted to $3,264,179, leaving a balance of $4,126,424, from which there was a deduction of $3,500,000 to meet the 7 per cent. preferred dividend. The total profit and loss surplus now stands at $14,292,949.

The total earnings were $59,071,280. Of this amount the sugar sales amounted to $57,443,014, molasses sales to $1,056,772 and other earnings were $571,494. The total expenses were $51,680,232.

Manuel Rionda, President of the company, says that, owing to drought, particularly in the Western section of Cuba, and because of the cane which was left uncut on the Eastern plantations, there was not as much cane ground as had been anticipated early in the season. Based on the supply of cane left over from last year, and the additional plantings made in 1917, the quantity of cane available for the coming crop is estimated at 480,000,000 arrobas, an increase of 70,000,000 arrobas, or 781,250 tons, over the quantity ground in the season just closed. The crop of sugar from this is estimated at 4,200,000 bags. The President's report to the stockholders says in part:

"The chief difficulty experienced during the campaign just ended was due to the late deliveries of some of the machinery ordered and to the late shipment thereof, caused by the war and the restrictions imposed upon all manufacturers in the United States. It is owing to this that the benefits from the program inaugurated in August, 1916, for increasing the capacity of its sugar mills in the eastern section of Cuba were not fully realized.

"The program of August, 1916, for increasing the capacity of the mills was made at a favorable time, but by reason of the entry of the United States into the war great difficulties were encountered which, though overcome, necessitated larger expenditures than had been anticipated. The whole program will be practically completed by the time the coming campaign starts. Notwithstanding the higher yield obtained, the operating profit this year was lower than that of the previous year. This was due to: Higher salaries and wages, higher cost of general supplies, such as coal, bags, &c.; deterioration or failing off in test on sugars so long kept in warehouse; increase of 25-30 per cent. in Cuban railroad freights; Cuban taxes of 20c a bag, and late start of grinding at the eastern plantations because of late arrival of machinery and because of these factories not being able to grind at full capacity.

Syndicate of Bankers Reports Large Oversubscription.

The syndicate of bankers which has been offering $40,000,000 American Telephone and Telegraph 5-year 6 per cent. notes and $25,000,000 New York Telephone Company 30-year 6 per cent. debenture bonds announced yesterday that both had been heavily oversubscribed.

This is the largest single financing operation since the armistice. Next in size was the $30,000,000 issue of Pennsylvania Railroad bonds, which also were heavily oversubscribed.

SWIFT & CO.'S YEAR.

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—Gross sales in excess of $1,200,000,000 returned net profits of $21,157,277 to Swift & Co., according to the annual report read at the annual stockholders' meeting held here today. The net is reached after deducting $11,328,164 for Federal and foreign taxes. The net for the previous year was $34,650,000.

The profit on meat and all other products was approximately 1¾ per cent. In the meat department sales amounted to $922,726,756, and the earnings were 2.04 per cent.

In the period covered, all live stock prices increased, cattle 25 per cent., hogs 33 per cent., and sheep and lambs 22 per cent.

Two new Directors were added. They are: Thomas Bradley of Philadelphia and Pasadena, and H. H. Swift of Chicago. Those re-elected were: L. F. Swift, Chicago; Lewis L. Clarke, New York, President American Exchange National Bank; Edward F. Swift, Chicago; M. B. Brainard, Hartford, Vice President and Treasurer Aetna Life Insurance Company; L. A. Carton, Chicago; Charles H. Swift, Chicago, and G. F. Swift, Jr., Chicago.

Vote B. & M. Reorganization.

BOSTON, Jan. 9.—Stockholders of the Boston & Maine Railroad voted by a large majority today to adopt the plan for a reorganization of the system previously indorsed by the company directors and by Director General McAdoo of the Federal Railroad Administration. The action was on the adoption of the agreement for the consolidation of the Fitchburg Railroad, Boston & Lowell, Connecticut River, Concord & Montreal, and other smaller leased lines with the Boston & Maine.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

A special meeting of stockholders of the Central and South American Telegraph Company will be held on Feb. 11. It has been called for stockholders to vote on the proposed increase in capital stock from $14,000,000 to $25,000,000.

The Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Company has received at 4 per cent. discount a temporary loan of $200,000 issued in anticipation of revenue dated Jan. 9 and maturing May 14, 1919.

Sales of S. H. Kresge & Co. for December show an increase of $548,735, to $3,537,852, over the corresponding month in 1917, while sales for the year totaled $21,131,019, an increase of $3,523,629, or 20 per cent. over the preceding year.

A special circular indicating the position of manufacturing industrial companies has been prepared for distribution by Hirsch, Lilienthal & Co.

At the annual dinner of Group Eight of the New York State Bankers' Association, which will be held in the Waldorf-Astoria on Monday evening, Jan. 13, addresses will be delivered by Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury; ex-Governor Stokes of New Jersey, and John Kendrick Bangs.

COTTON PRICES GO UP.

During the forenoon session of yesterday's cotton market all active options scored sharp advances from Wednesday's closing quotations, the range starting at 52 points for January, to 35 for May and July, March registering an overnight gain of 45 points at the opening. The firm undertone of the early trading was mainly due to Liverpool cables reflecting a stronger market there than expected. Contract prices in the New Orleans market likewise added another influence to the bullish enthusiasm of the early trading. The market maintained its strength on later dealings, and January went to 28.90c, March, 27.42c; May, 26.37c, and July, 25.68c.

The buying came principally from commission houses and Liverpool interests, and with very little cotton to meet there was but temporary hindrance to the upward rwing. Some scattered realizing and Southern selling induced minor recessions from these levels, but in the main the support was strong enough to absorb all offerings. During the afternoon a renewal of the Southern selling and profit taking caused the market to become easier and react, but before the close the market rallied 10 to 20 points from the lowest and closed fairly steady.

The report of the Census Bureau, estimating the amount of cotton ginned to Jan. 1 as approximately 10,761,278 bales, was about as expected by the trade. This total compares with 10,434,852 bales in 1918, and 11,089,491 bales in 1917. Exports yesterday totaled 57,513 bales, of which 45,035 bales cleared through Galveston.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 18,680 packages. Ample supplies of fresh table grades on the spot, but the fear of some shortness if the boatmen's strike continues led to a little freer buying, and the feeling is firm on all useful qualities. Renovated doing a little better and ladles and packing stock higher. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 70@70½c; extras, 92 score, 69½c; firsts, 81 to 91 score, 65@68½c; seconds, 83@87 score, 61@64c; lower grades, 54@60c; unsalted, higher than extras, 72@72½c; extras, 71@71½c; firsts, 68@70c; seconds, 61@65c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 67@68c; good to prime, 65@66c; common to fair, 52@62c; renovated, extras, 58@54c; firsts, 50@58c; lower grades, 44@48c; imitation creamery, firsts, 48@49c; ladles, current make, firsts, 40@41c; seconds, 44½@45c; lower grades, 42@44c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 40@44c; No. 2, 43c; lower grades, 37@42c.

EGGS.—11,040 cases. The strike of harbor boatmen interfered with the delivery of freight shipments arriving on the Jersey shore, but the deliveries by other roads are sufficient to supply the urgent needs of the trade, and the demand is pretty closely confined to these. The tone of the market is still irregular, but for the moment prices are steady and without material change on the general supply of Western and Southern eggs. White eggs are dull, and, with accumulating stocks, prices are being sharply cut in the effort to force wider outlets. Fresh gathered, extras, a dozen, 69c; extra firsts, 67@68c; firsts, 65@66c; seconds, 60@64c; dirties, No. 1, 51@58c; No. 2 and poorer, 52@56c; checks, good to choice, dry, 48@50c; undergrades, 42@47c; refrigerator, 42@55c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby Western, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 75@76c; ordinary to prime, 63@74c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 68@74c; pullet whites, 63@69c; Pacific Coast, whites, extras, 75c; lower grades, 68@74c; pullets, 65@68c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 66@73c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby hennery browns, 68@72c; gathered browns and mixed colors, 65@69c.

Direct Foreign Banking Facilities

THE Guaranty Trust Company of New York—with offices in New York, London, Liverpool, Paris, and Brussels, and affiliations and connections with leading banks throughout the world—offers a direct and comprehensive foreign banking service for trade with all countries.

Great Britain and Continental Europe

Our London and Paris Offices are officially designated United States depositaries. They are American institutions conducted on American lines, and are especially well equipped to render banking service throughout Europe. Additional branches are being established in Liverpool and Brussels. We have our own special representative for the Scandinavian countries. Our direct connections in Italy and our affiliation with the Italian Discount and Trust Company of New York enable us to offer exceptional facilities throughout Italy. The Mercantile Bank of the Americas at Barcelona is a depositary for the U. S. Government; through this connection we offer direct service with Spain and Portugal.

South and Central America

We have direct connections with the leading financial institutions in Argentina, Uruguay, Chile, and Brazil, and have, in addition, a special representative in Buenos Aires. Through our affiliation with the Mercantile Bank of the Americas and its connections, we cover Peru, Northern Brazil, Colombia, Ecuador, Venezuela, Nicaragua, Honduras, Guatemala, and other South and Central American countries.

Cuba and West Indies

Through the American Mercantile Bank of Cuba, at Havana, we cover direct, Cuba and the West Indies.

British India, Dutch East Indies, Straits Settlements

We are the representative in the United States of the Tata Industrial Bank of India, and render direct banking and merchant service throughout British India. We are also correspondents of the leading Dutch banks established in the Dutch East Indies and the Straits Settlements.

Africa

Our direct connections with the National Bank of South Africa, at Cape Town, and its many branches in the Transvaal, Rhodesia, Natal, Mozambique, etc., assure our customers of efficient banking service throughout the Union of South Africa.

Australia and New Zealand

Through our direct banking connections and our special Australian representative, we offer a comprehensive service for trade with Australia and New Zealand.

China, Japan, and the Far East

Through our affiliations with the Asia Banking Corporation we negotiate,

WAR ON STOCK SWINDLING.

Stock Exchange Calls on Members to Engage in Campaign.

The Stock Exchange urged all its members yesterday to participate in a campaign of publicity against the evil of stock swindling. Circulars announcing the opening gun of the Exchange's campaign were sent to all Stock Exchange houses with the following explanation by H. G. S. Noble, President of the Exchange:

"While legislation is being prepared by the Capital Issues Committee in collaboration with the Administration and other governmental departments, the management of the Stock Exchange is apprehensive that before adequate protection is provided by law many investors may be irretrievably harmed. The action taken by the Exchange, it is believed, will be the opening wedge in a broad national campaign to expose stock swindling operations and in this way protect the security-buying public." The Exchange circular says:

"All New York Stock Exchange houses who advertise in the public press are invited to join in a campaign of publicity to combat the growing stock swindling evil. The utterances of both Secretaries McAdoo and Glass, and the report of the Capital Issues Committee show a widespread exploitation by unscrupulous promoters of the millions of new Liberty Loan investors. The serious economic consequences of the situation, if uncontrolled, need no elaboration here. They should be sufficiently obvious to rally every responsible and industrial institution to support the Treasury Department and Capital Issues Committee in their efforts to suppress the evil.

"Publicity and education are probably the most effective weapons that can be used against the stock swindler. As a first step in this direction it is now proposed that all Stock Exchange houses unite in a series of warnings to investors, through the medium of the public press. These warnings will be uniform. They will be supplied by the Committee on Library, and comprise a few words designed to appear at the bottom of regular advertisements without encroaching upon the advertiser's copy."

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Heavy selling pressure in the final hour resulted in substantial losses in the market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Final prices were about the lowest of the session. The selling, initiated in the standard industrials, extended to the rails and had a depressing effect on the specialties, which, during the greater part of the session, were in active demand. Stocks were freely supplied on the decline and in the absence of any vigorous demand the general list yielded easily. Steel common lead in the downward movement.

What of the Future?

EVERY Banker, Investor and Business Man is to-day asking this question. We answer it clearly and in detail in our which we have just mailed to our many thousand clients. For five years past we have been issuing these annual forecasts, which have foreshadowed financial, investment and business developments with remarkable accuracy.

AN INTERPRETATION of the fundamental factors underlying the present situation is of vital importance to everybody. What will probably occur during the coming twelve months in business, in politics, in the labor market, in the railroad field, in Wall Street? Have we ahead of us a boom, a depression or a panic?

THESE AND OTHER QUESTIONS are fully discussed and answered. We believe that our conclusions in this Forecast will prove as sound as they did at the beginning of 1915, when we foreshadowed an easy money market and the boom in war securities; as in 1916, when we foreshadowed a vast expansion in foreign trade and inflation of commodity prices; in 1917, when we predicted the collapse of the war boom, and in 1918, when we accurately gauged the results of the war's end.

Bank Acceptances arising out of trade with Italy

A deposit account with this Company carries with it many advantages—not the least of which is the acceptance of drafts drawn upon us under credits opened for our customers doing business with Italy. The negotiation of such drafts is made easy by our direct affiliation with the Banca Italiana di Sconto, at Rome, which has over 80 branches throughout Italy.

Any of the Officers of the Company will be glad to go into this matter in detail.

Five Per Cent First Consolidated Forty Year Gold Bonds.

In view of the default in the payment of the interest which matured October 1, 1918, on the above described bonds, and in the payment of the interest which matured January 1, 1919, on the First Mortgage Bonds of the Railway Company, it is imperative that the holders of the Consolidated Bonds unite for the protection of their interests. At the request of the holders of a large amount of the Consolidated Bonds, the undersigned have consented to act as a Committee under the terms of a Deposit Agreement which has been prepared and copies of which may be obtained from the Depositary or from the Secretary of the Committee.

Holders of Consolidated Bonds of said Railway Company are requested to deposit their bonds immediately with THE NEW YORK TRUST COMPANY, the Depositary of the Company, at its office, 26 Broad Street, New York. As prompt action is necessary, no bonds will be received after January 22, 1919, except upon such terms as the Committee may impose.

Derbies for Mourning Purposes.

During the last two weeks there has been a decided increase in the number of black derbies sold in the local trade. In view of the sudden call for these hats some of the manufacturers made inquiries concerning it. The reason given by the retailers was that it was because of the lateness of the casualty lists. They say that a large number of these hats are being sold for mourning purposes.

Trimmings Taking Well.

Although the season for dress trimmings is still a little early, some very substantial orders are being received by certain local firms. Reports received from salesmen, who started out earlier than usual this year, are to the effect that the new lines are meeting with much success. The present indications are that both in the local and out-of-town trade trimmings will be used very largely this year.

Lamb and Sheep Skins Not Sold.

By order of the Textile Alliance, Inc., 66,670 green salted Iceland wooled lamb and sheep skins were offered for sale in the auction rooms of Burling & Dole, 99 Broadway, yesterday afternoon. The skins were divided into two shipments. The first shipment consisted of 74,640 skins, weighing 8.7 pounds each, and the other of 92,030 skins of the average weight of 8.8 pounds. The highest bid received on both shipments was 20 cents a pound, which was refused, according to the terms of the sale.

In the Handkerchief Trade.

After an unusually large holiday business, conditions at the present time in the handkerchief trade are described as being fair. Firms in this line, however, feel very optimistic regarding the future, and some big sales are expected either the latter part of this month or the beginning of next. This view is based on the amount of stock in the retail stores, which is said to be very low. In view of the unsettled conditions in the market some of the manufacturers are not making up much stock, and are waiting to see what developments will take place in the retail trade.

Sale of Fibre Silk Sweaters.

Fibre silk sweaters are meeting with an unusually large sale this season. Reports received from the men on the road indicate that throughout the country these goods are being bought very freely by the retail trade. In former years, buyers were generally in the market about this time placing advance orders for the Fall lines. This year has proved an exception, however, as very few orders for Fall goods are being taken. It is said that the sellers are just as well satisfied with the change in the plans of the buyers.

Gray Goods from Second Hands.

In the local gray goods market yesterday what business there was was done with second hands. Selling agents were not prepared to meet the levels at which fabrics seemed attractive to buyers. Of 38½-inch 64-60s a few thousand pieces were disposed of at 11¾ cents. Some 39-inch 80-squares went at 17¾ cents and some 39-inch 64-60s at 8½ cents. In the sheetings sales were noted of 48 square five-yard goods at 11¼ cents and of 36-inch fabrics at 10 cents. Sateens, twills and other fabrics used in the clothing trade were also sold to some extent, after having been dormant lately.

***

One of the leading manufacturers of children's hats, according to the bulletin of the Retail Millinery Association of America, is showing some pretty models in georgette and silk braid, ranging from $21 upward. Short back pokes and small mushrooms are featured, some with rather high bulky crowns and some with bowl-shaped crowns. The brims, top and side crowns are of georgette, accordeon pleated or softly shirred, with narrow flanges of silk braid. Others are made entirely of the silk braid, with little flower trims of bows and long streams. A pretty little tan model is of peacock blue hemp and has a small cluster of flowers nestled on the low side.

Raw Silk Markets.

The local raw silk market is quiet and business is confined to hand-to-mouth purchases on the part of the mills, which as a rule carry very light supplies. It is expected that increased activity will develop as soon as the broad silk business gets properly under way, and, with the greatly reduced stocks in the hands of manufacturers and importers, prices are likely to continue on a firm basis. News from Italy, received by H. L. Gwalter & Co., reports the Milan market quiet, with little business passing apart from the sales of the reelers to the Government agency at the fixed schedule prices. On the Lyons market transactions are confined to the current needs of the mills. Interruption of cable communication with Yokohama, Canton and Shanghai is responsible for absence of news from those centres.

Progress in Linoleums.

Linoleum factories of this country, reduced by Government orders because of their use of linseed oil to 40 per cent. of their normal output, will soon be running at full capacity, wholesale dealers handling their goods say confidently, and they are looking forward to large and varied shipments in a month from now, when their busy season commences and when they must meet the constantly increasing demand for this particular floor covering. During the last two and a half years domestic manufacturers have largely increased the variety of their designs. They used to confine themselves mostly to conventional patterns, while manufacturers on the other side specialized in floral and matting designs as well as the conventional. When the imported goods begin to get in, which will be within several months, it is expected they will have to compete with the domestic articles in the floral and matting designs, which are now made here, and the more varied color scheme which these demand.

CONFEREES ADOPT INCOME TAX RATES

DIFFERENTIAL IS CUT OUT

Divided and Undivided Profits to Pay Same Rate—Senate and House Both Make Concessions.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Important agreements touching upon corporate and individual taxation were made today by the House and Senate conferees on the $6,000,000,000 War Revenue bill, bringing the measure appreciably nearer ultimate acceptance. The outstanding agreement was acceptance by the House conferees of the Senate amendment eliminating the 6 per cent. differential as betwen divided and undivided profits in the corporate income tax, so that the tax for 1918-19 will be 12 per cent. flat. Under the House plan the rate was 12 per cent. on divided and 18 per cent. on undivided profits. The Senate yielded to the House in making the tax for 1920 10 per cent., instead of 8, as provided in the Senate draft.

The Senate conferees, in persuading the House members to abandon the 6 per cent. differential, supported the attitude of Secretary McAdoo, who insisted that there ought to be no discrimination against undivided profits, so as not to discourage expansion of corporate business. Mr. Kitchin, Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, had opposed Mr. McAdoo's argument and insisted that the differential of 6 per cent. go into the bill.

The action of the House conferees, in abandoning their stand, came after a lengthy debate. Their yielding came as an agreeable surprise to the Senate members. The agreement was not reached, however, until the Senate conferees had agreed to recede from their 8 per cent. tax for 1920 and succeeding years, and to substitute the higher rate of 10 per cent. The 10 per cent. rate, as the bill now stands, will be in effect from 1920 on.

Another important agreement reached by the conferees affecting corporations was the acceptance by the House members of the Senate amendment removing personal service corporations from the status of other corporations in the application of the income tax, but an amendment was added that where 50 per cent. or more of a corporation's gross income is derived from Government contracts it cannot take advantage of the exemption. Under this bill, personal service corporations will not be taxed under the corporation law, but the individual stockholders will be taxed on their returns under the individual income tax rates. Undistributed net income of such organizations shall be credited to the stockholders, under the bill, for the purpose of taxation and in proportion to their respective shares.

The Senate receded from its demand that income tax returns be made on the gross income basis, agreeing to the House provisions for returns on a basis of net income.

The conferees, in adopting the House plan of basing income tax upon the net, instead of gross income, followed out the idea of the Treasury Department, which believes the collection of taxes under that plan will be simplified. Under the Senate idea all returns of income had to be included, no matter whether part were exempted. Under the plan adopted today single persons with an income of $1,000 and over and married persons with incomes of $2,000 and over, will be required to make returns.

The agreement as to the payment of four installments of income tax provides that the first payment of one-fourth be made at the time of the return, one-fourth on the 15th day of the third month, one-fourth on the 15th day of the sixth month, and the balance on the 15th day of the ninth month. Under the House plan the installments were to be paid in payments of one-third each.

"(a) The term 'Dividend' when used in this title means (1) any distribution made by a corporation, other than a personal service corporation, to its shareholders or members, whether in cash or in other property or in stock of the corporation, out of its earnings and profits accumulated since February 28, 1913, or (2) any such distribution made by a personal service corporation out of its earnings or profits accumulated since Feb. 28, 1913, and prior to Jan. 1, 1918.

"(b) Any distribution shall be deemed to have been made from earnings or profits, unless all earnings and profits have first been distributed. Any distribution made in the year 1918 or any year thereafter shall be deemed to have been made from earnings or profits accumulated since Feb. 28, 1913, or, in the case of a personal service corporation, since Dec. 31, 1917; but any earnings or profits accumulated prior to March 3, 1913, may be distributed in stock dividends or otherwise, exempt from the tax, after the earnings and profits accumulated since Feb. 28, 1913, have been distributed.

"(c) A dividend paid in stock of the corporation shall be considered income to the amount of the earnings or profits distributed. Amounts distributed in the liquidation of a corporation shall be treated as payment in exchange for stock shares, and any gain or profit realized thereby shall be taxed to the distributee as other gains or profits.

"(d) Any stock dividend received by a taxpayar during the calendar year 1918 shall be taxed to the recipient at the rates prescribed by law for the year in which the corporation accumulated the earnings or profits from which such dividend was paid, but the dividend shall be deemed to have been paid from the most recently accumulated earnings or profits."

The conferees expect to reach the excess profits tax early next week.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

The midtown loft zone, where there has been a revival of speculative buying during the past few weeks furnished an interesting transaction yesterday in the sale of the twelve-story loft building at 40 and 42 West Twenty-seventh street on a plot of 45 by 98.9.

The property, which has been held at $325,000, was sold by the District Holding Company, E. H. Hess, president, to Frederick Brown, operator, through Harry B. Cutner. It was erected in 1910 by the selling company, and is fully rented, showing an annual rent roll of about $40,000. Another loft deal in the same block is reported pending.

Prominent New Yorker Buys Murray Hill Residence.

The residence of the late Sylvanus L. Schoonmaker, formerly Chairman of the Board of Directors of the American Locomotive Company, at 239 Madison Avenue, has been sold to a prominent New Yorker for occupancy.

The property is a four-story and basement 25x100 dwelling, located between Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth Streets. It is assessed by the city at $100,000 and lies just north of the residences of the late Captain Joseph R. DeLamar and J. Allen Townsend, and adjoins the vacant property now owned by August Heckscher, which was formerly occupied by the old South Church. Pease & Elliman negotiated the sale. Samuel Riker, Jr., acted as attorney for the buyer.

$35,000 Purchase on Platt Street.

The Monsanto Chemical Works of St. Louis, purchased from J. F. Donovan, 12 Platt Street, a four-story building on a lot 21 by 85 held at $35,000. The Charles F. Noyes Company negotiated the sale. This parcel was purchased by the seller about six months ago on speculation, and resold at a substantial profit.

Sale on Upper West Street.

The property at 491 and 493 West Street, occupied by two four-story buildings, adjoining, the northeast corner of Twelfth Street, has been sold by Van Vleet & Place for Samuel B. Roberts. Fred Harath is reported as the buyer.

West Harlem Apartment Purchase.

The Charles Galewski Company, Inc., purchased from the United States Trust Company, as trustee for Eliza E. Comstock, the Kantor apartment house, a six-story structure, at 604 and 606 West 125th Street, adjoining the corner of Claremont Avenue, on a plot 63 by 100, and irregular.

The house is fully tenanted, showing an annual rental of $15,000. It has been held at $100,000. Marshall E. Field was the broker in the transaction.

Private Dwelling Buyers.

The three-story residence at 20 East 119th Street, on plot 15.8 by 100.11, has been purchased by David Calef from Mrs. Harriet Harvey. The buyer owns the two houses at Nos. 24 and 26. Harry Sugarman was the broker.

Tenement Deals.

The six-story flat at 172 and 174 Manhattan Avenue, on plot 50 by 120, assessed at $90,000, has been purchased by Isaac Portman, President of the Union Chemical Glassware Company from the Lexington Savings Bank.

James H. Crulkshank has resold the five-story flat at 81 East 113th Street, on lot 25 by 100, to an investor. Harry Sugarman was the broker. The buyer acquired it a few weeks ago from the Lawyers Title Insurance Company.

Harlem Stable Property Sold.

The property at 117 to 121 West 128th Street, occupied by stables, plot 75 by 99.11, has been purchased by the Benenson Realty Company, from the Lincoln Trust Company. It is under lease for a long term to one tenant.

The Bronx Market.

The two-family house at 1,151 Vyse Avenue, on lot 20 by 100 feet, has been sold by Richard S. Elliott through O'Reilly & Dahn as brokers.

Angelo L. Frumento sold for Frank Morrone to Alexandro Alento, 2,377 Hoffman Street, a three-story building with stores on a plot 75 by 94.11 feet.

Brooklyn.

The six-story two-family brick houses at 511 to 521 Vanderbilt Street, near Prospect Park, have been purchased by an investor from Frank D. Creamer & Co. Walter S. Ross and C. C. Gretsinger were the brokers. This completes the sale of all the houses on the north side of Vanderbilt Street between Prospect Avenue and Eighteenth Street, the others having been sold by the same brokers a few weeks ago.

I. Salzberg has sold for S. Elgart to Samuel Katzin, the dwelling at 1,365 Forty-seventh Street, on plot 40 by 100 feet.

Samuel Gallizka, has sold for the Kensington Homes Corporation to a client for occupancy, the two-story house with garage on a plot 30 by 120 feet on the west side of East Eighth Street, 230 feet north of Avenue I, Flatbush.

The two-story dwelling at 501 Van Sicklen Street, near Neck Road in the Gravesend section, on lot 20 by 100, has been sold by John Pullman for Ida A. Sackett to Daniel Peacher.

Long Island.

Jacob Leitner has sold for Mrs. Daniel L. Bradley, about twenty-three and one-half acres of land on the Jericho Turnpike, between Mineola and Westbury, to a client, for development.

Sales in Queens.

H. R. Williams & Son have sold for Harry J. Arnold a new dwelling on Church Street, near St. Ann's Avenue, Richmond Hill, to William F. Rodgers, for occupancy.

The Roman-Callman Company have sold for Mrs. P. Schrenkeisen to the Shore Estates Corporation, a plot 125 by 100 feet, on Nott Avenue near the Boulevard, in Long Island City. It will be improved with a factory building.

The Madison Co-operative Building and Loan Association sold to P. Lemenze a plot 40 by 200, at the northeast corner of Debevoise Avenue and Spandon Street, Newtown.

B. Marvin has sold to J. Lowenstein a plot 40 by 100, on the east side of Vernam Avenue, south of Morris Avenue, Far Rockaway.

New Jersey.

W. S. Ross of J. H. Pennock & Co. has sold for W. D. Kent his home at 1,027 Myrtle Avenue, Plainfield, with a garage, stable and outbuildings, on a plot 147 by 300. Charles B. Van Valen, Inc., represented the purchaser.

Frank Edwards of Montclair has purchased a plot, 50 by 100, at 201 Carolina Avenue, Vailsburg, from J. Warren Perkins. The Kraemer Real Estate Agency acted as brokers.

Commercial Leases.

Stoney & Starkey, dealers in woolens, who have been in the Everett Building for several years, have rented for a long term an entire floor, comprising about 15,000 feet, at 229-233 Fourth Avenue. Carstein & Linnekin, Inc., were the brokers.

Sol. Stern has leased the four upper floors in the building at 102-104 West Thirty-eighth Street, to the Columbia Graphophone Company, and also the building at 272 Canal Street, corner of Cortlandt Alley, to the Chicago Bargain House.

Charles F. Noyes Company has leased for Leo and Emil Fried to the Concord Shoe Company for ten years, aggregating $90,000, the five-story building at 118 Duane Street, between Broadway and Church Street. The Concord Shoe Company now occupies the store and basement.

Realty Notes.

Former Governor Charles S. Whitman has been appointed referee in a foreclosure suit by the Seaman's Bank for Savings against the estate of Mrs. P. Hart, over a mortgage for $100,000 on 369 Broadway.

Nathan Hirsch, chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Taxation, and William C. Hect, receiver of taxes, will address the meeting of the Real Estate Owners' Association in Turn Hall, Eighty-fifth Street and Lexington Avenue, this evening.

The property at 231 to 243 West Sixty-first Street, 175 by 100, is the site to be improved with a three-story shop and factory for the Standard Concrete Steel Company, plans for which were recently filed. The property was purchased from Irving & Kemper and others.

C. E. Miller has filed plans for altering the dwelling at 933 Fifth Avenue, to cost $40,000. Walker & Gillette are the architects.

DAIRYMEN UPHOLD ACTION OF OFFICERS

More Than 3,000 League Members from Five States Vote Confidence at Utica Meeting.

STRIKE COMPLICATION HERE

But City's Milk Supply, It Is Promised, Will Be Brought Over River from Terminals.

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, N. Y., Jan. 9.—More than 3,000 members of the Dairymen's League, representing New York, Vermont, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and New Jersey, assembled in the armory in this city this afternoon, adopted resolutions expressing full confidence in the officers of the league, and decided to stand by the figures named by the league—$4.01 per 100 pounds for their product.

They insisted that there must be no more selling of milk at less than cost to the producer and every speech was punctuated with applause. President Roswell B. Cooper was given an ovation. There were no dissenting opinions and the speeches were all of one tenor—to stick to the league and refuse to sell milk at less than the cost of production with a reasonable added profit.

William A. Matteson, a prominent lawyer in central New York and an extensive cattle raiser, stirred the meeting to great enthusiasm in his attack on the system that gives all the profits in the business to the middlemen. He said it was preposterous to say that the league members did not have a right to fix their prices, and he declared that if he couldn't keep cattle and produce milk for the babies in New York City without a loss, it was his privilege to say whether or not he would stand that loss.

After the resolutions expressing confidence in the officers and approving the stand taken had been adopted, the meeting adjourned. County meetings will be held throughout the several States within the next few days, several of them being scheduled for this week. The Executive Committee will meet in New York at an early date.

MORE MILK FOR CITY.

Marine Engineers to See That Supply Is Ferried from Jersey Terminals

The harbor strike injected a new problem into the milk situation in New York yesterday, but after several conferences I. Elkins Nathans, Secretary of the New York Milk Conference Board, announced that the distributers felt no apprehension arising from the tie-up. He said the bulk of milk which had been delivered at Jersey City would be taken by the Pennsylvania Railroad and delivered at Sunnyside yards and Hunter's Point, Long Island City. Mr. Nathans saw Mr. Delahunty of the Marine Engineers and obtained a promise, he said, that the union would take up at once the matter of making special exception in favor of milk required to be ferried from terminals on the west side of the river other than Jersey City. Officials of railroads other than the Pennsylvania were also at work on plans whereby the milk can be delivered to the city.

Officials of the Dairymen's League said the harbor strike would doubtless result in inconvenience and possibly further curtailment of the supply now being received in the city, but so far as they could see it would have no effect on the controversy between the producers and the distributers.

According to figures given out by the Health Department, the milk shortage in New York yesterday was 25 per cent. of the normal supply, the amount received being 1,395,238 quarts, which is 76,277 quarts more than for the previous day, and the largest amount received since the strike began.

The first formal meeting of the Milk Commission appointed by Governor Smith will be held today at noon in the offices of the City Investing Company, of which Robert E. Dowling, Chairman of the commission, is President. Other members of the commission are Isaac A. Van Bomel and C. A. Weiant, representing the distributers; R. D. Cooper and John D. Miller, representing the producers, and Dr. Copeland, who, with Chairman Dowling, represent the consumers.

The inquiry which has been going on before Chief Magistrate McAdoo for several weeks was adjourned yesterday until next Thursday at the request of Assistant District Attorney Dooling, who said he needed time to ascertain from the members of the Milk Commission appointed by Governor Smith the scope, purpose, and objects of their investigation, so that the two proceedings would not conflict or be duplicated. This course was approved by Magistrate McAdoo.

Officers' Action Approved.

Before the adjournment yesterday, Mr. Dooling called one witness, Pauline Gottlieb, a clerk in the office of the Dairymen's League, who had with her numerous telegrams received from up-State farmers commending the action of the Dairymen's League officials and favoring their demand of $4.01 a hundred pounds for milk. The District Attorney has received many telegrams from county Presidents of the Dairymen's League telling him they approved of the attitude of officers of that organization. These telegrams protest against announcements that there was dissension in the organization. One message from an official of the Tioga County Dairymen's League said they had not withdrawn, and that its members resented the report that it was not in accord with the policy of the officers in New York.

League officials said that one-third of the milk now reaching the city is from league members and is supplied to dealers who have signed a contract at the January price. Thirty members of the New York Milk Conference Board have signed, they said, this in addition to 100 independent dealers. Farmers in some sections have threatened to repudiate their contracts and stop the shipment of all milk to the city, but league officials said they were making a determined effort to get them to live up to their contracts, and this, it was said, was one of the purposes of the meeting at Utica.

Following a conference yesterday afternoon between Mayor Hylan and Health Commissioner Copeland, the latter announced that he would arrange to get milk to Staten Island today if he had to send it by airplane. Fearing that they would be shut off for a long time from New York City because of the harbor strike, residents of Staten Island, or as many as could do so, came by roundabout routes to the city and purchased all the supplies they could carry back.

Dr. Copeland issued a statement last night replying to a statement given out by President Cooper of the Dairymen's League, in which he had questioned the purity of the milk supply now being received in the city. The statement said:

"According to information obtained from the various railroad platforms this morning, it was reported that 1,395,238 quarts of milk were received. Of this amount approximately 55,114 quarts were received from new sources which had not, prior to Jan. 1, 1919, been approved by the Department of Health. This milk had previously been sold in the cities of Chicago, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Pittsburgh.

The Milk Inspected.

"I have received telegrams from the Commissioners of Health of all of these cities in which they state that the milk now shipped to New York City has been under their inspection and is approved for sale in their city. The major portion of this milk is shipped raw. Upon its receipt in this city it is deflected to pasteurizing plants under the supervision of this department. Samples of this milk have been taken for bacteriological examination and the reports of the examination of 118 of these samples have been received. In 104 instances the samples were found to comply with the standards of the Board of Health. In fourteen instances the milk was found to be excessive in bacterial count. The same procedure is followed as in normal times. The dealer is notified that the milk is excessive in its bacterial count and that further samples will be taken and if the milk is again high the milk will be excluded.

"In addition to the above, since the 1st of January, 1919, we have made daily inspections of all the pasteurizing plants and our men have witnessed the pasteurization of the milk.

"In view of the shortage of milk the dealers have made every effort to deliver promptly the milk to the public. For this reason, there have been violations of the regulations requiring the delivery of milk within forty-eight hours after pasteuriation.

"It might also be well to understand," said Dr. Copeland, "that under normal times it is not possible for the Department of Health, with a staff of eighteen inspectors assigned to country milk inspection, to cover all of the farms—about 4,000 shipping milk to the city. It has, therefore, been the policy to centralize our activities upon the receiving stations and sample the milk as it is received from the farmers. The Grade A dairies are inspected regularly, but the Grade B dairies can only be inspected at rare intervals. In view of the foregoing, it is my opinion that milk received from the present sources is adequately safeguarded and is fit for human consumption."

Report made yesterday to District Attorney Swann show Detective Sergeant James Gegan and Detectives James McCoy and Charles Newman in November found in ash dumps in Manhattan 159,700 milk bottles in good condition; in the Bronx, 18,100; in Brooklyn, 27,500, and in one place in Yonkers about 12,000. They reported that they saw thousands more on vacant lots in Richmond and Brooklyn, but did not count them. Milk bottles are being sold on the market now at from 4 to 6 cents each. Milk cans, the 40-quart type, used in shipping milk, were plentiful, 827 being found which were in good condition. The report states that the cans are selling for $7.10 apiece.

GET TOGETHER, SAYS SMITH.

ALBANY, Jan. 9.—Formal announcement of his appointment of a commission of six members, representing producers, distributers and consumers, to attempt to settle the differences over the price of milk and insure a continuous supply at a reasonable cost, was made by Governor Smith today. He said that no more investigations were necessary, and the only thing was for the interested parties to get together and reach an agreement.

"Let the producer, distributer and consumer agree among themselves and put a stop to the quarreling over price, so that there shall be no repetition of the recent situation when the City of New York received only one-third of its regular supply of milk," the Governor said.

Mayor Hylan of New York has been challenged to conduct a dairy farming business until May 1 next at a profit by B. J. Sandiford, a dairyman of Ellenburg, Clinton County. He will hold the offer open until Feb. 1. If the Mayor or a representative whom he may name is able to make a profit at the business Mr. Sandiford will deliver to him the choicest cow in the herd.

All arrangements in the proposed transaction have been intrusted by the dairyman to Wallace B. Pierce, the Assemblyman from his district. Mr. Sandiford will allow the Mayor or his representative the free use of his herd, barns, horses, and equipment. The only conditions are that the hay on the place be purchased, two men be kept employed, and that bond be given for the return of the property in good condition.

"Here is a chance," Mr. Sandiford wrote to the Mayor, "for some of you fellows who think the milk producers are getting too much for their milk to find out all about it."

Justice Stephen Callaghan, in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn, yesterday, denied the application of Charles Wolf, of Sea Cliff, for an injunction restraining his wife, Mrs. Mollie Denlea Wolf, Leopold Zimmerman, of Zimmerman & Forshay, bankers, and others from disposing of a trust fund of $25,000 which he set aside under an agreement for the benefit of his wife. Wolf has brought an action to revoke the trust fund and sought to have the money tied up pending the trial of his suit.

The agreement was made by Wolf in 1917. In his affidavits he asserts that his signature was obtained by misrepresentation and coercion in that he was informed, that if he did not sign, steps would be taken to have him placed in an insane asylum. Wolf further alleges that his marriage to Mrs. Wolf, which took place in Manhattan, in 1900, is not legal because at that time her first husband, John Denlea, a tinsmith, of Roslyn, L. I., was still alive and that there had been no divorce.

In an answering affidavit, Mrs. Wolf says that the charges of her husband are groundless and their marriage valid. Mr. Zimmerman also alleges that the statements of Wolf are untrue and that the complainant was eager to have the agreement made in order that he might be reconciled with his wife.

SUBWAY BIDS RECEIVED.

Bids for the construction of the elevated part of the Fourteenth Street-Eastern subway, extending from Fourteenth Street at Sixth Avenue via tunnel under the East River to elevated lines in East New York, were received yesterday by the Public Service Commission. This is one of the most important lines yet to be constructed. It is expected that it will relieve the congestion on all of the lines running to Brooklyn and will open up a very important residential section in Brooklyn.

The highest bid came from the McClintic-Marshall Company, $1,903,719, and the lowest, $1,724,859, from Rodgers & Hagerty. Efforts will be made to have the line in operation early in the coming year.

R. C. Vanderbilt's Driver Cleared.

Magistrate House in the Traffic Court yesterday exonerated George Peterson, a chauffeur employed by Reginald C. Vanderbilt, of the charge of having left the scene of an accident without stopping to make known his name and license number. The complainant was William McCarthy, head watchman in the Queensboro Bridge Market. A policeman testified that Peterson had compiled with the law. The alleged offense happened on Jan. 2.
